Asks Plan For Security Of Country

Outlays for Defense Are Called More Vital Than Trimming Budget at Present Time

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Sen. Cooper (R.-Ky.) called on President Eisenhower today to lay before Congress a fully-rounded program for U. S. military security even if necessary outlays delay budget balancing.

And Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Democratic leader, said Congress will support such a presidential military decision despite the feelings of members who "would trim our defense program to what they consider the needs of our budget rather than trimming our budget to the needs of the defense program."

Accuse Army

The two senators spoke out as Sen. Byrd and others accused the Army of "passing the buck" to Congress on ammunition shortages.

Cooper said in an interview he fears Johnson was right in telling the Senate yesterday that this country is unprepared for a total war into which it might be thrust "in a matter of hours."

The Kentucky senator said he will urge the Senate Armed Services Committee, of which he is a member, to broaden its scheduled investigation of the ammunition situation into a full-scale inquiry into supplies of planes, guns, ships and other equipment.

He said this could give Congress a clearer idea of what is needed to meet any possible Russian attack, but he added that the lawmakers must depend on the President's final decision.

Says People Would Agree

"I think the country would accept the President's decision on military needs and I hope he sends us a message outlining a fully-rounded program," Cooper said.

"If the funds needed are so large that we can't balance the budget, then security must come first," Cooper declared.

Eisenhower has made it clear he wants a balanced budget in the year beginning July 1 and Sen. Taft of Ohio, the Republican leader, has predicted military outlays will be cut to attain that goal.

Meanwhile, Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich.) joined Byrd in contending that Congress has made available to the army all of the funds it asked for the purchase of ammunition.

Called Adequate

The Armed Services Committee said in a resolution army officials unanimously testified that appropriations for ammunition had been adequate.

Earl D. Johnson, acting secretary of the army, contended that the army officials never had said that funds were adequate. The question seemed to be whether the army considered adequate the budget figure left after its request was trimmed by the Department of Defense and Budget Bureau. This was the figure submitted to Congress.

Byrd said he regarded Johnson's complaint as "an effort to pass the buck to Congress."

Report Billion in Saving by Shifting Functions to Other Agencies

Washington, March 17 (AP)—The Eisenhower administration was reported today planning to abolish the RFC with the hope that its assets will provide a billion toward cutting the national deficit.

Administration officials apparently are weighing these alternatives: (1) Acting by presidential reorganization order, or (2) getting behind a bill by Sen. Byrd (D.-Va.) to kill off the agency and transfer some of its functions to other departments.

Either move would be in line with President Eisenhower's announced intention to take the government out of competition with private business as far as possible.

No Direct Comment

Byrd would not comment directly, but he was reported to have been assured by Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey and other administration officials that action on the RFC will be forthcoming soon.

Byrd told an interviewer he hopes the new Republican administration looks beyond the RFC toward abolition of some other agencies to which past Congresses have given borrowing and lending authority aggregating about 20 billion dollars.

"That is a very fertile field in which to get considerable funds to apply to the deficit," he observed.

Committee Votes 17-12 Today For Ike's Security Agency Plan

Democrats Line Up Solid Against Program for Setup of New Post in Cabinet

Washington, March 17 (AP)—The House Government Operations Committee today voted 17 to 12—a surprisingly close margin—to speed approval of President Eisenhower's plan to reorganize the Federal Security Agency. The plan would set up a new cabinet department.

In an unexpected move, Democrats lined up almost solidly against an approval resolution by committee chairman Hoffman, (R-Mich.). The resolution would put the change into effect ten days after the resolution is enacted.

Reorganization plans automatically go into effect 60 days after they are submitted unless either the Senate or the House votes to disapprove. The FSA plan was submitted March 12.

Opposition to Speed

Committee members, after a closed session, said Democratic opposition was based chiefly on the speed-up method of handling the proposal, rather than strong opposition to the plan itself.

Eisenhower's proposal would replace the FSA with a new cabinet level Department of Helath, Education and Welfare. It would raise the salaries and titles of top officials and provide for an assistant secretary for medical affairs.

Committee members said all 16 Republicans on the committee voted for the Hoffman resolution to put the plan into effect promptly. Twelve Democrats voted against it and one Democrat supported the Hoffman resolution.

Hospital Contract To Be Let Soon

F. B. Matthews Replaces J. D. Schoonmaker as Board President

A contract for the foundation and footings of the proposed addition to the Kingston Hospital is expected to be let this spring, a spokesman for the hospital's board of trustees said today.

John D. Schoonmaker, Jr., resigned from the board and his place as president was taken by Frank B. Matthews, vice-president, who was elected immediately after the former president's resignation was announced at the board's regular monthly meeting last night.

Schoonmaker was elected a trustee in December 1947 and became president in January, 1949.

Test Borings Made

Matthews, as chairman of the building committee, reported that test borings had been made for the addition and a "contract will soon be given" for the other preliminary work.

The board announced that the former president's resignation was accepted "with much regret." No reason was given for the resignation.

A. Raymond Atkins, treasurer, reported the receipt of $4,150.55 as a legacy from the estate of Howard O. Newman. The will stipulated that it be used for improvements, and it is being added to the building fund.

Printing Report

The Rev. Frank L. Gollnick, chairman of the public relations committee, said the annual report is being printed.

Board members attending were Stephen D. Hiltebrant, Frank B. Matthews, A. R. Atkins, Allan L. Hanstein, George V. D. Hutton, Richard M. Kalish, C. S. Rowland, Jacob H. Tremper, Walter Williams, Lloyd R. LeFever, N. LeVan Haver, the Rev. Frank L. Gollnick and George E. Yerry, Jr.

Queen Improves

London, March 17 (AP)—Queen Mary, ill for three weeks with a stomach disorder, showed a "slight improvement" today, an announcement from Marlborough House said. The 85-year-old grandmother of Queen Elizabeth II had a "considerably better night," the announcement added.

Admits Taking 400 Cars

New York, March 17 (AP)—"You are the champion auto thief in America. That's a great distinction, isn't it? Here you stand before me ready to go to jail, when you should be studying the box scores of the (Brooklyn) Dodgers." To these words by Brooklyn Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz, 16-year-old Robert Maher replied: "I don't know what comes over me—I just can't stay away from automobiles. It's not that I want to do it—I just do." This was the dialogue yesterday as Leibowitz sentenced Maher to an indeterminate term in the state reformatory at Lincolndale, N. Y. The boy admitted stealing more than 400 automobiles in two years—just to go joy riding.

Dewey's Rent-Control Bill Slated for Approval Today

Albany, March 17 (AP)—The Dewey administration's residential rent-control bill was slated for approval today in the GOP-ruled Legislature, although diehard Democrats were primed for a marathon fight against it.

The rent issue, possibly the hottest of the current session, is only the first of several major obstacles that must be cleared by Republican ramrod tactics if the 1953 session is to reach final adjournment this week.

Democrats already have assailed the Dewey rent-control bill as a "billion-dollar grab" by real estate interests, and as an "unwarranted raid" on tenants' pocketbooks.

Eugene F. Bannigan, Assembly minority leader, said each of the 52 Democrats in the larger house planned to speak against the bill—no matter how long it might take.

In a spech prepared for today's debate, GOP Assemblyman Samuel Rabin of Queens said it was time "to cut through Democrat smoke screens, smears and artificial alarm and consider only the facts."

"The Democrats' position of shrill, unreasoned, distorted opposition to the Republican bill to continue rent and eviction controls on an equitable basis for two more years illustrates typically why the voters are retiring Democrats from the Legislature in increasing numbers," Rabin asserted.

The measure would continue rent-controls two more years, until June 30, 1955; permit landlords to boost their rents 15 per cent over March 1, 1943, levels; decon-

Get-Tough Policy Now Is Opposed by Cooper

Kentucky Senator Says Effect Could Sound Death Knell to Settlement

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Sen. Cooper of Kentucky said today the sort of get-tough policy toward Russia urged by two of his fellow Republicans would sound the "death knell" to any hopes of peaceful settlement.

Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) told the Senate yesterday the United States should immediately seek to persuade the United Nations to brand Russia as an aggressor in Korea.

Knowland advocated the action as part of a program to bring an immediate cold war showdown with the Communists. A second point would be a request from this country that all UN members withdraw recognition of Red China; several have extended such recognition. A third was a complete blockade of Red China.

Cites Red Treason

Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich.), appearing on an MBS radio interview last night, said the UN should take a firm stand toward what he termed "treason by Russia to the United Nations."

Ferguson said he disagreed with Cooper's contention that a get-tough policy might touch off a new world war, and he added: "I can't see that we can cause Russia to take any step she doesn't want to take."

Knowland is chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, but he emphasized ysterday he was voicing only his own convictions.

He took the floor the day after Georgi Malenkov, the new Soviet premier, had said peaceful settlement of the issues between this country and Russia was possible. Knowland's comment: "Deeds rather than words would be more impressive."

Takes Dim View

Ferguson saying he took "a very dim view" of Malenkov's speech, declared:

"Communism is really a religion of promises. They operate by promises. When they get in a tight spot, they draw back and then they come out again. I think we are generally agreed in this country that you can't believe gangsters who are in a conspiracy."

Knowland's thesis was promptly challenged on the Senate floor by Cooper, who has served as a U. S. delegate to UN General Assemblies.

Name May Reach Senate Floor on Friday to Speed Departure to Moscow

Washington, March 17 (AP)—The Eisenhower administration appeared today to have accepted the challenge to a foreign policy showdown with opponents of Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen's nomination as ambassador to Russia.

Nearly all of those opponents in the Senate are Republicans.

Friends of Bohlen said the career foreign service officer had no thought of asking President Eisenhower to withdraw his name. And White House Press Secretary James Hagerty said there was "no change" in the situation there.

The nominee had a case of measles which forced a one day delay until tomorrow of a new hearing on his appointment by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Sen. Bridges (R.-N.H.) predicted there will be from 15 to 20 votes against Bohlen in the Senate.

Has Measles

Like a mild case of measles when you're 48, that might be a little embarrassing to Bohlen, but not serious. It would require a majority of the Senate to reject his nomination—49 senators if all 96 were on hand and voted. No senator has predicted Bohlen's nomination will be turned down. Sen. Ferguson (R.-Mich.) last night predicted easy confirmation. Ferguson said he hasn't made up his mind how he will vote.

If the Foreign Relations Committee votes tomorrow, the nomination might be brought to the Senate floor for confirmation Friday. The administration has said it is anxious to speed Bohlen to Moscow for a first hand look at the new Malenkov regime.

No Intention of Withdrawal

Bridges and Sen. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) were reported to have concentrated most of their opposition efforts on bringing pressure on the State Department to have the nomination withdrawn. Wiley said he had no intimation of a withdrawal.

Those opposing the nomination base their arguments on what they say were Bohlen's close ties with the Roosevelt and Truman administrations and his support of former Secretary of State Dean Acheson's foreign policies.

Van Fleet, Collins Reports Raise Questions on Ammo

Washington, March 17 (AP)—The ammunition shortage wrangle exploded by Gen. James A. Van Fleet raised the serious question: "How much ammunition should an army shoot in attacking the enemy and defending itself?"

Fresh from Korea, Van Fleet told senators that in all the 22 months he commanded the 8th Army he didn't have all the ammunition he needed—and at times this shortage was serious.

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, army chief of staff, told the same senators: "There has never been a shortage of ammunition (in Korea) either to repel an attack that actually developed or to conduct our own operations."

By using the phrase "to repel an attack that actually developed," Collins may have been saying he thought the gunners in Korea were a bit trigger-happy over attacks that didn't develop.

But the nation, Congress and even the army is learning it takes a vastly greater amount of ammunition in Korea's warfare than was required by a force of equal size in World War Two.

Back in 1775 at the Battle of Bunker Hill, old Israel Putnam told his sharpshooting pioneers: "Men, you are all marksmen. Don't one of you fire until you see the whites of their eyes."

But any troops relying solely on Putnam's technique in Korea probably would be blasted out of their positions before they fired a shot.

Because since the start of World War Two the emphasis has not been on sharpshooting. There has been a trend toward rapid-rate "spray" firing, pumping as much lead and explosives toward the enemy as possible, even when you don't see the enemy. This is particularly true of night attacks.

This increased rate of fire in small arms and machine guns has extended also into the heavier caliber artillery pieces—eating up ammunition supplies at a far faster rate than military planners ever had anticipated.

The Pentagon when asked had no figures readily available for a precise comparison of the rate of fire in World War Two as compared to the Korean fighting. But Collins has disclosed the comparatively small UN force in Korea has fired almost as much ammunition as America's giant World War Two armies expended in both the Pacific and European Theatres during all of World War Two.

This revelation points up the fact that American troops are depending more and more on heavier rates of fire. And it strongly indicates the Pentagon top command has one concept of how much an army should shoot—while the field command has an entirely different concept.

Secretary of Defense Wilson and Secretary of the Army Stevens both have indicated there were shortages in certain types of ammunition, but that these shortages are being corrected and the situation already is much better.

Wilson said: "As of now, we have the ammunition necessary for operations on the present scale." Again it is significant that Wilson added the phrase—"for operations on the present scale."

This has raised the question that perhaps the Pentagon has

Gathering Held at Ulster Court House Hears Success Plan for Local Good

With a goal of $2,000,000 increase in payrolls in the city of Kingston, the Kingston Industrial Development Corporation, sponsored by the Kingston Chamber of Commerce to encourage industry in the city, elected 11 directors at the second mass meeting of the group held Monday evening.

Robert M. Peebles, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce committee appointed to sponsor industrial development, presided at the meeting which was held in the court house.

The meeting was attended by approximately 85 men and women who had subscribed to at least one share in the corporation. Anyone who had pledged purchase of at least one share in the corporation was entitled to cast a vote for election of eleven directors.

Cites Successful Plan

Peebles, in opening remarks, referred to a similar venture which has been initiated by the people of Keene, New Hampshire. There a plan very similar to the Kingston plan was inaugurated with the immediate goal of increasing payrolls by at least $1,000,000. The corporation sought a fund of $100,000 to be used in industrial development. Some $30,000 was raised and the committee went to work. In a year and a half Keene had eight new industries and population in the city has increased from 15,000 to 17,000 and this has been accomplished with the expenditure of only $1,500 of

Memorial Plans Discussed Monday

Mayor Names Committee to Check Stone for High School Lawn

Plans for the erection of a new city veterans' memorial were advanced at a meeting of the Memorial Tablet Committee in the office of Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, city hall, last night.

It was agreed generally that a huge stone in the rough should be erected to honor veterans of all wars and campaigns, and the site tentatively favored is the high school lawn.

Committee Members

Mayor Newkirk is honorary chairman of the committee and James M. Krom, of the Sons of Union Veterans, is chairman. The other members are: Harold A. Sanford, Company M. Veterans Association; Charles R. Stall, Colonial Comp, United Spanish War Veterans; Bernhardt S. Kramer, Kingston Post, American Legion; Albert J. Melville, Marine Corps League; James Ryan, 10th Ward Alderman; Benjamin Storms, 2nd Ward alderman, and David Schechter Sixth Ward Alderman.

The chairman named the mayor, Melville, Storms and Sanford as a committee to investigate details including the size and cost of the tablet. They are to report back when the information is compiled.

Slump Talk May Play Role In Labor-Management Plans

New York, March 17 (AP)—The talk about a possible slump later on may play a major role in this year's labor-management tussle over wages and hours.

Fear that the boom may be in its final months is making some executives wary of taking on higher costs. And worry about a slump, according to business scuttlebutt, is making some unions concentrate on share-the-job plans through shorter weeks, and on the various fringe benefits of pensions, holidays and insurance.

Wage hike demands will be pushed, of course. The question is whether pay boosts this year will be as big as last.

Wage increases actually started sliding after wage controls ended, according to the National Foremen's Institute of New London, Conn.

During January, it reports, negotiated increases averaged around 10 cents an hour. Since controls were lifted early in February, settlements have averaged under nine cents an hour.

The 1952 wage hike pattern was around 15 cents an hour. Some management sources are now guessing that the 1953 boost for all industries will average nearer five cents. But they predict that the unions will seek compensation through side benefits.

The shorter work week is getting a big hand from some workers who contend that jobs are getting scarce because of increased productivity in some industries.

Productivity is the amount of goods produced per man-hour of labor. It frequently increases through the use of newer machinery and better work practices. Some unions are preaching that as productivity goes up, the

Energy Is Like 15,000 Tons TNT

Experiment Is Classified as Challenge to All; Wind Currents Are Rescue Problems

Atom Bomb Site, Nev., March 17 (AP)—Dawn came in with an atomic rumble today for 1,000 troops and hundreds of other observers on Yucca Flat—the soldiers and some newsmen closer than any human has been since Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Two combat battalion teams and 20 reporters only two miles from the 300-foot tower where the blast flared at 5:20 a. m. (8:20 a. m., EST) came through unscathed.

Television viewers across the nation were given a closeup view of the blast as a grim reminder of the need for civil defense.

To Show Damage

The pooled telecast of the blast itself, over the ABC, CBS and NBC networks, was one phase of a three-part educational demonstration by the Atomic Energy Commission and civil defense authorities.

The final phase was to be at 4:30 p. m., EST, today when TV cameras go back to the site to show the damage. Telecasts of the explosion were from seven miles away.

Even the eye of TV wasn't able to look directly at the blast, the camera lens having to be protected at the moment of the explosion.

The low, fiery blast sucked dust from the desert floor into a whirling, purplish-red fireball, but little heat was felt by observers on the news nob, seven miles away.

Sharp Blast

The shock of the blast was sharp and bounced over the mountains ringing the test site to crack down as far away as Pasadena, Calif., Cedar City, Utah, and points in between, it was announced here. In Las Vegas, nearest sizeable city to the site, 75 miles away, it flared a brilliant white, over nearly half the horizon, then turned yellow before finally fading away into pink. But it caused no excitement and only a few residents reported feeling the sound wave.

The test was designed primarily to gauge how houses and cars would come through a real blast. The Federal Civil Defense Administration built two two-story homes on the proving ground and scattered nearly 70 cars among the Joshua trees.

The closer of the two houses being tested was believed to be smashed, but a light appeared to be burning in the vicinity of the more distant house, 7,500 feet from the tower. The two $20,000, two-story homes were erected to help architects design houses with maximum protection.

Cloud Forms Quickly

After the first flash, the characteristic white cottony cloud formed quickly. As it rose to perhaps 13,000 feet, an ice cap appeared atop the big ball.

Within 19 minutes, wind swept the cloud southeastward, with its dirty gray highlighted by the first early rose gleams of the rising sun.

By that time the top was reported at 40,000 feet.

At first, the low purplish burst sucked up dust and dirt from the desert floor into an angry, brown mushroom. Dust swept eastward along the desert floor finally obscured both test houses. The tower from which the device was set off was believed vaporized.

Of the dozen atomic explosions viewed by some observers, this was one of the smallest. The fireball's brilliance was less and it appeared smaller than most. The AEC announced beforehand that it would have an energy output equal to 15,000 tons of TNT.

Eugene F. Bannigan, Assembly minority leader, said each of the 52 Democrats in the larger house planned to speak against the bill—no matter how long it might take.

In a spech prepared for today's debate, GOP Assemblyman Samuel Rabin of Queens said it was time "to cut through Democrat smoke screens, smears and artificial alarm and consider only the facts."

"The Democrats' position of shrill, unreasoned, distorted opposition to the Republican bill to continue rent and eviction controls on an equitable basis for two more years illustrates typically why the voters are retiring Democrats from the Legislature in increasing numbers," Rabin asserted.

The measure would continue rent-controls two more years, until June 30, 1955; permit landlords to boost their rents 15 per cent over March 1, 1943, levels; decon-

Get-Tough Policy Now Is Opposed by Cooper

Kentucky Senator Says Effect Could Sound Death Knell to Settlement

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Sen. Cooper of Kentucky said today the sort of get-tough policy toward Russia urged by two of his fellow Republicans would sound the "death knell" to any hopes of peaceful settlement.

Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) told the Senate yesterday the United States should immediately seek to persuade the United Nations to brand Russia as an aggressor in Korea.

Knowland advocated the action as part of a program to bring an immediate cold war showdown with the Communists. A second point would be a request from this country that all UN members withdraw recognition of Red China; several have extended such recognition. A third was a complete blockade of Red China.

Cites Red Treason

Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich.), appearing on an MBS radio interview last night, said the UN should take a firm stand toward what he termed "treason by Russia to the United Nations."

Ferguson said he disagreed with Cooper's contention that a get-tough policy might touch off a new world war, and he added: "I can't see that we can cause Russia to take any step she doesn't want to take."

Knowland is chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, but he emphasized ysterday he was voicing only his own convictions.

He took the floor the day after Georgi Malenkov, the new Soviet premier, had said peaceful settlement of the issues between this country and Russia was possible. Knowland's comment: "Deeds rather than words would be more impressive."

Takes Dim View

Ferguson saying he took "a very dim view" of Malenkov's speech, declared:

"Communism is really a religion of promises. They operate by promises. When they get in a tight spot, they draw back and then they come out again. I think we are generally agreed in this country that you can't believe gangsters who are in a conspiracy."

Knowland's thesis was promptly challenged on the Senate floor by Cooper, who has served as a U. S. delegate to UN General Assemblies.

Name May Reach Senate Floor on Friday to Speed Departure to Moscow

Washington, March 17 (AP)—The Eisenhower administration appeared today to have accepted the challenge to a foreign policy showdown with opponents of Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen's nomination as ambassador to Russia.

Nearly all of those opponents in the Senate are Republicans.

Friends of Bohlen said the career foreign service officer had no thought of asking President Eisenhower to withdraw his name. And White House Press Secretary James Hagerty said there was "no change" in the situation there.

The nominee had a case of measles which forced a one day delay until tomorrow of a new hearing on his appointment by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Sen. Bridges (R.-N.H.) predicted there will be from 15 to 20 votes against Bohlen in the Senate.

Has Measles

Like a mild case of measles when you're 48, that might be a little embarrassing to Bohlen, but not serious. It would require a majority of the Senate to reject his nomination—49 senators if all 96 were on hand and voted. No senator has predicted Bohlen's nomination will be turned down. Sen. Ferguson (R.-Mich.) last night predicted easy confirmation. Ferguson said he hasn't made up his mind how he will vote.

If the Foreign Relations Committee votes tomorrow, the nomination might be brought to the Senate floor for confirmation Friday. The administration has said it is anxious to speed Bohlen to Moscow for a first hand look at the new Malenkov regime.

No Intention of Withdrawal

Bridges and Sen. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) were reported to have concentrated most of their opposition efforts on bringing pressure on the State Department to have the nomination withdrawn. Wiley said he had no intimation of a withdrawal.

Those opposing the nomination base their arguments on what they say were Bohlen's close ties with the Roosevelt and Truman administrations and his support of former Secretary of State Dean Acheson's foreign policies.

Van Fleet, Collins Reports Raise Questions on Ammo

Washington, March 17 (AP)—The ammunition shortage wrangle exploded by Gen. James A. Van Fleet raised the serious question: "How much ammunition should an army shoot in attacking the enemy and defending itself?"

Fresh from Korea, Van Fleet told senators that in all the 22 months he commanded the 8th Army he didn't have all the ammunition he needed—and at times this shortage was serious.

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, army chief of staff, told the same senators: "There has never been a shortage of ammunition (in Korea) either to repel an attack that actually developed or to conduct our own operations."

By using the phrase "to repel an attack that actually developed," Collins may have been saying he thought the gunners in Korea were a bit trigger-happy over attacks that didn't develop.

But the nation, Congress and even the army is learning it takes a vastly greater amount of ammunition in Korea's warfare than was required by a force of equal size in World War Two.

Back in 1775 at the Battle of Bunker Hill, old Israel Putnam told his sharpshooting pioneers: "Men, you are all marksmen. Don't one of you fire until you see the whites of their eyes."

But any troops relying solely on Putnam's technique in Korea probably would be blasted out of their positions before they fired a shot.

Because since the start of World War Two the emphasis has not been on sharpshooting. There has been a trend toward rapid-rate "spray" firing, pumping as much lead and explosives toward the enemy as possible, even when you don't see the enemy. This is particularly true of night attacks.

This increased rate of fire in small arms and machine guns has extended also into the heavier caliber artillery pieces—eating up ammunition supplies at a far faster rate than military planners ever had anticipated.

The Pentagon when asked had no figures readily available for a precise comparison of the rate of fire in World War Two as compared to the Korean fighting. But Collins has disclosed the comparatively small UN force in Korea has fired almost as much ammunition as America's giant World War Two armies expended in both the Pacific and European Theatres during all of World War Two.

This revelation points up the fact that American troops are depending more and more on heavier rates of fire. And it strongly indicates the Pentagon top command has one concept of how much an army should shoot—while the field command has an entirely different concept.

Secretary of Defense Wilson and Secretary of the Army Stevens both have indicated there were shortages in certain types of ammunition, but that these shortages are being corrected and the situation already is much better.

Wilson said: "As of now, we have the ammunition necessary for operations on the present scale." Again it is significant that Wilson added the phrase—"for operations on the present scale."

This has raised the question that perhaps the Pentagon has

Gathering Held at Ulster Court House Hears Success Plan for Local Good

With a goal of $2,000,000 increase in payrolls in the city of Kingston, the Kingston Industrial Development Corporation, sponsored by the Kingston Chamber of Commerce to encourage industry in the city, elected 11 directors at the second mass meeting of the group held Monday evening.

Robert M. Peebles, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce committee appointed to sponsor industrial development, presided at the meeting which was held in the court house.

The meeting was attended by approximately 85 men and women who had subscribed to at least one share in the corporation. Anyone who had pledged purchase of at least one share in the corporation was entitled to cast a vote for election of eleven directors.

Cites Successful Plan

Peebles, in opening remarks, referred to a similar venture which has been initiated by the people of Keene, New Hampshire. There a plan very similar to the Kingston plan was inaugurated with the immediate goal of increasing payrolls by at least $1,000,000. The corporation sought a fund of $100,000 to be used in industrial development. Some $30,000 was raised and the committee went to work. In a year and a half Keene had eight new industries and population in the city has increased from 15,000 to 17,000 and this has been accomplished with the expenditure of only $1,500 of

Memorial Plans Discussed Monday

Mayor Names Committee to Check Stone for High School Lawn

Plans for the erection of a new city veterans' memorial were advanced at a meeting of the Memorial Tablet Committee in the office of Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, city hall, last night.

It was agreed generally that a huge stone in the rough should be erected to honor veterans of all wars and campaigns, and the site tentatively favored is the high school lawn.

Committee Members

Mayor Newkirk is honorary chairman of the committee and James M. Krom, of the Sons of Union Veterans, is chairman. The other members are: Harold A. Sanford, Company M. Veterans Association; Charles R. Stall, Colonial Comp, United Spanish War Veterans; Bernhardt S. Kramer, Kingston Post, American Legion; Albert J. Melville, Marine Corps League; James Ryan, 10th Ward Alderman; Benjamin Storms, 2nd Ward alderman, and David Schechter Sixth Ward Alderman.

The chairman named the mayor, Melville, Storms and Sanford as a committee to investigate details including the size and cost of the tablet. They are to report back when the information is compiled.

Slump Talk May Play Role In Labor-Management Plans

New York, March 17 (AP)—The talk about a possible slump later on may play a major role in this year's labor-management tussle over wages and hours.

Fear that the boom may be in its final months is making some executives wary of taking on higher costs. And worry about a slump, according to business scuttlebutt, is making some unions concentrate on share-the-job plans through shorter weeks, and on the various fringe benefits of pensions, holidays and insurance.

Wage hike demands will be pushed, of course. The question is whether pay boosts this year will be as big as last.

Wage increases actually started sliding after wage controls ended, according to the National Foremen's Institute of New London, Conn.

During January, it reports, negotiated increases averaged around 10 cents an hour. Since controls were lifted early in February, settlements have averaged under nine cents an hour.

The 1952 wage hike pattern was around 15 cents an hour. Some management sources are now guessing that the 1953 boost for all industries will average nearer five cents. But they predict that the unions will seek compensation through side benefits.

The shorter work week is getting a big hand from some workers who contend that jobs are getting scarce because of increased productivity in some industries.

Productivity is the amount of goods produced per man-hour of labor. It frequently increases through the use of newer machinery and better work practices. Some unions are preaching that as productivity goes up, the

Energy Is Like 15,000 Tons TNT

Experiment Is Classified as Challenge to All; Wind Currents Are Rescue Problems

Atom Bomb Site, Nev., March 17 (AP)—Dawn came in with an atomic rumble today for 1,000 troops and hundreds of other observers on Yucca Flat—the soldiers and some newsmen closer than any human has been since Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Two combat battalion teams and 20 reporters only two miles from the 300-foot tower where the blast flared at 5:20 a. m. (8:20 a. m., EST) came through unscathed.

Television viewers across the nation were given a closeup view of the blast as a grim reminder of the need for civil defense.

To Show Damage

The pooled telecast of the blast itself, over the ABC, CBS and NBC networks, was one phase of a three-part educational demonstration by the Atomic Energy Commission and civil defense authorities.

The final phase was to be at 4:30 p. m., EST, today when TV cameras go back to the site to show the damage. Telecasts of the explosion were from seven miles away.

Even the eye of TV wasn't able to look directly at the blast, the camera lens having to be protected at the moment of the explosion.

The low, fiery blast sucked dust from the desert floor into a whirling, purplish-red fireball, but little heat was felt by observers on the news nob, seven miles away.

Sharp Blast

The shock of the blast was sharp and bounced over the mountains ringing the test site to crack down as far away as Pasadena, Calif., Cedar City, Utah, and points in between, it was announced here. In Las Vegas, nearest sizeable city to the site, 75 miles away, it flared a brilliant white, over nearly half the horizon, then turned yellow before finally fading away into pink. But it caused no excitement and only a few residents reported feeling the sound wave.

The test was designed primarily to gauge how houses and cars would come through a real blast. The Federal Civil Defense Administration built two two-story homes on the proving ground and scattered nearly 70 cars among the Joshua trees.

The closer of the two houses being tested was believed to be smashed, but a light appeared to be burning in the vicinity of the more distant house, 7,500 feet from the tower. The two $20,000, two-story homes were erected to help architects design houses with maximum protection.

Cloud Forms Quickly

After the first flash, the characteristic white cottony cloud formed quickly. As it rose to perhaps 13,000 feet, an ice cap appeared atop the big ball.

Within 19 minutes, wind swept the cloud southeastward, with its dirty gray highlighted by the first early rose gleams of the rising sun.

By that time the top was reported at 40,000 feet.

At first, the low purplish burst sucked up dust and dirt from the desert floor into an angry, brown mushroom. Dust swept eastward along the desert floor finally obscured both test houses. The tower from which the device was set off was believed vaporized.

Of the dozen atomic explosions viewed by some observers, this was one of the smallest. The fireball's brilliance was less and it appeared smaller than most. The AEC announced beforehand that it would have an energy output equal to 15,000 tons of TNT.

Patricia Davite Missing

Police were notified at noon today that Patricia Davite, 15, of 165 Abeel street has been missing from home since Sunday. Four feet, 11 inches tall, she weighs about 110 pounds, has brown eyes and hair and was wearing a black, pleated skirt, white turtleneck sweater, white socks, tan loafers, and a yellow plaid jacket. She had been employed part-time at the Benedictine Hospital, and has not been seen since she left there Sunday.

Urges Family Aid

Philadelphia, March 17 (AP)—A Jesuit priest urged today that a federal aid system be set up to provide for outside financial assistance to "the parents of larger families" in the U. S. The proposal came from the Rev. Francis J. Corley, S. J., of the Institute of Social Order at St. Louis University and editor of the monthly magazine "social order." In an address prepared for delivery at a meeting of the National Catholic Family Life Conference, Father Corley declared "it is imperative we stop ignoring the personal and social harm that results every day from the serious imbalances between wages and needs." He advocated monthly payments of $12 for the third child in every family, $10 for the fourth child and $8 for the fifth and each succeeding child.

Richardson Dies

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Seth W. Richardson, 73, former chairman of the government's Loyalty Review Board, died at his home today after a long illness. Richardson, a Republican who was an assistant attorney general in the Hoover administration, had a long career in Washington. He was chairman of the Subversive Activities Control Board under President Truman. He served, too, as chief counsel for the Senate-House commitee which investigated the Pearl Harbor disaster in 1946.

Ex-Commissioner Dies

Oneida, March 17 (AP)—Holton Van Velzer Noyes, a former state agriculture commissioner, died last night at his apartment in nearby Kenwood after a three-year illness. He was 82. Noyes served as commissioner of agriculture and markets in New York from 1937 until 1944.

Compulsory Auto Insurance Downed

Albany, N. Y., March 17 (AP)—Gov. Dewey's proposal for compulsory automobile liability insurance has been virtually killed by Republican Legislators, it was learned today.

The plan, which has drawn stiff protests from insurance companies, is a major part of Dewey's proposed highway-safety program.

It was learned from a reliable GOP source that Republican Legislators had agreed to go along with Dewey's proposed $100,000 survey of the state's judiciary system if the Governor did not push his automobile insurance program.

The court-system study was approved last night by the Senate Finance Committee and is due for a floor vote tomorrow.

Police Hunt Driver Of Upset Truck

Area state police today were attempting to locate the driver of a truck which overturned near the state weighing station on Route 9W near Highland early this morning.

Troopers of the Highland station were notified at 1 a. m. that a 1944 Ford truck bearing Connecticut license plates had overturned.

On arrival of troopers at the accident scene, a short distance from the state police Highland barracks, they found the driver had left, apparently by hitchhiking.

Troopers said they learned "unofficially" that the truck had been stolen from Waterbury, Conn.

Other area authorities were notified to apprehend the driver for questioning, and roadblocks were set up, including one at Kingston by local police. Up to noon today, however, the driver had not been located.

large share of the $1,168,000,000 in assets estimated to be in its possession in the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Under the government's bookkeeping system, any funds realized would go to the treasury as revenues and would help toward balancing the budget. Former President Truman estimated the deficit in the next fiscal year at nearly 10 billion dollars.

Included in RFC assets is a net of $679,639,000 in loans and investments, after estimated losses, and $47,744,000 in other assets. In its war-supporting program, the RFC reported $439,606,000 production facilities and liquidation of foreclosures, plus $1,075,000 in its small defense plants administration.

Sees Big Savings

Byrd noted that the RFC has estimated it would employ 1,995 persons during the next fiscal year and would use $13,300,000 of its own funds for administrative expenses.

He said he thinks the agency's abolition would mean some immediate savings in payrolls and administrative expenses.

ground cleared, trucks carrying the troops from their forward positions could be seen moving slowly towards their maneuver objective many minutes after the blast.

George Owen, of Phoenix, Arizona's Civil Defense director, said that in his opinion today's blast "proves that wind currents would have a definite effect on rescue problems."

He said the cloud did not lift sufficiently for rescue work to be done immediately and was too widespread for effective work in case of atomic disaster. Owen was present at last year's drop from a plane, detonated at 3,500 feet.

While the burst did little to warm the spectators on News Nob, including Civil Defense leaders from various parts of the country, it certainly thrilled the vast majority. "Awesome," "fascinating and intriguing" and "a challenge for all humanity" were some of the reactions.

Planes in Test

Florence, Italy, March 17 (AP)—Planes of six nations were poised to give southern Europe's air defenses another workout today in Exercise New Moon. Opening the nine-day test yesterday, French and Italian attack bombers made mock assaults on three Italian cities, Pisa, Guidonia and Brindisi. Headquarters of allied air forces in southern Europe here, directing the tests, said the attacks were beaten off successfully by Italian fighters.

Squirrel Took Flags

Lansing, Mich., March 17 (AP)—Workers at Evergreen Cemetery were puzzled and irritated in recent weeks by disappearance of more than 20 small American flags from graves of World War 2 veterans. Today, they found the culprit but figure there is nothing they can do in the way of punishment. A crew of workers, pruning an evergreen, found the flags neatly woven into the nest of a brown squirrel who made his home in the tree.

Cowan Is Awarded $5,000; Negligence Actions Taken Up

Murray Cowan was awarded $5,000 damages against Maynard DeWitt of Kerhonkson Monday in an action for breach of contract and fraud arising out a claim by plaintiff that DeWitt had promised to supply water to a development which Cowan was interested in at Kerhonkson. Cowan charged that he sought water for the development from DeWitt but that the water was not forthcoming, although he alleged he had been assured water would be made available. Philip Korn appeared for plaintiff and William A. Kaercher for the defendant.

Two negligence actions arising out of collision at Highway 9-W and Milton Turnpike on August 16, 1951, which resulted in the death of Samuel Waltman, were taken up for trial before Justice Elsworth and a jury. Molly Waltman, widow of Samuel Waltman of Newburgh, seeks $200,000 damages for the death of her husband. Rusk and Rusk, with N. LeVan Haver of counsel appear for Mrs. Waltman. Mr. Waltman was engaged in the apple buying business at Milton and it is alleged his earnings were upwards of $12,000 a year. He was 61 years old.

Mrs. Waltman brings her action against the Central Greyhound Lines, Inc., and William Herman Shutter, driver of the bus. Cook & Cook appear for the bus company and the driver in that action.

Shutter in turn brings an action against the estate of Mr. Waltman for injuries which he sustained. Mr. Schoonmaker of Wiswall, Wood, Olson and Schoonmaker represent the driver in that action and Archibald R. MacKenan appears as defense counsel in that action.

On August 16, 1951, Mr. Waltman was driving his DeSoto car over Milton Turnpike. He proceeded to the intersection and intended to continue east to Milton. The bus was traveling north toward Kingston.

At the intersection there is a blinker light which blinks amber for 9-W traffic and red on the Milton road. There is also a stop sign at the intersection governing traffic on the Milton Turnpike.

It is conteded by Mrs. Waltman in her action that the Waltman car stopped at the intersection and then proceeded to cross the main road. At the corner, Trooper Elliott Johnson testified there was a house near the intersection which limited view to the south as cars approached the interesection on the Milton Turnpike coming east. A tree and bush also obstructs view to an extent.

Plaintiffs claim the bus was traveling at a fast rate and that it was not in the view of Waltman as he started across the main road. It is further contended that his car was across the intersection and on the easterly side on Milton road when the bus struck it after the driver turned to the right and that the collision took place off the main road.

Trooper First Witness

Trooper Johnson testified as the first witness that there were skid marks on 9W for a distance of 153 feet to the point of impact and that the bus was some 60 feet further north of the impact point when he arrived. There were also skid marks of the Waltman car on the pavement of Milton road about 1½ feet from the easterly edge of the concrete of 9W.

Shutter seeks $15,000 damages for back injuries, although he continued to operate the bus after the accident. He claims he is required to wear a device while driving a bus and suffers back pains.

Plaintiff claims the bus was pulled to the right pass ahead of the Waltman car in an effort to "beat him to the intersection". The driver of the bus claims he was traveling about 35 miles an hour as he approached the intersection and that the Waltman car "shot" out ahead of him.

Plaintiff claims the Waltman car landed some 30 or 40 feet from where it was hit.

Schoonmaker in his opening for Shutter, alleged the Waltman car did not stop at the intersection.

Postmasters to Meet

There will be a meeting of the Ulster County Postmasters' Association at 8 p. m. Thursday at the Kingston Post Office at which time Inspector Robert H. Patricia Davite Missing

Police were notified at noon today that Patricia Davite, 15, of 165 Abeel street has been missing from home since Sunday. Four feet, 11 inches tall, she weighs about 110 pounds, has brown eyes and hair and was wearing a black, pleated skirt, white turtleneck sweater, white socks, tan loafers, and a yellow plaid jacket. She had been employed part-time at the Benedictine Hospital, and has not been seen since she left there Sunday.

Urges Family Aid

Philadelphia, March 17 (AP)—A Jesuit priest urged today that a federal aid system be set up to provide for outside financial assistance to "the parents of larger families" in the U. S. The proposal came from the Rev. Francis J. Corley, S. J., of the Institute of Social Order at St. Louis University and editor of the monthly magazine "social order." In an address prepared for delivery at a meeting of the National Catholic Family Life Conference, Father Corley declared "it is imperative we stop ignoring the personal and social harm that results every day from the serious imbalances between wages and needs." He advocated monthly payments of $12 for the third child in every family, $10 for the fourth child and $8 for the fifth and each succeeding child.

Richardson Dies

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Seth W. Richardson, 73, former chairman of the government's Loyalty Review Board, died at his home today after a long illness. Richardson, a Republican who was an assistant attorney general in the Hoover administration, had a long career in Washington. He was chairman of the Subversive Activities Control Board under President Truman. He served, too, as chief counsel for the Senate-House commitee which investigated the Pearl Harbor disaster in 1946.

Ex-Commissioner Dies

Oneida, March 17 (AP)—Holton Van Velzer Noyes, a former state agriculture commissioner, died last night at his apartment in nearby Kenwood after a three-year illness. He was 82. Noyes served as commissioner of agriculture and markets in New York from 1937 until 1944.

Compulsory Auto Insurance Downed

Albany, N. Y., March 17 (AP)—Gov. Dewey's proposal for compulsory automobile liability insurance has been virtually killed by Republican Legislators, it was learned today.

The plan, which has drawn stiff protests from insurance companies, is a major part of Dewey's proposed highway-safety program.

It was learned from a reliable GOP source that Republican Legislators had agreed to go along with Dewey's proposed $100,000 survey of the state's judiciary system if the Governor did not push his automobile insurance program.

The court-system study was approved last night by the Senate Finance Committee and is due for a floor vote tomorrow.

Police Hunt Driver Of Upset Truck

Area state police today were attempting to locate the driver of a truck which overturned near the state weighing station on Route 9W near Highland early this morning.

Troopers of the Highland station were notified at 1 a. m. that a 1944 Ford truck bearing Connecticut license plates had overturned.

On arrival of troopers at the accident scene, a short distance from the state police Highland barracks, they found the driver had left, apparently by hitchhiking.

Troopers said they learned "unofficially" that the truck had been stolen from Waterbury, Conn.

Other area authorities were notified to apprehend the driver for questioning, and roadblocks were set up, including one at Kingston by local police. Up to noon today, however, the driver had not been located.

Apparntly no one was injured and no other vehicle was involved in the accident.

See RFC on Way

large share of the $1,168,000,000 in assets estimated to be in its possession in the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Under the government's bookkeeping system, any funds realized would go to the treasury as revenues and would help toward balancing the budget. Former President Truman estimated the deficit in the next fiscal year at nearly 10 billion dollars.

Included in RFC assets is a net of $679,639,000 in loans and investments, after estimated losses, and $47,744,000 in other assets. In its war-supporting program, the RFC reported $439,606,000 production facilities and liquidation of foreclosures, plus $1,075,000 in its small defense plants administration.

Sees Big Savings

Byrd noted that the RFC has estimated it would employ 1,995 persons during the next fiscal year and would use $13,300,000 of its own funds for administrative expenses.

He said he thinks the agency's abolition would mean some immediate savings in payrolls and administrative expenses.

ground cleared, trucks carrying the troops from their forward positions could be seen moving slowly towards their maneuver objective many minutes after the blast.

George Owen, of Phoenix, Arizona's Civil Defense director, said that in his opinion today's blast "proves that wind currents would have a definite effect on rescue problems."

He said the cloud did not lift sufficiently for rescue work to be done immediately and was too widespread for effective work in case of atomic disaster. Owen was present at last year's drop from a plane, detonated at 3,500 feet.

While the burst did little to warm the spectators on News Nob, including Civil Defense leaders from various parts of the country, it certainly thrilled the vast majority. "Awesome," "fascinating and intriguing" and "a challenge for all humanity" were some of the reactions.

Planes in Test

Florence, Italy, March 17 (AP)—Planes of six nations were poised to give southern Europe's air defenses another workout today in Exercise New Moon. Opening the nine-day test yesterday, French and Italian attack bombers made mock assaults on three Italian cities, Pisa, Guidonia and Brindisi. Headquarters of allied air forces in southern Europe here, directing the tests, said the attacks were beaten off successfully by Italian fighters.

Squirrel Took Flags

Lansing, Mich., March 17 (AP)—Workers at Evergreen Cemetery were puzzled and irritated in recent weeks by disappearance of more than 20 small American flags from graves of World War 2 veterans. Today, they found the culprit but figure there is nothing they can do in the way of punishment. A crew of workers, pruning an evergreen, found the flags neatly woven into the nest of a brown squirrel who made his home in the tree.

Old Soldier Buried

Rochester, March 17 (AP)—James A. Hard, next to the last blue-clad veteran of the Civil War, was buried yesterday with the battlefield ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic. A thousand persons marched in the funeral procession for the 111-year-old soldier.

Late Bulletin

Washington, March 17 (AP)—The government today abolished all remaining price controls.

Cowan Is Awarded $5,000; Negligence Actions Taken Up

Murray Cowan was awarded $5,000 damages against Maynard DeWitt of Kerhonkson Monday in an action for breach of contract and fraud arising out a claim by plaintiff that DeWitt had promised to supply water to a development which Cowan was interested in at Kerhonkson. Cowan charged that he sought water for the development from DeWitt but that the water was not forthcoming, although he alleged he had been assured water would be made available. Philip Korn appeared for plaintiff and William A. Kaercher for the defendant.

Two negligence actions arising out of collision at Highway 9-W and Milton Turnpike on August 16, 1951, which resulted in the death of Samuel Waltman, were taken up for trial before Justice Elsworth and a jury. Molly Waltman, widow of Samuel Waltman of Newburgh, seeks $200,000 damages for the death of her husband. Rusk and Rusk, with N. LeVan Haver of counsel appear for Mrs. Waltman. Mr. Waltman was engaged in the apple buying business at Milton and it is alleged his earnings were upwards of $12,000 a year. He was 61 years old.

Mrs. Waltman brings her action against the Central Greyhound Lines, Inc., and William Herman Shutter, driver of the bus. Cook & Cook appear for the bus company and the driver in that action.

Shutter in turn brings an action against the estate of Mr. Waltman for injuries which he sustained. Mr. Schoonmaker of Wiswall, Wood, Olson and Schoonmaker represent the driver in that action and Archibald R. MacKennan appears as defense counsel in that action.

On August 16, 1951, Mr. Waltman was driving his DeSoto car over Milton Turnpike. He proceeded to the intersection and intended to continue east to Milton. The bus was traveling north toward Kingston.

At the intersection there is a blinker light which blinks amber for 9-W traffic and red on the Milton road. There is also a stop sign at the intersection governing traffic on the Milton Turnpike.

It is conteded by Mrs. Waltman in her action that the Waltman car stopped at the intersection and then proceeded to cross the main road. At the corner, Trooper Elliott Johnson testified there was a house near the intersection which limited view to the south as cars approached the interesection on the Milton Turnpike coming east. A tree and bush also obstructs view to an extent.

Plaintiffs claim the bus was traveling at a fast rate and that it was not in the view of Waltman as he started across the main road. It is further contended that his car was across the intersection and on the easterly side on Milton road when the bus struck it after the driver turned to the right and that the collision took place off the main road.

Trooper First Witness

Trooper Johnson testified as the first witness that there were skid marks on 9W for a distance of 153 feet to the point of impact and that the bus was some 60 feet further north of the impact point when he arrived. There were also skid marks of the Waltman car on the pavement of Milton road about 1½ feet from the easterly edge of the concrete of 9W.

Shutter seeks $15,000 damages for back injuries, although he continued to operate the bus after the accident. He claims he is required to wear a device while driving a bus and suffers back pains.

Plaintiff claims the bus was pulled to the right pass ahead of the Waltman car in an effort to "beat him to the intersection". The driver of the bus claims he was traveling about 35 miles an hour as he approached the intersection and that the Waltman car "shot" out ahead of him.

Plaintiff claims the Waltman car landed some 30 or 40 feet from where it was hit.

Schoonmaker in his opening for Shutter, alleged the Waltman car did not stop at the intersection.

Wicks in Senate With Shillelagh, Green Sash

Albany, N. Y., March 17 (AP)—Green carnations blossomed all over the State Capitol today—in the lapels of Legislators.

Majority Leader Arthur H. Wicks showed up in the Senate with a shillelagh and a green sash.

And the bill calendars in both the Senate and Assembly were printed in green ink—a Legislative tradition on St. Patrick's Day.

U. S. Infantrymen Wipe Out 350 Chinese Attacking Force

Seoul, March 17 (AP)—American infantrymen today virtually wiped out a force of more than 350 Chinese Reds attacking U. S. Second Division positions on the Korean western front.

An Eighth Army briefing officer said 315 Communists were estimated killed or wounded in the bloody, close-quarter battle which raged 7½ hours inside the allied trench network on Little Gibraltar Hill.

Adlai Stevenson, U. S. 1952 Democratic presidential nominee, watched part of the fighting from an observation bunker on a nearby hill. Two Chinese artillery shells exploded on the hill—some 350 yards from the bunker—but the former Illinois governor was not even shaken.

Stevenson wore olive drab, an armored vest, combat boots and a helmet.

The Chinese attempt to dent the allied line in the area—about nine miles west of Yonchon—resulted in the heaviest ground fighting in several weeks.

"It was a knockdown, dragout fight for hours," commented a division spokesman.

Two reinforced Chinese companies began the assault at 2 a. m. under cover of a 3,000-round artillery and mortar barrage. The Reds scrambled up Little Gibraltar's slopes and clawed through allied barbed wire to get into the trenches.

American machine guns mowed down scores of Chinese on the slope and in the barbed wire. The division spokesman said those who reached the crest were killed, wounded or beaten back by Americans battling with sidearms, grenades, automatic weapons, bayonets and—in some cases—rifle butts.

The spokesman said two Chinese companies trying to back up the assault were held at bay by a curtain of allied artillery fire.

The Eighth Army briefing officer reported later that 65 Chinese dead were counted, another 130 estimated killed and at least 120 estimated wounded. The Americans completed mopping up the battle area at 10 p. m.

Negro Bravest Man

The briefing officer said an American battalion commander, a lieutenant colonel, led a platoon into the thick of the fight and was wounded but was saved by a Negro who stood over him in a trench.

The battalion commander, describing the action at a first aid station, said the Negro killed Chinese "left and right" with his rifle. He added that "he was the bravest man I ever saw."

The officer was given the Silver Star late today by Maj. Gen. James Fry, Second Division commander. His name cannot be disclosed until relatives are notified of his wounds.

Division officers were trying to learn the name of the Negro soldier. It was not known whether he survived.

American casualties were not disclosed. However, the briefing officer said several soldiers were wounded by a Chinese who came forward with his hands up, in a gesture of surrender, and then pulled the pin on a hand grenade. The Chinese was killed by the blast.

Other Thrusts Halted

Elsewhere on the battlefront allied troops hurled back eight small Communist probing thrusts. These were reported northeast of Bunker Hill on the western front; north of Chorwon and northeast of Kumhwa on the central front; and near Luke the Gook's Castle on the eastern front.

In the air, allied fighter-bombers ranged over Communist supply lines striking at targets of opportunity. The Fifth Air Force reported B-26 bombers hit 32 trucks near Kumchon in north-central Korea.

U. S. Sabre jets patrolled MIG Alley in far northwest Korea, but no Red jets had risen to challenge them late today.

Sending New Jets

In Washington the navy announced Monday it is sending two new types of jets to Korea—both considered a match for the Russian-built MIG-15s. They are the F-9-F6 Cougars and F-J-2 Furies, both swept-wing interceptors.

Vice Adm. Ralph Ofstie, new chief of Naval Air Operations, said two squadrons equipped with the new planes are forming on the U. S. west coast to join Task Force 77 off Korea's east coast.

$850,000 Waste

Albert C. Veldhuis, chief engineer of the Wind Turbine Co., of Westchester, Pa., tells the McCarthy Senate Investigations subcommittee, March 16, that the Voice of America has wasted $850,000 on a contract with his firm in construction of its transmitter towers because of unusual specifications, unnecessary and undesirable.

Finerty Commanded Legion Post 1934-35

In listing the names of commanders of Kingston Post 150, American Legion, yesterday in a story summarizing the history of the local post the name of John J. Finerty, Jr., was inadvertently omitted.

Finerty, who is principal of School 5, served as post commander during the 1934-35 administration. Eugene Cornwell was elected for the year 1934-35 but was forced to resign in order to accept the position of alderman to which he had been elected. A second election was then held and Finerty was named.

Has Same Ailments

Berlin, March 17 (AP)—East German President Wilhelm Pieck was reported suffering today from pneumonia and pleurisy, the same malady which took the life of Czech President Klement Gottwald last week. Pieck, however, didn't catch his at Stalin's funeral. The West Berlin anti-Communist "Fighting Group Against Inhumanity" said the 77-year-old Communist veteran is in an East Berlin hospital. Pieck has been conspicuously absent from any public function, and from his presidential office, since March 5—the day Stalin died. He did not go to Moscow for the Red dictator's funeral nor did he take part in the memorial rites in East Berlin.

Would Recite Pledge

Albany, March 17 (AP)—A pledge of allegiance to the American flag would be part of the opening ceremony in all public school classrooms under a bill passed by the Assembly and sent to the Senate. The measure cleared the larger House by a unanimous vote last night. At present, the opening patriotic ceremony includes a salute to the flag.

Grange News

Hurley

At a meeting of Hurley Grange last week it was announced by Mrs. W. Snyder that a rummage sale would be held March 18 at 106 Broadway. Articles may be left with Mrs. Snyder or Mrs. Stauble. Mrs. V. Goetchius, lecturer, requested members interested in joining a county choral group to meet at the Rosendale Grange Hall at 8 p. m. Wednesday, March 18. The group will sing at the 50th anniversary of Pomona Grange April 16. Brother Snyder gave the Pomona report.

Homawack and Patroon Granges were visiting granges. The program consisted of a duet by Joan Robisch and Sandra Schoupp, songs, quizzes, a skit and a poem.

Up to Governor Now On Rain Licenses

Albany, March 17 (AP) — Rainmakers will have to obtain licenses before operating in New York state if Gov. Dewey adds his signature to a bill passed by the Legislature.

The Senate approved the measure last night. It would require the State Water Power and Control Commission to hold a public hearing on each license application for a rain making project.

Another provision would authorize the commission to require a bond from the applicant, and an agreement releasing the state from any liability for damages.

Sub Test Near End

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Twenty-three sailors will emerge at New London, Conn., on Thursday from the sealed submarine in which they have spent two months. They spent the time in the craft in a navy experiment designed to study the effects on a submarine crew of prolonged submersion, such as should be possible in atomic-powered craft. The men have been aboard the submarine Haddock. Although physical conditions have been similar to those in a prolonged submersion at sea, the men have had daily contact with the outside world through visits of medical officers.

Get-Tough Policy

Would Wait and See

Sparkman, who also has been a delegate to the UN, said it was impossible now to tell whether Malenkov's speech really had any substance. But he said of Knowland's plan to brand Russia an aggressor:

"It might be well to wait and see before doing anything to push this right now."

Cooper expressed to his colleagues fear that the Knowland proposal "would really lead to outright war with Russia." He later edited that in the Congressional Record to substitute "could" for "would."

However, in the interview he said "the effect would be the death knell of any possibility of peaceful settlement with the Russians."

Knowland said that Andrei Vishinsky, in a recent UN speech, had admitted Russia was supplying arms to Red China, and he declared that in view of this it was time to call a spade a spade.

Vishinsky acknowledged in a speech to the UN on March 2 that the Soviets are selling arms to the Chinese Reds but said this was in accordance with the Moscow-Peiping treaty of mutual friendship.

May File Jointly

Washington, March 17 (AP)—The U. S. Tax Court has ruled that a joint income tax return may be filed by a couple having an interlocutory divorce decree which has not become final. The decision, handed down yesterday, involved Marriner S. Eccles, former chairman of the Federal Reserve Board who is now a banker in Utah. Eccles filed a joint return with Maysie Y. Eccles, his divorced wife, for the year 1949. Their preliminary divorce decree was granted Aug. 2 of that year, to become final after six months. The Internal Revenue Bureau maintained Eccles had no right to file a joint return, and billed him for the $5,479 for which he would have been additionally liable as a divorced man. The tax court ruled against the bureau's position.

Churchill Greets Tito

British Prime Minister Winston Churchill shakes hands with President Tito of Yugoslavia, wearing a naval uniform, at Westminster Pier, London, March 16, as the Yugoslav leader arrived for an official visit. Tito, the first head of a Communist state ever to visit Britain, came ashore from the Yugoslav naval training ship Galeb which brought him to Britain. (AP Wirephoto via radio from London).

Query Cornell Student In Death of Bausch

Ithaca, March 17 (AP)—Authorities, who said they had found no evidence of foul play, today sought the cause of death of a Cornell University junior whose body was found in a campus ravine.

Dr. Ralph J. Low, Tompkins county coroner, said last night other students were being questioned in an effort to trace the movements on Saturday night of Kenneth Ralph Bausch of 195-15 886th Rd., St. Albans.

Dr. Low said Bausch, 20, apparently had died early Sunday. His body was found in shallow water in the Ravine yesterday.

The coroner withheld a verdict pending further investigation.

To Honor Truman

New York, March 17 (AP)—Former President Truman will receive a 1952 Stephen Wise award of the American Jewish Congress for giving "inspiring leadership in the continuing campaign to extend full equality of rights to all Americans." The Congress named Truman yesterday to receive one of three awards, which carry a cash value of $1,000 each. Others go to Josef Sprinzak, speaker of the Israel Parliament, for contributions to the growth of Israel; and to Dr. Hayim Greenberg, chairman of the Department of Culture and Education of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, for service to Jewish culture and scholarship. Greenberg died Saturday. The awards, set up in 1949, honor the late Rabbi Stephen S. Wise.

Held for Burglary After 'Revenge' Wrecking of Lodge

State police of the Wurtsboro substation on Monday arrested a 67-year-old man who, according to his statement as related by the troopers, sought "revenge" against his employer by making shambles of the interior of a summer lodge where he worked.

Charged with third degree burglary, William W. Kendall, 67, whose last known home address was Brooklyn, was arraigned before Peace Justice Clarence Newhouse of Bloomingburg and was ordered held for action of a Sullivan county grand jury.

Damage Estimate $2,000

Kendall was arrested on Monday at the Vegetarian Manor at Masden Lake on Route 17 between Wurtsboro and Monticello. He had come to the unoccupied summer place by bus on March 10 and in the interim had taken an axe to the furnishings, fixtures and woodwork, causing damage estimated by the owner, William Cherry of Lockwood, N. J., at about $2,000, according to the charges filed against Kendall.

Kendall told troopers that he had been employed by Cherry at various times and that he was seeking revenge, claiming that Cherry owed him overtime pay, the troopers revealed.

Car Overturns

An automobile owned and operated by John H. Fatum, 24 South Washington avenue, turned over on its left side after leaving the paved portion of Route 32 and striking the shoulder of the highway in the rock cut near the DeWitt Lake road intersection about a mile and a half south of Kingston, according to a sheriff's office report. No personal injuries were reported. The accident was reported to the sheriff's office about 2:25 a. m. today, and a deputy was dispatched to direct traffic until the vehicle could be towed away.

Scuttle Ship

Panama, Panama, March 17 (AP)—Firemen scuttled the Ecuadorean ship Ecuador in the Canal Zone's Cristobal harbor last night after an unsuccessful nine-hour battle to put out a fire racking the 882-ton-vessel. The ship was sunk to prevent the spread of flames to other shipping in the port. The Ecuador, a former U. S. Navy minesweeper owned by the Tropical Fruit Co., has been on a regular run between New Orleans and Guayaquil.

Phonogenic is an adjective describing a pleasing voice, especially one well suited for broadcasting or recording.

Legislation Tabled On Sidewalk Suits

Albany, March 17 (AP)—Legislation to make it harder for persons to sue villages for injuries suffered because of defective sidewalks was nearly killed last night in the Senate.

The measure failed to get the required 29 votes for passage and it was tabled for possible later consideration. The vote, 28 in favor and 25 opposed, crossed party lines.

The bill would have made it impossible for a person to sue unless notice that a sidewalk or crosswalk was defective had been on file with village trustees for 48 hours.

Republican Assemblyman John J. Burns of Sea Cliff, L. I., introduced the bill.

Barringer 'Fair'

The condition of George Barringer, 20, of Ellenville, was reported as "fair" at Veterans Memorial Hospital this morning. Barringer was the driver and only occupant of an automobile which plunged down a 30-foot embankment into the Rondout creek at Napanoch on Sunday, according to a state police report.

U. S. Infantrymen Wipe Out 350 Chinese Attacking Force

Seoul, March 17 (AP)—American infantrymen today virtually wiped out a force of more than 350 Chinese Reds attacking U. S. Second Division positions on the Korean western front.

An Eighth Army briefing officer said 315 Communists were estimated killed or wounded in the bloody, close-quarter battle which raged 7½ hours inside the allied trench network on Little Gibraltar Hill.

Adlai Stevenson, U. S. 1952 Democratic presidential nominee, watched part of the fighting from an observation bunker on a nearby hill. Two Chinese artillery shells exploded on the hill—some 350 yards from the bunker—but the former Illinois governor was not even shaken.

Stevenson wore olive drab, an armored vest, combat boots and a helmet.

The Chinese attempt to dent the allied line in the area—about nine miles west of Yonchon—resulted in the heaviest ground fighting in several weeks.

"It was a knockdown, dragout fight for hours," commented a division spokesman.

Two reinforced Chinese companies began the assault at 2 a. m. under cover of a 3,000-round artillery and mortar barrage. The Reds scrambled up Little Gibraltar's slopes and clawed through allied barbed wire to get into the trenches.

American machine guns mowed down scores of Chinese on the slope and in the barbed wire. The division spokesman said those who reached the crest were killed, wounded or beaten back by Americans battling with sidearms, grenades, automatic weapons, bayonets and—in some cases—rifle butts.

The spokesman said two Chinese companies trying to back up the assault were held at bay by a curtain of allied artillery fire.

The Eighth Army briefing officer reported later that 65 Chinese dead were counted, another 130 estimated killed and at least 120 estimated wounded. The Americans completed mopping up the battle area at 10 p. m.

Negro Bravest Man

The briefing officer said an American battalion commander, a lieutenant colonel, led a platoon into the thick of the fight and was wounded but was saved by a Negro who stood over him in a trench.

The battalion commander, describing the action at a first aid station, said the Negro killed Chinese "left and right" with his rifle. He added that "he was the bravest man I ever saw."

The officer was given the Silver Star late today by Maj. Gen. James Fry, Second Division commander. His name cannot be disclosed until relatives are notified of his wounds.

Division officers were trying to learn the name of the Negro soldier. It was not known whether he survived.

American casualties were not disclosed. However, the briefing officer said several soldiers were wounded by a Chinese who came forward with his hands up, in a gesture of surrender, and then pulled the pin on a hand grenade. The Chinese was killed by the blast.

Other Thrusts Halted

Elsewhere on the battlefront allied troops hurled back eight small Communist probing thrusts. These were reported northeast of Bunker Hill on the western front; north of Chorwon and northeast of Kumhwa on the central front; and near Luke the Gook's Castle on the eastern front.

In the air, allied fighter-bombers ranged over Communist supply lines striking at targets of opportunity. The Fifth Air Force reported B-26 bombers hit 32 trucks near Kumchon in north-central Korea.

U. S. Sabre jets patrolled MIG Alley in far northwest Korea, but no Red jets had risen to challenge them late today.

Sending New Jets

In Washington the navy announced Monday it is sending two new types of jets to Korea—both considered a match for the Russian-built MIG-15s. They are the F-9-F6 Cougars and F-J-2 Furies, both swept-wing interceptors.

Vice Adm. Ralph Ofstie, new chief of Naval Air Operations, said two squadrons equipped with the new planes are forming on the U. S. west coast to join Task Force 77 off Korea's east coast.

$850,000 Waste

Albert C. Veldhuis, chief engineer of the Wind Turbine Co., of Westchester, Pa., tells the McCarthy Senate Investigations subcommittee, March 16, that the Voice of America has wasted $850,000 on a contract with his firm in construction of its transmitter towers because of unusual specifications, unnecessary and undesirable.

Finerty Commanded Legion Post 1934-35

In listing the names of commanders of Kingston Post 150, American Legion, yesterday in a story summarizing the history of the local post the name of John J. Finerty, Jr., was inadvertently omitted.

Finerty, who is principal of School 5, served as post commander during the 1934-35 administration. Eugene Cornwell was elected for the year 1934-35 but was forced to resign in order to accept the position of alderman to which he had been elected. A second election was then held and Finerty was named.

Has Same Ailments

Berlin, March 17 (AP)—East German President Wilhelm Pieck was reported suffering today from pneumonia and pleurisy, the same malady which took the life of Czech President Klement Gottwald last week. Pieck, however, didn't catch his at Stalin's funeral. The West Berlin anti-Communist "Fighting Group Against Inhumanity" said the 77-year-old Communist veteran is in an East Berlin hospital. Pieck has been conspicuously absent from any public function, and from his presidential office, since March 5—the day Stalin died. He did not go to Moscow for the Red dictator's funeral nor did he take part in the memorial rites in East Berlin.

Would Recite Pledge

Albany, March 17 (AP)—A pledge of allegiance to the American flag would be part of the opening ceremony in all public school classrooms under a bill passed by the Assembly and sent to the Senate. The measure cleared the larger House by a unanimous vote last night. At present, the opening patriotic ceremony includes a salute to the flag.

Grange News

Hurley

At a meeting of Hurley Grange last week it was announced by Mrs. W. Snyder that a rummage sale would be held March 18 at 106 Broadway. Articles may be left with Mrs. Snyder or Mrs. Stauble. Mrs. V. Goetchius, lecturer, requested members interested in joining a county choral group to meet at the Rosendale Grange Hall at 8 p. m. Wednesday, March 18. The group will sing at the 50th anniversary of Pomona Grange April 16. Brother Snyder gave the Pomona report.

Homawack and Patroon Granges were visiting granges. The program consisted of a duet by Joan Robisch and Sandra Schoupp, songs, quizzes, a skit and a poem.

Up to Governor Now On Rain Licenses

Albany, March 17 (AP) — Rainmakers will have to obtain licenses before operating in New York state if Gov. Dewey adds his signature to a bill passed by the Legislature.

The Senate approved the measure last night. It would require the State Water Power and Control Commission to hold a public hearing on each license application for a rain making project.

Another provision would authorize the commission to require a bond from the applicant, and an agreement releasing the state from any liability for damages.

Sub Test Near End

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Twenty-three sailors will emerge at New London, Conn., on Thursday from the sealed submarine in which they have spent two months. They spent the time in the craft in a navy experiment designed to study the effects on a submarine crew of prolonged submersion, such as should be possible in atomic-powered craft. The men have been aboard the submarine Haddock. Although physical conditions have been similar to those in a prolonged submersion at sea, the men have had daily contact with the outside world through visits of medical officers.

Get-Tough Policy

Would Wait and See

Sparkman, who also has been a delegate to the UN, said it was impossible now to tell whether Malenkov's speech really had any substance. But he said of Knowland's plan to brand Russia an aggressor:

"It might be well to wait and see before doing anything to push this right now."

Cooper expressed to his colleagues fear that the Knowland proposal "would really lead to outright war with Russia." He later edited that in the Congressional Record to substitute "could" for "would."

However, in the interview he said "the effect would be the death knell of any possibility of peaceful settlement with the Russians."

Knowland said that Andrei Vishinsky, in a recent UN speech, had admitted Russia was supplying arms to Red China, and he declared that in view of this it was time to call a spade a spade.

Vishinsky acknowledged in a speech to the UN on March 2 that the Soviets are selling arms to the Chinese Reds but said this was in accordance with the Moscow-Peiping treaty of mutual friendship.

May File Jointly

Washington, March 17 (AP)—The U. S. Tax Court has ruled that a joint income tax return may be filed by a couple having an interlocutory divorce decree which has not become final. The decision, handed down yesterday, involved Marriner S. Eccles, former chairman of the Federal Reserve Board who is now a banker in Utah. Eccles filed a joint return with Maysie Y. Eccles, his divorced wife, for the year 1949. Their preliminary divorce decree was granted Aug. 2 of that year, to become final after six months. The Internal Revenue Bureau maintained Eccles had no right to file a joint return, and billed him for the $5,479 for which he would have been additionally liable as a divorced man. The tax court ruled against the bureau's position.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY

St. Patrick's Day has become an American as well as Irish holiday. People whose ancestors never saw the Emerald Isle don a bit of green and join with their Irish neighbors in honoring the saint who converted Ireland to Christianity and, according to legend, cleared the country of snakes in the bargain.

It is well for Americans of all national origins to retain some of the customs and the traditions of the old world. Such customs and traditions serve to remind us of how many different people from how many different lands have helped to build and preserve the country we live in.

So let the folks parade on March 17 and let the bands play the old, well-loved Irish airs. All honor to St. Patrick and to his sons and daughters.

CHANGING LEADERS

For some weeks there has been an unusual turmoil in Russia. A violent anti-Semitic campaign has been started and there has been a purge of doctors accused of poisoning notables. The army chief of staff has been changed. These and some other occurrences add to the impression that something disturbing is going on which is not being published. It suggests a struggle for the succession.

No one in the west will grieve much over the loss of Stalin. It is questionable whether his eventual successor will be any improvement. But one advantage may come from a change in leadership. Stalin has been built by propaganda into an infallible father of his people, the master of all knowledge. He has been almost deified. No successor can reach the same reputation at once—or soon.

To raise a new Russian head to a similar height will take time, and till that is accomplished, he will not be so formidable an opponent.

PERON CHANGES MASKS

Argentine dictator Juan Peron, who has conducted a violent anti-American campaign since he came to power, now seems to want to be friends with the United States. Although he has made friendly overtures to the Soviet, Peron recently spoke of the tranquility which has existed between his country and the United States since he succeeded in crushing his Argentine opposition.

It may be wondered whether Peron's new friendliness may not be the first step in a campaign to get another loan from the United States. Peron has handled the economic administration of his country in a manner that reminds observers of the tangled world of Alice in Wonderland. Argentina, one of the great beef producing countries of the world, has actually faced a shortage of beef. Peron may want American money to bolster his unsteady treasury.

He has held his people in slavery and his grip tightens every day. He has threatened and insulted our government at every turn. His entire career has been an offense to free men. Could he reasonably ask our assistance?

Mossadegh may yet rue the day when he persuaded the people of Iran that they should be irate.

LINK BETWEEN WARS

Since the purpose of General Mark Clark's visit to Indo-China has not been divulged, speculation is our only guide. Possibly the action presages closer coordination between the Korean and Indo-Chinese wars.

Lending support to that notion was the earlier visit to Korea and Japan of Marshal Juin, France's ranking soldier.

One developing idea in the Eisenhower foreign policy is heavier future reliance upon native troops in both war theatre's, so French and American forces, as well as other UN units, may be pulled back into a mobile reserve. The French are considerably behind us, however, in the training of Asiatic forces, and may now be seeking to model their training program on our South Korean example.

Whether coordination goes only this far or reaches into wider military fields, it would be welcome news. For Korea and Indo-China are in fact simply two fronts in the same war, and they ought to be treated that way.

There are people who pay more attention to their driving on a golf course than they do to their driving on the highway.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARE

In the present struggle for power among nations, the fact has to be recognized that such private negotiations as occurred at the Congress of Vienna (1815) or even at Yalta (1945) no longer are satisfactory. The recent Anglo-American negotiations in Washington were so secret as to lead to confusing rumors.

In all countries, except those behind the Iron Curtain, public opinion does express itself, often in the form of mass demonstrations. The weapon of psychological warfare therefore is cultivated and strengthened with the object of winning masses of the people to one side or the other.

The "Voice of America" is a device of psychological warfare. Its object is to win friends not among government officials but among the people in favor of the United States. Our hope is that most of the people will become antagonistic to Soviet Russia and the Communist Party. It should further be designed to vitiate any tendency toward neutralism.

In the present investigation conducted by the McCarthy Committee, no attack is being made against the theory of psychological warfare. However, certain phases of this process have been selected to indicate that in the "Voice of America" there has been an area of activity which has been used against the interests of the United States. This does not mean that everything about the "Voice of America" is wrong or that such a device need be abandoned.

For instance, we might go back to the testimony of Virgil H. Fulling, chief of the Latin-American News Service, who has been trying to do a thoroughly American job. He tells of a pro-American demonstration in Guatemala, which is now the Communist outpost on the American continents. Fulling wanted to give that demonstration an enthusiastic display over the "Voice of America." He wrote a script in which he used the term "anti-Communist." Now, let us look at the colloquy on that subject:

Counsel Roy Cohn. ". . . Had anything been crossed out of the script?

"Mr. Fulling. Yes, sir. Where the term 'anti-Communist' had been used, that was crossed out. . . .

"Mr. Cohn. Now, by what words was the term 'anti-Communist' replaced in each instance?

"Mr. Fulling. In the first instance, where it was called 'anti-Communist organizations,' the term was replaced by 'citizens.'

"Mr. Cohn. The word 'anti-Communist' was deleted?

"Mr. Fulling. And replaced by 'citizens.'

"Mr. Cohn. How about in the second instance?

"Mr. Fulling. In the second instance, the word 'anti-Communist' was replaced by the word 'democratic.'"

Fulling was not permitted to use the term, "anti-Communist Guatemalans." If they were anti-Communists, why call them "citizens" or "democrats"? Why this was done is not explained clearly in the testimony. Fulling argued the point with his chief, Donald Taylor, who seemed to want to use a broader term—which means what?

What does the word, democracy, or democratic, mean in the United States, in New York or Mobile, in Guatemala or Prague? Everywhere it has a special meaning. The other day, I was talking to a man who insisted that "democratic" means "equalitarian"; that is, that all men are equal. Equal how—biologically, legally or in the sight of God?

In psychological warfare, words are important only if understood by those at whom they are aimed. If misunderstood by them, if given an erroneous twist, the same words can be destructive. For instance, at most, the word "democratic" in the United States can mean government by the choice of the people at a free election; in a Communist country it means the dictatorship of the proletariat.

When Communists use the term "democratic front," they mean an amalgam of political groups in which the Communists prevail. In the United States, if we had such a term, it would mean a political group dominated by Adlai Stevenson's party to which a large number, if not an actual majority, of the American people adhere.

If we are to have a "Voice of America," it is necessary that the psychologists understand words and their application. This work should be regarded not as an international amusement program but as psychological warfare against an enemy.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

CORONARY (HEART) DISEASE

It is known that gall bladder disease and appendicitis often occur together so that in operating for appendicitis it is not unusual for the surgeon to make an incision large enough to enable him to examine the gall bladder.

In Surgery, Gynecology and Obstetrics, Drs. Max B. Walters and Arthur M. Master, New York city, state that gall bladder and coronary artery disease exist together more frequently than either condition exists alone. Thus heart symptoms often improve after removal of a diseased gall bladder. There is always the question as to whether the gall bladder symptoms or the heart sypmtoms causes most anxiety to the patient. And, as the symptoms of one may resemble the other, it is important to investigate and discover which condition is really the most important.

In order to find out which disease is the most important to discover and treat, Drs. Walters and Master suggest that the history of the case be followed carefully. An electrocardiogram and Master's two-step test may be followed to demonstrate the abnormality of the heart or the coronary or heart blood vessels.

When electrocardiograph changes are found in patients who have acute gall bladder disease, coronary artery (heart) disease is always associated. After removal of the gall bladder, the heart condition may be improved. The acute pain (angina pectoris) due to coronary disease and other heart symptoms may disappear after the operation as may also the electrocardiograph abnormalities. However, the coronary or heart disease itself is not affected by the removal of gall bladder despite the disappearance or relief from the heart disease symptoms.

However, though, the patient feels some relief from his heart symptoms after removal of gall bladder and because of painkilling drugs and some pain from the surgical removal of the gall bladder, the patient may have an attack of coronary thrombosis which will go unnoticed as the pain is blamed on the operation. "In such a case severe risk is taken in allowing the patient to be up on the first or second day after operation. It is therefore an excellent idea to always make electrocardiograms before operation. If the tracings are abnormal, then electrocardiograms should be taken after operation before the patient is allowed to rise."

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington (NEA)—Representatives of the U. S. dairy industry are being called back to Washington for further conferences with Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson and Department of Agriculture experts on milk and butterfat support prices.

This is a follow-up action on a conference of 13 dairy industry leaders with Secretary Benson in mid-February. It was after this conference that Secretary Benson made his decision to support dairy prices at 90 per cent of parity for another year, beginning April 1.

This decision came as something of a surprise. It had been generally expected that Secretary Benson would announce a much lower support level.

In a speech at St. Paul just before the dairy support-price announcement, Secretary Benson had declared that government supports should be considered as disaster insurance only. He had said that farmers should rely on their own devices and less on government bounties.

It was later revealed that the secretary's apparent inconsistency in finally approving continuation of the 90 per cent dairy supports was based on an appeal from the industry representatives. They asked for more time to work out some new program of their own.

The purpose of the second meeting with dairy industry representatives is to get them moving on developing their own program.

Higher Price Supports May Be Costly

It is now intimated that the higher support level on dairy prices for the coming year may cost the federal government as much as $60 million. Butter bought by the government and kept off the market in storage for a year would have to be converted into oil and sold at a loss, or else given away.

It was to avoid this loss that serious consideration was given to lowering the support level. A drop to 75 per cent of parity would have cut butter prices by 10 cents a pound or so.

The lower price might have increased consumption and thus reduced the surplus. This offered what seemed to be a sensible solution to the problem. It would have been deflationary.

An alternative, to reduce the support level gradually, had to be ruled out because the law did not permit it. Price-support levels must be announced in advance for a full crop year.

So against what seemed to be his better judgment, the secretary announced continuation of the 90 per cent support program. This decision was made only after consideration by the new Agricultural Advisory Committee and the Eisenhower cabinet.

But the deciding factor was the assurance of dairy industry leaders that they would work out some better plan themselves.

This reliance on agricultural industry representatives to work out their own salvation without government subsidy is apparently to be a keystone of the new administration farm policy.

Benson Reluctant to Assume Powers

The powers that have been given to the Secretary of Agriculture by law—his virtual control over the farm economy—had not been fully appreciated by Mr. Benson. Reluctance to assume these responsibilities is only natural to anyone not a bureaucrat at heart.

A decision to rely on the farmers and the food processors to work out some of their own problems resulted.

In spite of congressional agitation for continued and higher government supports as the solution to falling form prices, Secretary Benson is known to feel that the farmers do not relish too much federal aid.

In the case of the livestock industry, this conclusion has been borne out by the cattlemen's decision against accepting supports to save them from oversupply and falling prices.

In the case of the cotton and dairy products, it is realized that a revolution in consumer buying habits is going on.

Margarine is pricing butter out of the market. The high support price on butterfat has only aided the margarine situation. Synthetic fibers offer increasing competition to cotton.

Shifting the agricultural economy to meet all these changing conditions is the supreme challenge that confronts the Congress, the Department of Agriculture and the farmers themselves. But how this transition is to be effected within the Eisenhower administration's pledge for "full parity on a free market" has yet to be explained.

Training Stepped Up

Amman, Jordan (AP)—The Jordan government has stepped up its home guard training program to meet Jewish attacks on its villages facing Israel. Every able-bodied male between 18 and 40 must take a 12-week intensive training program under the eyes of the Arab Legion—acknowledged to be the best military force in the Arab world. The training program was started two years ago but during the recent weeks there has been a flood of applications for training. Jordanians, many of them Palestinians driven from their homes by the Jews, have to wait their turn to get the training.

Statements of Commanders, GI Letters Prove Troops Went Short of Ammunition in Korea

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, March 17 — Congress has only scratched the surface of the ammunition scandal of the Truman administration and, despite the "buck passing" and the attempts to cover up, the truth is bound to come out.

Today this correspondent presents a copy of a telegram just sent by Lieut. Gen. Edward M. Almond to Gen. James A. Van Fleet backing up the latter's charges.

General Almond, who retired on February 1 and is, therefore, in a position now to speak freely, was commander of the Tenth Army Corps in Korea from the time of the Inchon landing on September 15, 1950, until July, 1951. Since General Van Fleet took command on April 14, 1951, and General Almond left Korea on July 15, 1951, their terms of service overlapped for several months. Here is the text of the telegram to General Van Fleet from General Almond:

"Hearty congratulations on your magnificent testimony, as reported in the press, before Congress on the military situation in Korea. Your honest and correct interpretations of conditions there have served to enlighten the people of our country and to confound and to deflate the generalizations and equivocations made by those who have tried to discredit your statements. I know the facts to be as you have stated them from the beginning of the Korean conflict until the time I left you in July 1951. Since my departure, my interpretation of information corroborates your testimony. Public statements made by me since my retirement support your views 100 per cent and I am ready at any time to substantially support your position. Your service to our nation has been magnificent and your statements in Congress add emphasis to your loyalty and patriotism. My best wishes to you always as a comrade in arms."

But perhaps the most significant piece of information comes from Tracy S. Voorhees, undersecretary of the army in the last administration. In a copyrighted interview in "U. S. News & World Report" this week, Mr. Voorhees says:

"We have gone into this Korean war, for instance, without either any budgetary or production plan for it. It was assumed budgetwise, and therefore productionwise, that the Korean war would end by July 1, 1951. But the war got rather obstinate and temperamental and declined to end, so they extended its life to July 1, 1952. The war was still stuborn, so its lease of life was extended by the U. S. planners until July 1, 1953. That was, I believe one reason for this cutback which was made in U. S. production announced early last December. The net result has been that the Korean war remains alive and hungry for military equipment and supplies, and that we have just kept taking things that were produced for Europe and have shipped them to Korea.

"And nobody can criticize our military people for doing that when our fighting men in Korea were short of these arms. But we can criticize the failure to plan to carry on a war we are already in, so that our men will have the equipment and supplies to fight it. There is certainly high support for such a statement since President Eisenhower came back from Korea and made a general reference to shortages of some supplies over there that would have to be corrected. But the shortage, it seems to me, was not due to the army's fallure to buy what was needed, but to the budget bureau's decision not to let the army budget and procure on a scale which would see the Korean war through without diverting to Korea equipment and supplies produced for our allies in Europe . . ."

"Whose responsibility was that—Secretary of Defense? Chief of Staff?" Mr. Voorhees was asked.

"No. I think it was a basic government policy that was wrong," he replied. "A policy of partial, restricted, limited effort which went right straight through our government. The budget bureau, which presumably had the President's approval, took this position about not budgeting for a possible or probable continuance of the Korean war. Then it was unpopular to deprive the American consumer public of anything, so we went right on manufacturing automobiles, refrigerators and everything else, instead of manufacturing these things we needed to fight with in Korea and to create a real defense in Europe.

"As I see it, it is the policy of 'too little and too late' that was wrong. The point is that we have been at war for two and a half years and have his big Russian military threat hanging over Europe, and so threatening us also. And we are the one country in the world that can certainly succeed in production, but we just haven't done it fast enough."

What do the GI's think of all this?

In a letter to this correspondent received today, a lady writes about her brother's boy who came home from Korea covered with medals and purple heart decorations:

"Now that he is at home and in college, his only bitterness is when he gets talking about how all his buddies got killed right before his eyes and how they wouldn't have been if they only had some ammunition . . .

"My younger son is on an ammunition ship plying up and down both coasts of Korea rearming the carriers and battleships.

"The day your article came out, we got a letter from him saying his ship went into some little town to give a load of ammunition to some army unit that had gotten stranded there with absolutely nothing."

The point is that the soldiers in Korea have for many months been writing home about the shortage of ammunition in Korea. They knew it. The enemy probably knew it—because attacks were sporadic. But the American people haven't known the truth—and if it were not for the sometimes condemned system of Congressional investigations, they wouldn't know about it yet.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, has sent me a generally temperate discussion of my criticism of the civil service as a parasitic thing but he winds up on a shrill note of protest against my remark that it is profitable to poke up the animals to arouse discussion and circulate information. Mr. Steward is a professional bureaucrat in a special bureaucracy growing on the federal public bureaucracy, and his anger vindicates my observation that all opposition to the abuses of civil service and all objection to the opposition to the abuses of civil service and all objection to the disparity between its retirement benefits and those of social security move such people to fury.

"There may be perhaps to some, a form of Macabre fun to be derived from, to quote your column, 'Taking a Poke at the Animals,'" he writes, Misquoting my remark. "We can be permitted to question, however, whether that sort of thing is in the public interest."

For contrast, another letter, from Miss Ruth E. Fleming, of Long Island City, a civil service worker in the Veterans Administration, repudiates the bureaucrats' bureaucrat in these words:

"I agree with your statement concerning poking up the animals and the resulting stimulation of discussion. That's why I wrote this letter, the first such letter I have ever written."

All the members of civil service who have written to me regard themselves as diligent, hard-working, if not overworked, citizens of the finest character. I have no desire to disagree with these estimates, for most of us admit that the basic employes of the government are decent people. However, by oversight, no doubt, neither Mr. Steward nor any of the civil service workers mentioned the fact that their 6 per cent contributions to their retirement fund are matched, though not equally, by appropriations out of the taxes of the rest of us, just as the employer is required to match the employe's social security tax. We tax producers are their employers. This appropriation is recommended each year by the civil service commissioner and its proportion to the 6 per cent deduction fund is variable and indistinct.

There is a third source of money to meet the retirement payments which for some fastidious reason are not called pensons. That source is the interest on government bonds in which the 6% kitty is invested. I do not plunge into dispute over the dead-weight of this retirement system represented by these congregressional appropriations. I just state that such appropriations by Congress from our taxes are a part of the system and note that Mr. Steward and others are so ill informed or so careless as to have failed to mention them.

Mere repartee is not the intention of these commentaries, however. In poking up the animals my purpose is not to offend the virtuous and respectable employes of an expanded bureaucracy although I still must emphasize the fact that they are aghast at any proposal to restrict their pensions to the limits which are set for the rest of us in social security system. My purpose is to throw into prominence the fact that the bureaucracy has become a devouring menace to the rest of us, with a first lien on our earnings.

True, civil service jobs can be abolished by law and the vested interest in those jobs thus can be terminated. But, generally speaking, that is the only way by which this vested interest of persons who deserve no special privilege from the tax-producing workers can be wound up. Civil service has become the profector of thousands on thousands of oth-

ST. PATRICK'S DAY

St. Patrick's Day has become an American as well as Irish holiday. People whose ancestors never saw the Emerald Isle don a bit of green and join with their Irish neighbors in honoring the saint who converted Ireland to Christianity and, according to legend, cleared the country of snakes in the bargain.

It is well for Americans of all national origins to retain some of the customs and the traditions of the old world. Such customs and traditions serve to remind us of how many different people from how many different lands have helped to build and preserve the country we live in.

So let the folks parade on March 17 and let the bands play the old, well-loved Irish airs. All honor to St. Patrick and to his sons and daughters.

CHANGING LEADERS

For some weeks there has been an unusual turmoil in Russia. A violent anti-Semitic campaign has been started and there has been a purge of doctors accused of poisoning notables. The army chief of staff has been changed. These and some other occurrences add to the impression that something disturbing is going on which is not being published. It suggests a struggle for the succession.

No one in the west will grieve much over the loss of Stalin. It is questionable whether his eventual successor will be any improvement. But one advantage may come from a change in leadership. Stalin has been built by propaganda into an infallible father of his people, the master of all knowledge. He has been almost deified. No successor can reach the same reputation at once—or soon.

To raise a new Russian head to a similar height will take time, and till that is accomplished, he will not be so formidable an opponent.

PERON CHANGES MASKS

Argentine dictator Juan Peron, who has conducted a violent anti-American campaign since he came to power, now seems to want to be friends with the United States. Although he has made friendly overtures to the Soviet, Peron recently spoke of the tranquility which has existed between his country and the United States since he succeeded in crushing his Argentine opposition.

It may be wondered whether Peron's new friendliness may not be the first step in a campaign to get another loan from the United States. Peron has handled the economic administration of his country in a manner that reminds observers of the tangled world of Alice in Wonderland. Argentina, one of the great beef producing countries of the world, has actually faced a shortage of beef. Peron may want American money to bolster his unsteady treasury.

He has held his people in slavery and his grip tightens every day. He has threatened and insulted our government at every turn. His entire career has been an offense to free men. Could he reasonably ask our assistance?

Mossadegh may yet rue the day when he persuaded the people of Iran that they should be irate.

LINK BETWEEN WARS

Since the purpose of General Mark Clark's visit to Indo-China has not been divulged, speculation is our only guide. Possibly the action presages closer coordination between the Korean and Indo-Chinese wars.

Lending support to that notion was the earlier visit to Korea and Japan of Marshal Juin, France's ranking soldier.

One developing idea in the Eisenhower foreign policy is heavier future reliance upon native troops in both war theatre's, so French and American forces, as well as other UN units, may be pulled back into a mobile reserve. The French are considerably behind us, however, in the training of Asiatic forces, and may now be seeking to model their training program on our South Korean example.

Whether coordination goes only this far or reaches into wider military fields, it would be welcome news. For Korea and Indo-China are in fact simply two fronts in the same war, and they ought to be treated that way.

There are people who pay more attention to their driving on a golf course than they do to their driving on the highway.

'These Days'

PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARE

In the present struggle for power among nations, the fact has to be recognized that such private negotiations as occurred at the Congress of Vienna (1815) or even at Yalta (1945) no longer are satisfactory. The recent Anglo-American negotiations in Washington were so secret as to lead to confusing rumors.

In all countries, except those behind the Iron Curtain, public opinion does express itself, often in the form of mass demonstrations. The weapon of psychological warfare therefore is cultivated and strengthened with the object of winning masses of the people to one side or the other.

The "Voice of America" is a device of psychological warfare. Its object is to win friends not among government officials but among the people in favor of the United States. Our hope is that most of the people will become antagonistic to Soviet Russia and the Communist Party. It should further be designed to vitiate any tendency toward neutralism.

In the present investigation conducted by the McCarthy Committee, no attack is being made against the theory of psychological warfare. However, certain phases of this process have been selected to indicate that in the "Voice of America" there has been an area of activity which has been used against the interests of the United States. This does not mean that everything about the "Voice of America" is wrong or that such a device need be abandoned.

For instance, we might go back to the testimony of Virgil H. Fulling, chief of the Latin-American News Service, who has been trying to do a thoroughly American job. He tells of a pro-American demonstration in Guatemala, which is now the Communist outpost on the American continents. Fulling wanted to give that demonstration an enthusiastic display over the "Voice of America." He wrote a script in which he used the term "anti-Communist." Now, let us look at the colloquy on that subject:

Counsel Roy Cohn. ". . . Had anything been crossed out of the script?

"Mr. Fulling. Yes, sir. Where the term 'anti-Communist' had been used, that was crossed out. . . .

"Mr. Cohn. Now, by what words was the term 'anti-Communist' replaced in each instance?

"Mr. Fulling. In the first instance, where it was called 'anti-Communist organizations,' the term was replaced by 'citizens.'

"Mr. Cohn. The word 'anti-Communist' was deleted?

"Mr. Fulling. And replaced by 'citizens.'

"Mr. Cohn. How about in the second instance?

"Mr. Fulling. In the second instance, the word 'anti-Communist' was replaced by the word 'democratic.'"

Fulling was not permitted to use the term, "anti-Communist Guatemalans." If they were anti-Communists, why call them "citizens" or "democrats"? Why this was done is not explained clearly in the testimony. Fulling argued the point with his chief, Donald Taylor, who seemed to want to use a broader term—which means what?

What does the word, democracy, or democratic, mean in the United States, in New York or Mobile, in Guatemala or Prague? Everywhere it has a special meaning. The other day, I was talking to a man who insisted that "democratic" means "equalitarian"; that is, that all men are equal. Equal how—biologically, legally or in the sight of God?

In psychological warfare, words are important only if understood by those at whom they are aimed. If misunderstood by them, if given an erroneous twist, the same words can be destructive. For instance, at most, the word "democratic" in the United States can mean government by the choice of the people at a free election; in a Communist country it means the dictatorship of the proletariat.

When Communists use the term "democratic front," they mean an amalgam of political groups in which the Communists prevail. In the United States, if we had such a term, it would mean a political group dominated by Adlai Stevenson's party to which a large number, if not an actual majority, of the American people adhere.

If we are to have a "Voice of America," it is necessary that the psychologists understand words and their application. This work should be regarded not as an international amusement program but as psychological warfare against an enemy.

That Body of Yours

CORONARY (HEART) DISEASE

It is known that gall bladder disease and appendicitis often occur together so that in operating for appendicitis it is not unusual for the surgeon to make an incision large enough to enable him to examine the gall bladder.

In Surgery, Gynecology and Obstetrics, Drs. Max B. Walters and Arthur M. Master, New York city, state that gall bladder and coronary artery disease exist together more frequently than either condition exists alone. Thus heart symptoms often improve after removal of a diseased gall bladder. There is always the question as to whether the gall bladder symptoms or the heart sypmtoms causes most anxiety to the patient. And, as the symptoms of one may resemble the other, it is important to investigate and discover which condition is really the most important.

In order to find out which disease is the most important to discover and treat, Drs. Walters and Master suggest that the history of the case be followed carefully. An electrocardiogram and Master's two-step test may be followed to demonstrate the abnormality of the heart or the coronary or heart blood vessels.

When electrocardiograph changes are found in patients who have acute gall bladder disease, coronary artery (heart) disease is always associated. After removal of the gall bladder, the heart condition may be improved. The acute pain (angina pectoris) due to coronary disease and other heart symptoms may disappear after the operation as may also the electrocardiograph abnormalities. However, the coronary or heart disease itself is not affected by the removal of gall bladder despite the disappearance or relief from the heart disease symptoms.

However, though, the patient feels some relief from his heart symptoms after removal of gall bladder and because of painkilling drugs and some pain from the surgical removal of the gall bladder, the patient may have an attack of coronary thrombosis which will go unnoticed as the pain is blamed on the operation. "In such a case severe risk is taken in allowing the patient to be up on the first or second day after operation. It is therefore an excellent idea to always make electrocardiograms before operation. If the tracings are abnormal, then electrocardiograms should be taken after operation before the patient is allowed to rise."

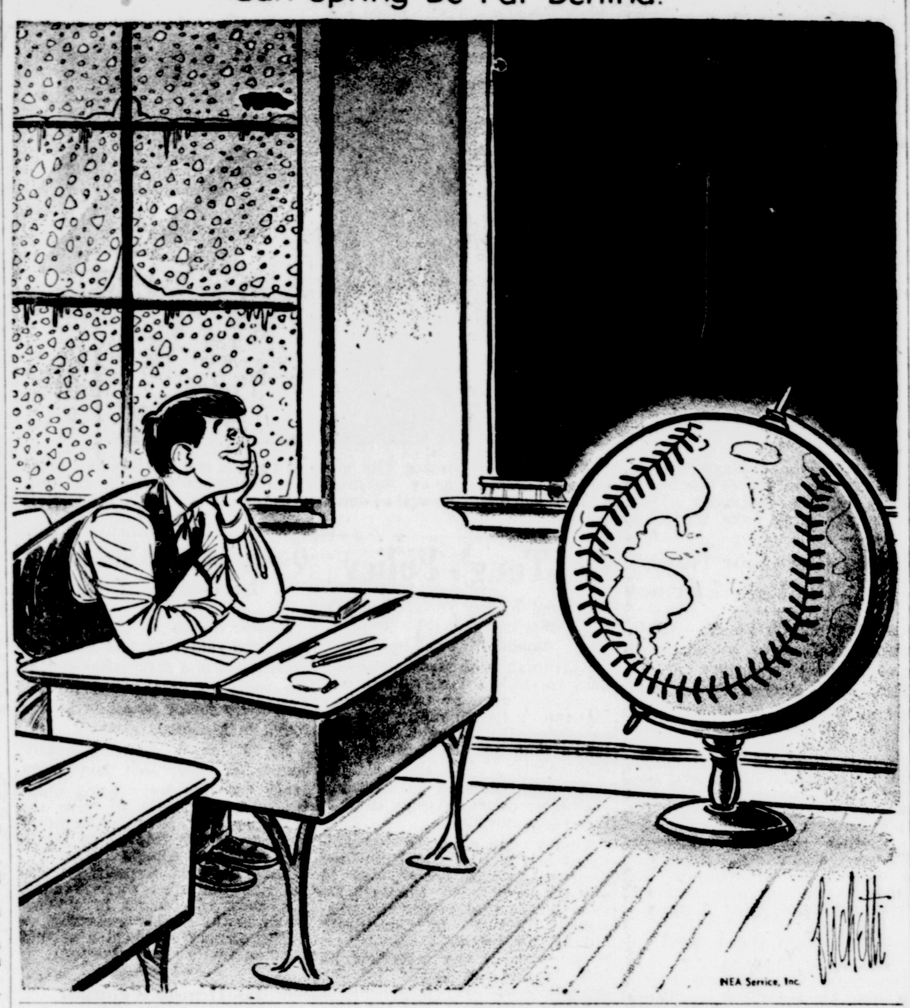
Can Spring Be Far Behind?



Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington (NEA)—Representatives of the U. S. dairy industry are being called back to Washington for further conferences with Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson and Department of Agriculture experts on milk and butterfat support prices.

This is a follow-up action on a conference of 13 dairy industry leaders with Secretary Benson in mid-February. It was after this conference that Secretary Benson made his decision to support dairy prices at 90 per cent of parity for another year, beginning April 1.

This decision came as something of a surprise. It had been generally expected that Secretary Benson would announce a much lower support level.

In a speech at St. Paul just before the dairy support-price announcement, Secretary Benson had declared that government supports should be considered as disaster insurance only. He had said that farmers should rely on their own devices and less on government bounties.

It was later revealed that the secretary's apparent inconsistency in finally approving continuation of the 90 per cent dairy supports was based on an appeal from the industry representatives. They asked for more time to work out some new program of their own.

The purpose of the second meeting with dairy industry representatives is to get them moving on developing their own program.

Higher Price Supports May Be Costly

It is now intimated that the higher support level on dairy prices for the coming year may cost the federal government as much as $60 million. Butter bought by the government and kept off the market in storage for a year would have to be converted into oil and sold at a loss, or else given away.

It was to avoid this loss that serious consideration was given to lowering the support level. A drop to 75 per cent of parity would have cut butter prices by 10 cents a pound or so.

The lower price might have increased consumption and thus reduced the surplus. This offered what seemed to be a sensible solution to the problem. It would have been deflationary.

An alternative, to reduce the support level gradually, had to be ruled out because the law did not permit it. Price-support levels must be announced in advance for a full crop year.

So against what seemed to be his better judgment, the secretary announced continuation of the 90 per cent support program. This decision was made only after consideration by the new Agricultural Advisory Committee and the Eisenhower cabinet.

But the deciding factor was the assurance of dairy industry leaders that they would work out some better plan themselves.

This reliance on agricultural industry representatives to work out their own salvation without government subsidy is apparently to be a keystone of the new administration farm policy.

Benson Reluctant to Assume Powers

The powers that have been given to the Secretary of Agriculture by law—his virtual control over the farm economy—had not been fully appreciated by Mr. Benson. Reluctance to assume these responsibilities is only natural to anyone not a bureaucrat at heart.

A decision to rely on the farmers and the food processors to work out some of their own problems resulted.

In spite of congressional agitation for continued and higher government supports as the solution to falling form prices, Secretary Benson is known to feel that the farmers do not relish too much federal aid.

In the case of the livestock industry, this conclusion has been borne out by the cattlemen's decision against accepting supports to save them from oversupply and falling prices.

In the case of the cotton and dairy products, it is realized that a revolution in consumer buying habits is going on.

Margarine is pricing butter out of the market. The high support price on butterfat has only aided the margarine situation. Synthetic fibers offer increasing competition to cotton.

Shifting the agricultural economy to meet all these changing conditions is the supreme challenge that confronts the Congress, the Department of Agriculture and the farmers themselves. But how this transition is to be effected within the Eisenhower administration's pledge for "full parity on a free market" has yet to be explained.

Training Stepped Up

Amman, Jordan (AP)—The Jordan government has stepped up its home guard training program to meet Jewish attacks on its villages facing Israel. Every able-bodied male between 18 and 40 must take a 12-week intensive training program under the eyes of the Arab Legion—acknowledged to be the best military force in the Arab world. The training program was started two years ago but during the recent weeks there has been a flood of applications for training. Jordanians, many of them Palestinians driven from their homes by the Jews, have to wait their turn to get the training.

Statements of Commanders, GI Letters Prove Troops Went Short of Ammunition in Korea

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, March 17 — Congress has only scratched the surface of the ammunition scandal of the Truman administration and, despite the "buck passing" and the attempts to cover up, the truth is bound to come out.

Today this correspondent presents a copy of a telegram just sent by Lieut. Gen. Edward M. Almond to Gen. James A. Van Fleet backing up the latter's charges.

General Almond, who retired on February 1 and is, therefore, in a position now to speak freely, was commander of the Tenth Army Corps in Korea from the time of the Inchon landing on September 15, 1950, until July, 1951. Since General Van Fleet took command on April 14, 1951, and General Almond left Korea on July 15, 1951, their terms of service overlapped for several months. Here is the text of the telegram to General Van Fleet from General Almond:

"Hearty congratulations on your magnificent testimony, as reported in the press, before Congress on the military situation in Korea. Your honest and correct interpretations of conditions there have served to enlighten the people of our country and to confound and to deflate the generalizations and equivocations made by those who have tried to discredit your statements. I know the facts to be as you have stated them from the beginning of the Korean conflict until the time I left you in July 1951. Since my departure, my interpretation of information corroborates your testimony. Public statements made by me since my retirement support your views 100 per cent and I am ready at any time to substantially support your position. Your service to our nation has been magnificent and your statements in Congress add emphasis to your loyalty and patriotism. My best wishes to you always as a comrade in arms."

But perhaps the most significant piece of information comes from Tracy S. Voorhees, undersecretary of the army in the last administration. In a copyrighted interview in "U. S. News & World Report" this week, Mr. Voorhees says:

"We have gone into this Korean war, for instance, without either any budgetary or production plan for it. It was assumed budgetwise, and therefore productionwise, that the Korean war would end by July 1, 1951. But the war got rather obstinate and temperamental and declined to end, so they extended its life to July 1, 1952. The war was still stuborn, so its lease of life was extended by the U. S. planners until July 1, 1953. That was, I believe one reason for this cutback which was made in U. S. production announced early last December. The net result has been that the Korean war remains alive and hungry for military equipment and supplies, and that we have just kept taking things that were produced for Europe and have shipped them to Korea.

"And nobody can criticize our military people for doing that when our fighting men in Korea were short of these arms. But we can criticize the failure to plan to carry on a war we are already in, so that our men will have the equipment and supplies to fight it. There is certainly high support for such a statement since President Eisenhower came back from Korea and made a general reference to shortages of some supplies over there that would have to be corrected. But the shortage, it seems to me, was not due to the army's failure to buy what was needed, but to the budget bureau's decision not to let the army budget and procure on a scale which would see the Korean war through without diverting to Korea equipment and supplies produced for our allies in Europe . . ."

"Whose responsibility was that—Secretary of Defense? Chief of Staff?" Mr. Voorhees was asked.

"No. I think it was a basic government policy that was wrong," he replied. "A policy of partial, restricted, limited effort which went right straight through our government. The budget bureau, which presumably had the President's approval, took this position about not budgeting for a possible or probable continuance of the Korean war. Then it was unpopular to deprive the American consumer public of anything, so we went right on manufacturing automobiles, refrigerators and everything else, instead of manufacturing these things we needed to fight with in Korea and to create a real defense in Europe.

"As I see it, it is the policy of 'too little and too late' that was wrong. The point is that we have been at war for two and a half years and have his big Russian military threat hanging over Europe, and so threatening us also. And we are the one country in the world that can certainly succeed in production, but we just haven't done it fast enough."

What do the GI's think of all this?

In a letter to this correspondent received today, a lady writes about her brother's boy who came home from Korea covered with medals and purple heart decorations:

"Now that he is at home and in college, his only bitterness is when he gets talking about how all his buddies got killed right before his eyes and how they wouldn't have been if they only had some ammunition . . .

"My younger son is on an ammunition ship plying up and down both coasts of Korea rearming the carriers and battleships.

"The day your article came out, we got a letter from him saying his ship went into some little town to give a load of ammunition to some army unit that had gotten stranded there with absolutely nothing."

The point is that the soldiers in Korea have for many months been writing home about the shortage of ammunition in Korea. They knew it. The enemy probably knew it—because attacks were sporadic. But the American people haven't known the truth—and if it were not for the sometimes condemned system of Congressional investigations, they wouldn't know about it yet.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, has sent me a generally temperate discussion of my criticism of the civil service as a parasitic thing but he winds up on a shrill note of protest against my remark that it is profitable to poke up the animals to arouse discussion and circulate information. Mr. Steward is a professional bureaucrat in a special bureaucracy growing on the federal public bureaucracy, and his anger vindicates my observation that all opposition to the abuses of civil service and all objection to the opposition to the abuses of civil service and all objection to the disparity between its retirement benefits and those of social security move such people to fury.

"There may be perhaps to some, a form of Macabre fun to be derived from, to quote your column, 'Taking a Poke at the Animals,'" he writes, Misquoting my remark. "We can be permitted to question, however, whether that sort of thing is in the public interest."

For contrast, another letter, from Miss Ruth E. Fleming, of Long Island City, a civil service worker in the Veterans Administration, repudiates the bureaucrats' bureaucrat in these words:

"I agree with your statement concerning poking up the animals and the resulting stimulation of discussion. That's why I wrote this letter, the first such letter I have ever written."

All the members of civil service who have written to me regard themselves as diligent, hard-working, if not overworked, citizens of the finest character. I have no desire to disagree with these estimates, for most of us admit that the basic employes of the government are decent people. However, by oversight, no doubt, neither Mr. Steward nor any of the civil service workers mentioned the fact that their 6 per cent contributions to their retirement fund are matched, though not equally, by appropriations out of the taxes of the rest of us, just as the employer is required to match the employe's social security tax. We tax producers are their employers. This appropriation is recommended each year by the civil service commissioner and its proportion to the 6 per cent deduction fund is variable and indistinct.

There is a third source of money to meet the retirement payments which for some fastidious reason are not called pensons. That source is the interest on government bonds in which the 6% kitty is invested. I do not plunge into dispute over the dead-weight of this retirement system represented by these congregressional appropriations. I just state that such appropriations by Congress from our taxes are a part of the system and note that Mr. Steward and others are so ill informed or so careless as to have failed to mention them.

Mere repartee is not the intention of these commentaries, however. In poking up the animals my purpose is not to offend the virtuous and respectable employes of an expanded bureaucracy although I still must emphasize the fact that they are aghast at any proposal to restrict their pensions to the limits which are set for the rest of us in social security system. My purpose is to throw into prominence the fact that the bureaucracy has become a devouring menace to the rest of us, with a first lien on our earnings.

True, civil service jobs can be abolished by law and the vested interest in those jobs thus can be terminated. But, generally speaking, that is the only way by which this vested interest of persons who deserve no special privilege from the tax-producing workers can be wound up. Civil service has become the profector of thousands on thousands of oth-

Shokan, March 16—The fourth quarterly conference, or annual meeting of the Ashokan, Glenford and West Hurley Methodist Charge will take place 7:30 p. m., Wednesday, March 18, in the Ashokan church.

Bob Kershaw, War 2 veteran, was numbered among Kingston people calling in the hub of the reservoir country Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dibbell, who now make their home at Shavertown, Delaware county, recently were called to Long Island in the death of Mrs. Dibbell's mother.

Birthdays falling Wednesday include that of Allen Rose, well known Olive Bridge truckman. Allen, who was born in Denning is married to the former Ora Rose and their children are Alfred, Louis, James, Ann, Jane and Marie (Miller). . . . Also having a birthday Wednesday is James Bush, long time member of the Ashokan Reservoir force. A native of the North Marbletown section, Jim is married to the former Mildred Carter of Shokan and they have two children, Lena and Arthur.

Looks as if the maple syrup season will be short and sweet this year, what with Friday's heavy rainfall and warm spell having drawn the frost out of the ground. Farther up in the mountains, the farmers started tapping their sugar bushes two weeks ago.

The women workers of the Ashokan Methodist Church have set July 22 as the date of their annual fair and supper. The Wesleyan Guild is sponsoring a pancake supper Tuesday evening, March 17, at the church hall.

Gus Cunavales was a caller in the village center Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morris of Daytona, Fla., recently made a trip north and called on a number of their Ulster county relatives. Frank is retired after long service with the reservoir department offices at Ashokan, Kingston and Ellenville. He is a brother of Herman Morris of Brown's. Blanche, who also has numerous relatives in Ulster county, was born and brought up in Shokan, a daughter of Isaac and Emma Every of the old state road.

Word comes from Cornwallville, Greene county, of the birth of quadruplets to a ewe in the flock at the Waldo Zeun ranch resort. These are the first quads born in a flock of 50 sheep though there have been three sets of triplets.

Fifth Immanuel Service

The fifth midweek Lenten service will be held at Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church, Livingston street, Wednesday, at 7:30 p. m. The Rev. Ernest L. Witte will preach on the theme A Cross-Bearer and Christ. The fifth portion of the History of the Passion of Jesus Christ will be read. The children's choir will sing a Lenten chorale. The organist, Russell Schmidt, will give a brief recital of Lenten selections before the service. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Pushes Reforestation

Amman, Jordan (AP) — Half a million trees were planted in ceremonies organized by the Jordan government last month to promote a nationwide reforestation program. This program aims at replenishing the forests which once stood on what is now barren desert. Under the direction of the Department of Forestry, forests already are appearing in areas completely desert 10 years ago.

PROFESSOR DUBREE

Professor Dubree retired recently. He is well-fixed financially. His successful 38 year program of thrift, savings and investment made that possible.

I asked him: "If you were starting that program in 1953, how would it differ from the one you began in 1915?"

Then, since he has an engaging sense of humor, he replied with a twinkle in his eye: "I would buy more of the stocks that have appreciated 1,000% and fewer of the equities that have been disappointing. But, seriously, my pattern of saving and investment would not be basically changed."

If Professor Dubree had saved, but not invested, every penny of his university salary and all of his royalty earnings for 38 years, they would not total the amount of his present worth. Growth and more growth have accounted for the size of his estate.

Building financial security can become a fascinating enterprise. It did with the Professor. Late in his twenties, after his graduate studies were over and he was settled in his university appointment, he earned several hundred dollars writing some magazine articles. The easy thing to do with that money was to spend it. But he didn't.

By nature, he is not thrifty. He himself recognized this characteristic early. This writing money went into a $20,000 life insurance policy. And that contract has been an economic anchor. Loans against it have comforted him during two hospital seiges. The yearly premiums have encouraged him to do creative (and remunerative) writings. In fact, his insurance estate was built through his extra-curricular activities.

His savings plan was unique. I mention it here merely to show how this man, who loves to spend money, forced a program of saving and investment upon himself.

Along in 1923 or 1924, when he thought some chemical, oil and motor stocks were cheap, he went to the bank where he carried a small checking account and borrowed $2,000 on demand. With this borrowed money, he bought first rate chemical, oil and motor equities. The bank charged his account monthly the amount of the interest.

Scores of times over the luncheon table, he has told me: "The best way for me to save is to be in debt. I like to spend money, but I hate debt and my dislike of debt gives me an ideal foundation for saving!"

For 25 years he had small bank loans. Occasionally (when he thought stock prices were too high), he would be out of debt. But more often than not, he would have a $2,000 bank loan (forcing him to save) when he had thousands of dollars worth of securities in his safety deposit box.

These bank loans inspired his interest in economic trends and in stock prices. He was, because of these things, a big buyer of sound equities during the depression.

Five industries (there are about 50 in America) interested him. He keeps files on them. He reads and studies the financial reports of the dozen corporations in which he is a stockholder. These are the five industries: aviation (manufacture and transport); banking; chemicals; motors; and, oils.

And today Professor Dubree will tell you that conomic growth in the 38 years ahead (1953-1991) will parallel that of 1915-1953. It is to be hoped that some clerk, some junior executive, some stenographer, some professional or business man, looking ahead to a comfortable 1991 retirement, will set up some such plan as did the Professor in 1915.

(Q) "I am a newsboy, 15. I work two hours mornings, Monday and Friday, and five hours Saturdays. I save at least $15 a week and I have a bank account of $600. I want to invest $500 right now. What would you suggest?"

(A) Good for you. I was a newsboy at 15, also. Split your $500 in two parts. With $250 buy shares of a highest quality chemical corporation and with the other $250 purchase a prime oil stock. Your Dad, your banker or a broker will give you advice. Next March, if not sooner, you might do the same thing again.

Trinity Slates Lenten Service

The fifth mid-week Lenten service of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church, Spring and Hone streets, will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p. m.

The familiar old Lenten hymns will be sung and Part V of the History of the Passion of our Lord will be read. The pastor, the Rev. Dr. Frank Lawrence Gollnick, will preach the fifth of a series of Lenten sermons on the general theme, Towering O'er the Wrecks of Time! His topic will be, The Healin- Waters of the Cross!

As has been the custom in past years, there will be a special quiet time during the general prayer for individual petitions on the part of the congregation. The service will close with a Lenten Litany sung by the Senior Choir.

The following musical program has been arranged by Mrs. Willard A. Burke, Director of Music, and Miss Lucinda Meritt, Church organist:

Prelude, Hymnus, Miller; solo, I Walked Today Where Jesus Walked, O'Hara, rendered by Herman Schwenk, Jr., anthem, Father in Heaven, Bach and postlude, Finale, Merkel.

The public is cordially invited to attend this service.

Calf Has Four Tongues

Hearne, Tex. (AP) — A bull calf with three eyes, two mouths and four tongues was born on the T. W. Mooney stock farm. Two of the eyes were in normal position, the third in the center of the forehead. The calf inhales and exhales through each of the four nostrils, and moves the four tongues independently. The animal was taken to Texas A&M College.

Plan to Speed Up Dewey Program For N.Y. Finances

Albany, March 17 (AP)—The Republican-controlled Legislature today planned to speed Gov. Dewey's New York city fiscal program toward approval — probably by Thursday.

The Senate Finance Committee was expected to approve the administration bills quickly and send them to the floor for a showdown vote.

Dewey's measures were introduced last night as the State CIO threatened to strike against any New York City employer who deducted a proposed city payroll tax from a CIO worker's wages.

The bill would authorize the city to levy a one-half of 1 per cent payroll tax—half to be paid by the employer and half by the employe.

However, the city would be prohibited from levying the payroll tax or from boosting real estate taxes until its transit operating deficit had been eliminated. That specific restriction was included in the tax bills.

May Be Trouble

Louis Hollander, state CIO president, said he believed most employers would "adhere to collective bargaining agreements and not try to reduce the workers' pay" by deducting the tax from wages.

"If they don't live up to those agreements," he said, "there will be trouble."

Hollander said "CIO unions in New York city will advise their members to accept no pay from which any payroll taxes have been deducted."

The New York city board of estimate yesterday denounced Dewey's entire program as showing a "total disregard of the welfare of the great majority of our citizens."

With the exception of the lone Republican member, who dissented, the board said "the governor's attempt to single out the little man for the benefit of favoring big business, race tracks, big real estate operators and stock market speculators is a cold and callous attack on the economic welfare of our citizens."

What Dewey Proposes

Dewey's proposals call for:

1. Creation of a five-member transit authority to take over the city's subway and bus lines and eliminate their operating losses from the city budget. Two members would be appointed by the governor, two by the mayor and the fifth would be picked by the other four. The city would have to agree by June 1 to set up the authority, or the authorization would expire.

2. Legislative approval for the necessary second time of a proposed constitutional amendment to boost the city's real estate tax limit from 2 to 2½ per cent of assessed valuation. However, another Dewey bill would limit the additional revenue to 50 million dollars a year. The full 2½ per cent tax could bring in an extra 100 million.

3. Authorization for the city to levy a county real estate tax, also with a 50-million-dollar ceiling on additional revenue. Dewey said he "detested" this measure and offered it only as an alternative to the proposed constitutional amendment in case the voters rejected the amendment in the fall.

4. Authorization for the city to impose a 60-million-dollar-a-year payroll tax.

5. A nine-member temporary state commission to "study the organizational structure of the city government and the "suitability of the city manager plan of municipal government or modifications thereof."

The commission would have to report to the governor by next June 1 and would continue in existence until next Feb. 1. It would be given $100,000 to finance the study.

6. A ban on any city plan to issue budget notes to borrow money to make up transit operating deficits. A Dewey source said this would force the city to operate the lines on a "pay-as-you-go" basis if it rejected the plan for a transit authority.

7. A similar ban on city borrowing through bond issues to pay judgments, claims and awards.

Corn Imports

Corn has always been the staple grain of Mexico, says the National Geographic Society, but heavy demands in recent years have exceeded normal supply and some grain must be imported.

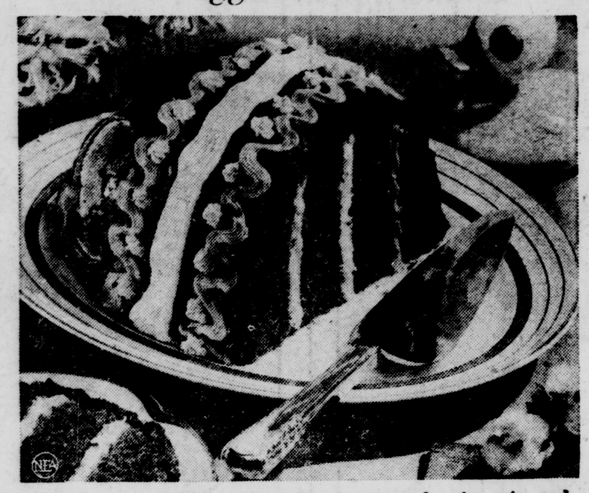
EAT WELL for Less

Easter Egg Cake Is Fanciful



EASTER EGG CAKE made with a prepared cake mix and decked out in pastel icing is fanciful, symbolic and delicious.

Easter dinner was always a joyous occasion when we were children. My mother, a Californian, loved to surprise us every year with a beautiful new dessert symbolizing Easter. She once made an Easter Egg cake, a difficult and lovely affair.

We still make her delightful cake, but with far less trouble and with less hazard. The new prepared cake mixes come to our rescue.

So here's our 1953 version of the California Easter Egg cake.

Easter Egg Cake

Bake the cake—Make 2 round 8-inch cake layers from devil's food cake mix, using package directions.

Prepare the frosting—Cream ½ cup butter until soft. Add ⅛ teaspoon salt and 1¾ cups sifted confectioners' sugar gradually, blending after each addition. Then add 2 unbeaten egg yolks and 1 teaspoon vanilla; blend well. Add 1¾ cups additional sifted confectioners' sugar, alternately with about 2 tablespoons top milk. Beat after each addition until smooth and of right consistency to spread.

To 1 cup of the frosting, add 2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted; blend and set aside. Divide remaining frosting in three parts (½ cup each) and tint each part a different color, using 2 drops each of red, green and yellow food coloring. Reserve about 2 tablespoons of each of the tinted frostings for decorating and use remainder for spreading between layers as directed below.

Make the egg—Cut each cake layer in two, about ¼-inch off center. This will make two large and two smaller pieces. Spread a thin layer of one of the tinted frostings on bottom of one large piece and place other large piece on it. Stand these upright, with cut sides on a cake plate.

Frost bottoms of the smaller pieces, each with a different tinted frosting. Place these against the larger pieces, one on each side. Trim the outside pieces at the top edges to help round off sides of cake. Then slice off wedge-shaped pieces from the four outside corners, to give cake an oval shape.

Cover the whole mound with the reserved chocolate frosting, filling in to make an egg shape. Decorate egg with the reserved tinted frosting. Garnish with additional Easter decorations, as desired. To serve, cut across the egg, making four-layer slices of cake.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Rhubarb sauce, codfish cakes, catsup, whole wheat toast, butter or margarine, marmalade, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Potato soup, crackers, peanut butter - jelly sandwiches, sliced canned pineapple, cookies, tea, milk.

EASTER DINNER: Chilled madrilene, baked ham slice with apricot stuffing, escalloped potatoes, green beans with almonds, hot biscuits, butter or margarine, watercress and tomato salad, French dressing, fresh fruit cup, Easter Egg cake, coffee, milk.

Explanation Gets Him Reduced Fine

Trumbull, Conn., March 17 (AP)—Victor M. Hovey, 45, of (302 Crescent Ave.) Wyckoff, N. J., pleaded guilty in town court to a charge of speeding which usually carries a minimum fine of $20.

The state policeman who arrested him testified he was doing betwen 65 and 70 miles an hour on the Merritt Parkway where there is a 55-mile-an-hour limit.

"Your honor," Hovey said to Judge Irwin E. Friedman, "I am a salesman and have driven over 400,000 miles. I seldom have my wife with me, but it so happens this time she was.

"She was reading an article to me on the dangers of fast driving," he went on, "and I was so intent on listening to her that I didn't realize my speed."

"I'll buy that one," said the court. "The fine is $10."

Horse meat can be sold only in special shops in Holland. National laws make it illegal to sell it in shops where beef, pork, or mutton are purveyed.

As Pegler Sees It

erwise unemployable mediocrities and sub-mediocrities who know they cannot be fired for cause this side of felonious conduct.

A woman whose husband is a postal employe in Springfield, Mo., and by her earnest account, a fine man who works very hard for a small salary, twits me thus: "I have never been to Europe nor shall I be able to go on the salary my husband earns. You who are sent on assignments and draw large salaries and expense accounts, when you find out about the waste of agencies, why not report that agency and not attack the whole civil service system?"

Waiving the irrelevancy of this reference to my own affairs, I would say that I did find out about waste in "agencies" in Europe and I have dwelt on specific cases of many parasitic labor attaches in the diplomatic system and white collar union bums of the Marshall plan, Hoffman and Harriman machines. A horde of such characters have been living high on the hog in Europe ever since the war, drawing more pay than they ever earned in working jobs at home, drawing expenses as well, and enjoying a complete waiver of the taxes which all of us who support these leeches must pay on our liquor and cigarettes. They get groceries and watches, camera and perfume at cost and bonuses with which to pay their rent, as though all of us did not have to pay rent.

Shepard Stone, of the New York Times propaganda system, who was named next to John McCloy, the hicogalorum of the hicog of Germany, was no mere labor attache nor underling. He was a dignitary, allowed eight servants drawn from the German civilian population, to manage his mansion in a region smashed to rubble where the good Germans as well as the Nazis were condemned to horrible hovels. We were trying to "democratize" these good Germans and Mr. Stone, on leave from the Times, a man of superior degree with a favorable opinion of himself, loftily said that this was the only reason he availed himself of such a large staff. But the New York Times version of "democracy" was not excessively appetizing to intelligent, moral human beings whose children had already spent seven years in degrading squalor under the iron heel of a luxurious and patronizing conqueror. Mr. Stone has since returned to continue his missionary work among us American natives as an official of the Ford Foundation. A Senate Committee on Civil Service admitted that 100,000 of our employes abroad were parasites, but there has been no mass elimination to date.

The civil service workers who have written me all remind me that they, too, pay income taxes. I was well aware of that but the fact remains that public employers are still consumers rather than producers of taxes even though they do pay income taxes in the same proportions that apply to the rest of us. The point at issue is not that the public service is parasitic in its very nature. That is not debatable. The point is that a system intended to limit the evils of the spoils system has become a device of the spoils system.

For a witness as to this I call R. A. Vander Pyl, of Kenosha, Wis., who has been in civil service many years. He writes:

"The blanketing into permanent status of political employes has been only part of the growing paternalistic attitude of government that is surely bringing this nation to the brink of ruin."

Six Lose Positions For Red Tie Silence

New York March 17 (AP)—Four teachers and two clerks of New York city's municipal colleges have been fired for refusing to answer questions about possible Communist affiliations before a U. S. Senate Subcommittee.

The city board of higher education last night declared the jobs of the six vacant.

All six appeared in Washington in February before a Senate Internal Security Subcommittee. They declined to answer some questions on grounds of possible self-incrimination.

Last night's action by the board, which is the governing body for New York's four municipal colleges, was taken under a provision in the city charter. This provision makes city employes liable to dismissal for refusing to answer questions of an authorized body.

The six were:

Dr. Oscar H. Shaftel, assistant professor of English at Queens College; Joseph Bressler, assistant professor of health and physical education at Brooklyn College; Elton T. Gustafson, instructor of health and physical education at Brooklyn College; Murray Young, English instructor at Brooklyn College; and Richard Austin and Hyman E. Gold, clerks in the registrar's office at the College of the City of New York.

Shaftel, who was present at last night's meeting, asked: "How many students are strengthened in free inquiry by your actions against me tonight!"

The dismissals bring to 12 the total number of staff members of New York municipal colleges fired after appearances before the committee.

Truckmen Make Move To Promote Unity

Syracuse, March 17 (AP) — A state-wide organization of local trucking associations has been formed here, in a move a spokesman said was "an effort to promote unity in the industry."

The Affiliated Trucking Associations of New York state was organized yesterday. A spokesman for the group said it would represent more than 1,800 truckers.

Thomas R. Blando of Utica, who was elected vice president, said it would seek to promote legislation, public relations and labor relations in the interests of the industry.

Eight-Foot Wheels

Farm carts in Argentina were once built with eight-foot wheels so they could negotiate the deep mud of unimproved roads behind three to four yokes of oxen, the National Geographic Society reports.

At the time of its first census in 1820 there were 127,901 people in Alabama.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

(Editor's Note. Our Mr. Boyle disappeared this morning into the St. Patrick's Day parade, leaving behind in his typewriter nothing but a small green shamrock. Therefore we are reprinting the following piece, which has found its way into many an Irish family scrapbook:)

By HAL BOYLE

New York (AP)—What is it to be Irish?

On 364 days of the year being Irish isn't visibly different from being Scotch, French, Italian, Jewish, Serbian, Dutch, or—yes—even English.

The Irishman pays his bills, complains against his taxes, does his work, and listens to his wife like the man of any other race.

But on this one day of the year—Holy St. Patrick's Day—the Irishman becomes an Irishman.

And on this day you have to be Irish to know what it is to be Irish.

The outer signs, of course, can be seen by all. The Irishman overnight grows a foot taller and stalks the earth a giant. All traffic lights turn green before him, and if they don't he sees red.

Only Token Evidence

But this air of majesty is only token evidence of interior change. The men of other races who envy the Irishman his bearing on St. Patrick's Day would envy him far more if he could look inside the Irishman's soul.

What is it to be Irish?

How can you put the wonder of it into words? If a psychiatrist stretched himself out on his own warm couch after his last customer had gone home, and he dreamed of the man he himself would most like to be—well, he might be perfect, but he'd still be only half an Irishman on St. Patrick's Day.

What is it to be Irish?

It is to have an angel in your mouth, turning your prose to poetry. It is to have the gift of tongues, to know the language of all living things. Does an Irishman pause and turn an ear to a tree? It is because on this day he wants to hear what one sleepy bud says to another as it opens its pale green hands to the warm sun of spring.

What is it to be Irish?

Oh, on this day it is music. Not just the cornet in the parading high school band, but the deep, deep music of living, the low, sad rhythms of eternity. The Irishman hears the high song of the turning spheres, the dim lullaby of the worm in its cocoon. All the world is in tune, and he is in step with tune, the tune that only he can hear.

What is it to be Irish?

It is to live the whole history of his race between a dawn and a dawn—the long wrongs, the bird-swift joys, the endless hurt of his ancestors since the morning of time in a forgotten forest, the knock-at-his-heart that is part of his religion.

What is it to be Irish?

It isn't only the realization that he is descended from kings. It is the realization that he is a king himself, an empire on two feet striding in power, a strolling continent of awe.

What is it to be Irish?

Why on St. Patrick's Day, to be Irish is to know more glory, adventure, magic, victory, exultation, gratitude and gladness than any other man can experience in a lifetime.

What is it to be Irish? It is to walk in complete mystic understanding with God for 24 wonderful hours.

Baltz Appointed To Head Cancer Campaign in City

Chester A. Baltz, Jr., vice-president of C. A. Baltz, Inc., has been appointed to head the drive of the Ulster County Cancer Society in the city of Kingston, it was announced today by County Chairman Herman G. Rafalowsky. The campaign begins April 1.

Baltz, a veteran of World War 2, currently holding the rank of major in the Air Corps Reserve, has served actively in community affairs. He was a captain in WW 2. In 1951-52 he was treasurer of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce. He is also a member of the board of trustees of the First Presbyterian Church and serves as superintendent of the Sunday school.

Rafalowsky said a number of meetings of the campaign committee had been held recently to formulate final plans for the drive.

In considering the request for support, Rafalowsky said, "many people may ask with justification just how important this cause is, and if it is necessary to contribute year after year. A look at the record of scientific achievement will demonstrate the answer better than anything else.

"The over-all death rate from the nation's dreaded diseases has been reduced over 15 per cent since 1937 and this improvement is directly due to the development of the sulfa drugs, penicillin and other antibiotics. If the public can provide the funds to keep these scientists at work the complete answer will be found. Already, half of those who develop cancer can be saved by early diagnosis and prompt treatment."

To Meet March 25

Chairmen and workers will meet Wednesday, March 25, at the American Legion building, 18 West O'Reilly street. All are requested to attend.

Senator Arthur H. Wicks is serving as honorary chairman of the drive. The following associate honorary chairmen are also listed: Sister M. Berenice, Mrs. James H. Betts, the Rev. William C. Cain, Msgr. Martin J. Drury, Capt. Andrew S. Hickey, Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, Thomas J. Plunket, Walter R. Seamon, John F. Wadlin and Rabbi David Kohn. George C. Bode is treasurer and Aaron Klein chairman of county publicity.

The following will serve as township chairmen:

Denning, Mrs. Harry Cole; Esopus, Mrs. Arthur Friedman and Mrs. Roscoe Elsworth; Gardiner, Mrs. Richard Decker; Hardenbergh, Mrs. Claude Haynes and Mrs. John Gill; Kingston, Joseph Carcaramo; Lloyd, Mrs. Arthur H. Clark; Marbletown, Dr. John H. MacDonald; Marlborough, Mrs. Pearl Smith; New Paltz, Arthur Jorgensen; Olive, Edgar H. Timmerman; Plattekill, Mrs. Lillian Courter; Rochester, Mrs. William Treadway; Rosendale, Wilfred Doolittle; Saugerties, Hugo Knavert, Charles Sasso, Ben Fein, Mrs. Robert Compitello and Mrs. Albert Giannotti; Shandaken, Mrs. Vincent Somerville; Shawangunk, Jesse McHugh; Ulster, Mrs. Rudolf Soltys and Mrs. Gilbert Hoppenstedt; Wawarsing, William M. Kelb, Jr.; Woodstock, Mrs. Edward Gurland and Mrs. Edith Heckeroth.

Baltz has appointed as Kingston chairmen: Publicity chairman, Robert McMillan; special gifts chairman, Howard R. St. John; associate chairmen: Murray Greene, Edward Holland, William Keyser, Louis Netter, Robert M. Peebles, Hubert Richter, George Rifenbary, David Schechter and Dr. William S. Bush.

Local Sisterhoods' Annual Joint Meeting Attracts Over 150

The Women's Group of Agudas Achim was hostess to the Sisterhoods of Ahavath Israel and Temple Emanuel, on the occasion of the second annual meeting of the three groups, held recently in Agudas Achim vestry hall. About 150 women in attendance heard a talk by Mrs. Max Perman on the theme, Working Together on a Community-wide Basis.

Mrs. Perman, member of the Women's Branch of the Union of Orthodox Congregations of America, offered several constructive recommendations to the local women. She urged them to work together for communal welfare funds, including the Red Cross, Cancer, TB, Heart and others; to unite for the United Jewish Appeal; and to support the needs of the young state of Israel.

Religious Education

The importance of religious education was outlined by the speaker. "Work together for religious education. See to it that the children are enrolled in Sunday and religious schools, so that they might have the benefit of knowing what is their heritage," she said.

Entreating the mothers to promote regular attendance at Sabbath services in the synagogues and to observe Sabbath ceremonies in their homes, Mrs. Perman concluded by saying, "a family that prays together, stays together."

Following the meeting, the women enjoyed a social hour when refreshments were served.

Serving on the food committee were the Mmes. Jack Epstein, Ethel Meyers, Benjamin Werbalowsky, Sherman Kent, Harry Friedman, Benjamin Suskind, Louis Alcon, Joseph Epstein, and Harry Katzoff. Mrs. Ralphael Klein and Mrs. Ethel Meyers were in charge of the flowers.

Hostesses were Miss Rae Weiner and the Mmes. Sam Barnovitz, Louis Ellenbogen and Jack Epstein. Mrs. George Farber and Mrs. Sidney Halpern presided at the tea table.

Greetings from Ahavath Israel and Temple Emanuel were presented by presidents of the sisterhoods, Mrs. Murray Greene, and Mrs. Leon Gross, respectively.

Mrs. Joseph Epstein, president, Agudas Achim Sisterhood, welcomed the guests and introduced the speaker.

Annual Catholic Holy Hour Held in City

The annual Holy Hour for Catholic girls and adults in Girl Scouting, sponsored by the Catholic Committee on Scouting, was held Sunday at St. Peter's Church, Kingston, by the Rev. William Raftery, moderator of St. Peter's troops.

Approximately 150 girls and adults representing St. Mary's, St. Peter's and St. Joseph's of Kingston and the Church of the Presentation, Port Ewen, attended. Miss Nan Goldrick, organist at the church, was in charge of music.

Mrs. George McDonough, chairman of the Holy Hour, was assisted by Mrs. Jeremy Bouchard, Mrs. Frank Graney, Mrs David Conway and Mrs. Richard Donnelly.

Benedictine Hospital School of Nursing Caps 21 Students

Philosophy Professor Addresses Student Nurses at Exercises

The capping exercises of the Benedictine Hospital School of Nursing were preceded by a Mass and Communion breakfast which were held Sunday morning in the hospital chapel. The newly decorated chapel was also the scene of the afternoon ceremony during which 21 students received their caps. The Rev. Joseph M. Colleran, CSsR, professor of philosophy at Mount St. Alphonsus Seminary, Esopus, delivered the address.

Also an instructor in psychology at the hospital school, the Rev. Father Colleran, pointed out that training of nurses involves three complementary phases; acquisition of knowledge, development of skills, and formation of character. He described the special function of religion in each of these phases.

Lauds Sisters, Students

Father Colleran also lauded the Sisters of the Order of Saint Benedict, and their past and present students, for the successes achieved in fulfilling the purpose of a school of nursing under religious auspices and with a religious orientation.

Program

The program introduced with a processional; included Blessing of caps by Father Colleran; Capping, Sister M. Callista and senior students; nurse's pledge, Augustus Carbomo; Placing of Candles on Our Lady's altar; Mother Beloved, hymn, students.

And, Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament; Panis Angelicus, Tantum Ergo, Holy God We Praise Thy Name, Oh Blessed Saint Joseph, hymns; and the recessional.

The parents and friends of the students were entertained at a tea poured by Miss Catherine Oulette, president of the student council, and assisted by Miss Beverly Peterson, Miss Donna King and Miss Kathleen Joyce, members of the senior class.

Bride-Elect Is Honored at Shower

A surprise bridal shower was given recently for Miss Janice Goodrich, 43 Valentine avenue, in the Marine room at the Barn. Miss Goodrich will become the bride of William Brutsman on Eastern Sunday, at the Old Dutch Church.

The shower was given by those who will be honor attendants at the wedding. They are Mrs. Bruce Winchell, patron of honor; and Mrs. Watson Goodrich Jr., Miss Alice Severson and Miss Shirley Hughes, bridesmaids.

In attendance were the Misses Sylvia Hughes, Joyce Davis, Mary Cathryn Fennelly, Barbara Missove, June Rider and Marion McCoubrey.

Also, the Mmes. Watson I. Goodrich, Joseph Carpino, Lemuel Howard, Olive Slezak, Beverly Scheffel, Palmer Severson, Elsie Benz, Joseph Hughes, Carl Rietschel, Charles McGinnis, Charles McGinnis Jr., Frank Stone, Gene Rider, Jack Sharot, Helen Mazdin, Charles Lord.

And, the Mmes. Neil Dunham, Richard Matthews, Kenneth Cudney, Morris Hand, Carolyn Crosby, Hazel Maines, Albert Lahl, Emma Smith, John McGowan, Walter Schmitz, Louis Greco, Guy Sykes, Harold Macholdt, and Donald Newton.

EXTREMITY HAS BEEN REACHED

The following letter is one that will certainly find many readers in agreement with its protest: "What is your opinion of the present-day undress of women? I am referring to the strapless dresses and plunging necklines. I think some of them are positively indecent. I object to this manner of dress particularly on television because many of these programs are seen by children. I was very much embarrassed the other evening when one of the performers appeared on the television screen wearing a dress cut so low that it brought whistles from my two teen-aged sons. I think it is time someone took a stand against this. Perhaps a few comments by an authority such as yourself would help."

I think a good many of us have protested against the undress you describe, and it seems to me that there has been a definite improvement — especially on television. Let us hope that in time all women will realize that beauty does not go beyond certain limits, and will confine themselves within them.

Salad Problem

Dear Mrs. Post: Salad served with the meat course is most often put at the left of the dinner plate. I find this very awkward when wearing long loose sleeves because, when stretching across the dinner plate, the sleeve is very apt to go into the plate and become soiled. Is it ever permissible for a guest to move the salad plate to the right if she finds this side more convenient?

Answer: If there's space at the right I see no reason why you can't lift your plate over if you want to. The reason why it is put at the left is because there is more room on this side.

Office Visitors

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it correct for a man to remain behind his desk, seated, to shake hands with a man visitor? Does it matter if the man is a salesman or a customer?

Answer: If the visitor is one with whom he shakes hands, he naturally gets up to do so. Usually, however—especially in a very busy office — a pleasant greeting said from where he is seated is all that is required.

Mrs. William Jordan Reelected Head of Rapid Hose Auxiliary

At the annual meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Rapid Hose Co. 1, Thursday evening in the engine house on Hone street, Mrs. William Jordan was re-elected as president.

Also re-elected were Mrs. Joseph Corkery, vice-president; Mrs. Vincent Curtin, secretary; Mrs. Daniel Daignault, financial secretary; Mrs. Donald Vanderlyn, chaplain; Mrs. Kenneth Lang, treasurer. Mrs. Louis Charmello was elected to a three-year term as trustee.

The officers were installed by Mrs. John Heaney, president, Weiner Hose Auxiliary. Mrs. Charles Henninger, secretary of Weiner Hose Auxiliary, was the installing conductress.

Mrs. Jordan appointed committees to include Mrs. Walter Albrecht, publicity; Mrs. Joseph Corkery, chairman, investigating committee, assisted by Mrs. Anthony Maggiore and Mrs. Arthur Dittus; Mrs. Donald Vanderlyn, chairman of welfare, assisted by Mrs. Henry Kelsch and Mrs. Joseph Bruck.

Plans were discussed for the card party to be held in the engine house Thursday, April 16. Mrs. Vincent Curtin was named chairman; and Mrs. Louis Charmello, co-chairman.

Local Sisterhoods' Annual Joint Meeting Attracts Over 150

The Women's Group of Agudas Achim was hostess to the Sisterhoods of Ahavath Israel and Temple Emanuel, on the occasion of the second annual meeting of the three groups, held recently in Agudas Achim vestry hall. About 150 women in attendance heard a talk by Mrs. Max Perman on the theme, Working Together on a Community-wide Basis.

Mrs. Perman, member of the Women's Branch of the Union of Orthodox Congregations of America, offered several constructive recommendations to the local women. She urged them to work together for communal welfare funds, including the Red Cross, Cancer, TB, Heart and others; to unite for the United Jewish Appeal; and to support the needs of the young state of Israel.

Religious Education

The importance of religious education was outlined by the speaker. "Work together for religious education. See to it that the children are enrolled in Sunday and religious schools, so that they might have the benefit of knowing what is their heritage," she said.

Entreating the mothers to promote regular attendance at Sabbath services in the synagogues and to observe Sabbath ceremonies in their homes, Mrs. Perman concluded by saying, "a family that prays together, stays together."

Following the meeting, the women enjoyed a social hour when refreshments were served.

Serving on the food committee were the Mmes. Jack Epstein, Ethel Meyers, Benjamin Werbalowsky, Sherman Kent, Harry Friedman, Benjamin Suskind, Louis Alcon, Joseph Epstein, and Harry Katzoff. Mrs. Ralphael Klein and Mrs. Ethel Meyers were in charge of the flowers.

Hostesses were Miss Rae Weiner and the Mmes. Sam Barnovitz, Louis Ellenbogen and Jack Epstein. Mrs. George Farber and Mrs. Sidney Halpern presided at the tea table.

Greetings from Ahavath Israel and Temple Emanuel were presented by presidents of the sisterhoods, Mrs. Murray Greene, and Mrs. Leon Gross, respectively.

Mrs. Joseph Epstein, president, Agudas Achim Sisterhood, welcomed the guests and introduced the speaker.

Tinker Nursery Plans Spring Fund Drive

Woodstock, March 17—At the March 12 meeting of the Tinker Street Nursery School members discussed proposals for a fund-raising project this spring. Mrs. Robert Phelps and Mrs. Ralph Kricker were asked to investigate possibilities for raising funds that will enable the school to function as at present, without raising the tuition.

After the business meeting two entertaining and informative films, The Terrible Twos and The Trusting Threes were shown, by Miss Mary Mossman of the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association.

Announcement was made that Dr. Edward F. Shea, chairman of the Mental Hygiene Committee of Ulster county, will be the speaker at the next meeting of the Tinker Street Nursery School, Wednesday, April 15.

Painting by Bensing Shown in New York

Woodstock, March 17 — A watercolor painting titled Mournful Pine, by Frank C. Bensing, eminent artist of Wittenberg and New York, is being shown in the 1953 annual exhibition of water colors and sculpture at the Salmagundi Club, New York. The exhibition, which will be on view through March 27, is open daily from 12:30 to 6 p. m., and Sunday from 2 to 6 p. m.

Girl Scouts Hold Village Cookie Sale

Woodstock, March 17—The Girl Scout cookie sale which began last Saturday and will continue through March 21, is being conducted by Girl Scout Troops 12 and 74, and Brownie Troops 27 and 29. Representatives of the troops are on duty each afternoon at Mower's Food Market and the Woodstock Food Market where the cookies may be purchased. The proceeds from the cookie sale will go towards Girl Scout work both in Woodstock and in Ulster county, and is the only fund raising drive they will have during the year.

Mrs. John Wolven is chairman of the committee for the cookie sale, and is being assisted by the following: Mrs. Inger Walker, Mrs. Charles Rapp, Mrs. Theodore Lee and Mrs. Robert Gordon. Mothers of troop members will also assist with the sale.

Riding Club to Meet

Woodstock, March 17 — The Woodstock Riding Club, Inc., will hold a special meeting Thursday, March 19, at 8 p. m. in the basement of the Dutch Reformed Church.

Supper Is Planned

Woodstock, March 17 — The chicken chowmein supper which was postponed from the original date of March 17, at the Dutch Reformed Church, will be held on Wednesday, April 8. The first serving will begin at 5:30 p. m.

Village Notes

Woodstock, March 17—Mr. and Mrs. Dudley G. Summers returned Sunday from a three week's trip to Florida.

Mrs. Leo Herbert returned Monday after a week's visit in Chicago with her husband who is there with the play, The Shrike. The play will close March 21, and Mr. Herbert is expected to return to his home.

New Spring Clothes Indicate Coronation Consciousness Here

AP Women's Editor

There will be no lingering doubts that America is coronation conscious, once the girls step out in their new spring clothes. They'll be wearing crowns on their lapels, scepters on their handbags and tiaras on their heads.

Dresses Have Regal Theme

Seventh avenue, New York's seething cauldron of mase-produced fashion, is taking the coronation hard. Dresses from $10.75 up are being produced with a regal theme. Some dressmakers content themselves with the color "coronation white." Others throw in sequined or jewel-embroidered royal insignia on pockets and collars for good measure.

Latest evidence of the popular appeal is the fact now you can buy a tiara at Woolworth's stores for 98 cents. A Fifth avenue five-and-dime has a great counter of the jeweled headdresses, in a variety of styles, selling like hotcakes to eager stenographers and high school students.

Costume Jewelry Goes All Out

Costume jewelry manufacturers also are going all out on the coronation theme. All of them are showing tiaras, ranging from the 98-cent variety to impressive affairs selling as high as $50. The jeweled crown pin will be seen on a million suit lapels in the U. S. Easter parade. Small jeweled thrones and scepters also will be much in evidence, worn as pins, earrings or bracelet charms.

Hairdressers on Bandwagon

Hairdressers have jumped on the bandwagon with a series of "coronation hairdos," designed for correct wear with tiaras. They have added all kinds of jeweled gadgets to increase the coiffure sparkle.

Glove manufacturers report an unprecedented demand for formal white kid gloves, many jewel-embroidered. Milliners are doing a land-office business in "important" hats, flower-laden and veiled.

No Knee Breeches

Thus far, there have been no reports of a fad for knee-breeches among men, but there is wide evidence of a more formal trend in masculine fashion, with suits adopting the British "Edwardian" silhouette, with narrower trousers, higher-fastening coats and sleeves sometimes with small cuffs.

In England they have the queen, but here in America the fashion promotion experts are having most of the coronation fun.

Honor Roll, Pursuits Listed at Immaculate Conception School

The Immaculate Conception School has announced its honor roll as shown by report cards distributed on Friday, March 13.

Recent pursuits of the pulpils in the School Civics Club include educational field trips to the Central Post Office, the Library, Rondout Bank, and the New York Telephone Company.

The children have been rehearsing a four-act drama, Behold the Spouse of Christ, which will be presented on Sunday March 22 and on March 29, at 7:30 p. m. The play depicts the story of two young women, Patricia and Octavia. Patricia, although the daughter of a Roman senator, spent her early childhood in England where she lived with her exiled Christian mother, Constance. After her mother's death, Patricia goes to Rome where, her mother said, she would find her sister. How and where she is to be found, is a mystery. The mystery unfolds as the play progresses.

The honor roll follows:

Professional Unity Cited at Teachers' Association Meeting

Great good may be accomplished through professional solidarity, was the keynote of the introductory welcome extended to a large assemblage of administrators, teachers and guests by Mrs. Marion Murray, a member of the Kingston High School faculty, and president of the Kingston Teachers Association, at its annual spring get-together held at the Governor Clinton Hotel recently.

The affair commenced with a smorgasbord served in the Crystal Room at 6:30 p. m. Dinner music was furnished by Decosta Dawson. Mary Redmond, contralto, and Martin Kelly, tenor, delighted the group with a varied program of classical and popular vocal selections.

Following the dinner hour, Mrs. Murray presented Clayton Seeber, member of the NYSTA Board of Directors of the Southeastern zone. Mr. Seeber, appearing before the group for the second consecutive year, prefaced his talk by stressing the need for the support of the entire teaching personnel within a community to make "the local association a dynamic, alive, and effective organization."

NYSTA Major Aims

"The major aim of the New York State Teachers Association at the present time," Mr. Seeber told the group, is to rearrange its structure so as to give the greatest service possible to the teachers within the state." Founded 108 years ago, the association has developed concurrently with the general educational picture. Two years ago, a special committee was set up to study the structure of the present association. Committee members have worked diligently and as a result of their findings will present constructive recommendations for improvement, to the executive board of the NYSTA in Albany during the current month. Official action will be delayed until the annual meeting of the NYSTA House of Delegates in the fall of 1953.

Centralization Movement

The movement for school centralizations coupled with the accompanying dispersement of the population has created new problems, Mr. Seeber pointed out the members having remained static since the formation of the original ten zones within the state in 1923, is considering vast zone changes. The new plan will provide greater territorial unity and more effective legislative representation in the NYSTA.

"Streamlining the state association," remarked Mr. Seeber," with the local association as the basic unit of representation makes direct communication from NYSTA headquarters in Albany possible. He urges continued exploring of educational needs and the recognition of every community as a vital part of the entire state organization.

Delving into the historical background of the NYSTA, Kenneth Myers, state president, lauded the noteworthy achievements of the association since its organization in 1845.

First Purpose

The first purpose of the state association is the promotion of general interest in public education, Mr. Myers continued. Throughout the decades, the association has supported every worthy educational movement, the granting of free education to all children, the compulsory education law, the rural school law, and increased state aid for educational purposes.

"Teachers and educators should talk about what they are doing," Mr. Myers advised. Many loyal, patriotic citizens are teaching within our public schools. As the public attacks increase upon the schools, the teaching profession should take a stand on the 'offensive' rather than the 'defensive.' It is the attitude of the teacher not the label of the course that is important." he said. A teacher affects eternally; one can never tell where her influence stops.

Handbag manufacturers also were determined not to be caught napping and turned out spring designs heavily encrusted with royal insignia.

Concluding his talk, Mr. Myers cautioned all teachers to become a vital port of the community by entering into school, church, and community life. Intimate contacts while working closely together builds a sound public relations program and exerts an ever-widening influence upon public thinking.

Howard Goold, executive secretary of NYSTA, spoke of the strength of the teachers of New York state as a force for good.

Public Sentiment Important

Mr. Goold outlined the legislative program of the NYSTA for the current year. He noted the attainment of unusual legislative advances in education. The bill for increased state aid was unanimously endorsed at the Educational Conference meeting in June. The significant fact is, Mr. Goold emphasized, that all proposed legislative action has received the united support of the Educational Conference Board of New York state, the local Boards of Education, and the teachers within the public schools throughout the session. He commended the teachers for their support of the legislative program. He urged teachers and educators to keep the public informed of any critical situation. Public sentiment is a very influential force in attaining any educational legislation, Mr. Goold concluded.

The Mature Parent

We Have to Build Our Way Up To Big Humanitarian Gestures

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Six years ago, Mrs. D. had a son. After he was born, she was told she could have no more babies.

Promptly propaganda went to work on her. Scenting out defensiveness in Mrs. D., it told her that without other children in her home, Dickie might not turn out so well. It said, "He will grow up incapable of friendly 'give-and-take'."

So Mrs. D. went to an adoption agency, picked out a big brother for Dickie and brought him home for a month's visit.

The candidate for brotherhood did not inspire "friendly give-and-take." He inspired such jealousy in Dickie that he had to be returned to the agency.

"I am sick with anxiety," writes Mrs. D. "Have I the right to inflict this adjustment on my own boy?"

When I read this letter, I got angry. I am still pretty angry at the confidence-wreckers who first convinced Mrs. D. she could not be a competent mother to one child—and now seeks to make her ashamed of her dread of mothering another.

So I would rejoice if Mrs. D. could say to herself, "No, I am not ready to adopt a child. It would be a noble thing to do. But as the very idea makes me nervous, I see that I have growth to make first. Until I recover full trust for the love I give my own son, I better not try over-extending it elsewhere."

If this makes sense, let Mrs. D. call the adoption agency but quick—and release that young candidate for brotherhood from his torment of anxiety and suspense.

You and I have been undervalued and patronized so long that it's a marvel we can believe in ourselves at all. For years, our child "experts" talked down to us. For years, it's been the habit of politicians to refer to you and me as "the little people."

When these leaders have not been generously adjusting themselves to our retarded "8-year-old mentalities," they have been starry-eyed and aglow with exalted humanitarium ideals for us. It's all been very highfalutin' and catching. We can't really wonder that Mrs. D. is sick with self-reproach that she can't manage the sweeping humanitarium gesture.

We have to build up to those humanitarian gestures, Mrs. D. If we try to make them on someone else's say-so, instead of our own self-esteem, we just fall flat on our faces and knock ourselves out.

The newest hats for Spring blossom with flowers. We show here John Frederics powder blue milan straw (upper left) with brim of blue hairbraid edged in straw. Back trimming is a cluster of bright yellow flowers. Ripple picture hat (upper center) by Laddie Northridge is beige linen straw trimmed with wreath of cherry blossoms and red cherries. Forward-tilted peaked bonnet of rasberry strawcloth has accents of matching velvet (upper right). This is a Peg Fischer design. Walter Florell uses white marabou (lower left) in a wide band on pale blue straw, sprinkles it with rhinestones for glitter. Sally Victor's great big pink picture hat (lower center) is rough straw with large rose as trim. Tiny natural milan sailor by Chanda (lower right) is set on red plateau, trimmed with black-and-red striped ribbon band, has red carnation at one side. The field is divided rather evenly between large and small hats.

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Woman's Editor

New York—(NEA)—Flowered hats will bloom atop pretty heads in vibrant colors this spring, reviving interest in trimmings that are more feminine and elaborate than in the past.

For color itself is deeper and more glowing this spring, thanks to the coming Coronation. Bold blues, pinks, yellows, greens and a rich garnet are seen singly or even in combinations. Replacing the pallid pinks and blues of seasons gone are aqua and coral, torrid greenish-blues, and eye-catching purples.

The emphasis on color and trimming this year stems naturally from the fact that spring ready-to-wear is essentially trimmed down, lacking in fuss or feathers This spare silhouette makes an ideal companion for accessories that are brighter and more elaborate.

Texture is developed, too, in interesting straws that are sometimes combined with an interweaving of shaggy yarn for an effect that's nearly angora. Or, there are the sheer lacy straws, pleated straw casuals, yarn embroideries, small shells used effectively on smooth toyo, shiny basket-weave straws studded with white or pastel-colored souffle or woolen beads.

Silhouette stresses the small, pretty hat with some subtle changes rung on the past—narrower, longer lines from back to front in sailors; crowns that are blousier, and back propeller tabs.

But there's also belief in the importance of the bigger hat for spring. This means wide, undulating brims, big bonnets and shallow, wide-brimmed sailors. In many of these big hats, black horsehair promotes a sheer, see-through look.

Honor Roll, Pursuits Listed at Immaculate Conception School

The Immaculate Conception School has announced its honor roll as shown by report cards distributed on Friday, March 13.

Recent pursuits of the pulpils in the School Civics Club include educational field trips to the Central Post Office, the Library, Rondout Bank, and the New York Telephone Company.

The children have been rehearsing a four-act drama, Behold the Spouse of Christ, which will be presented on Sunday March 22 and on March 29, at 7:30 p. m. The play depicts the story of two young women, Patricia and Octavia. Patricia, although the daughter of a Roman senator, spent her early childhood in England where she lived with her exiled Christian mother, Constance. After her mother's death, Patricia goes to Rome where, her mother said, she would find her sister. How and where she is to be found, is a mystery. The mystery unfolds as the play progresses.

The honor roll follows:

High honor 90 per cent—Phyllis Madajewski, Elizabeth Hudela and Francis Janeczek, grade eight; Frances Mooney, Julia Ann Hayes and Angela Lovy, grade seven; Katherine Komosa, Charles Fuscardo, and Barbara Francello, grade six; Mary Kolano and Patricia Sweeney, grade five; Emily Lukaszewski and Donald Komosa, grade four; Carol Fuscardo, Rosanne Mayone, Carl Janasiewicz, and Diane Brady, grade three; John Darwak, Mary L. Demski, and Arthur Perry, grade 2; and Thomas Berardi, grade one.

Average 85 to 89—Mary Agnes Grabiec, John Markett, and Joan Raskowski, grade eight; Margaret Bujak and Phyllis Komosa, grade seven; Donald Kruszenski, grade six; Terence Gill, grade five; Mary Ann Gorman, Peter Tartarzewski, and Theresa Corcoran, grade four; Roseanne Szczypkowska, Francis Jablonski, and Paul Wojnowski, grade three; Carol Klonowski, Raymond Komosa, Stephen Sember and Mary Sepesy, grade two; Jenine Prusack, Rosemary Czarnecski, Madeline Tartarzewski, Shirley Ahrens, Walter Schmitz, Theresa Paczkowski, Robert Haney, and Jo Ann Tucker, grade one.

Professional Unity Cited at Teachers' Association Meeting

Great good may be accomplished through professional solidarity, was the keynote of the introductory welcome extended to a large assemblage of administrators, teachers and guests by Mrs. Marion Murray, a member of the Kingston High School faculty, and president of the Kingston Teachers Association, at its annual spring get-together held at the Governor Clinton Hotel recently.

The affair commenced with a smorgasbord served in the Crystal Room at 6:30 p. m. Dinner music was furnished by Decosta Dawson. Mary Redmond, contralto, and Martin Kelly, tenor, delighted the group with a varied program of classical and popular vocal selections.

Following the dinner hour, Mrs. Murray presented Clayton Seeber, member of the NYSTA Board of Directors of the Southeastern zone. Mr. Seeber, appearing before the group for the second consecutive year, prefaced his talk by stressing the need for the support of the entire teaching personnel within a community to make "the local association a dynamic, alive, and effective organization."

NYSTA Major Aims

"The major aim of the New York State Teachers Association at the present time," Mr. Seeber told the group, is to rearrange its structure so as to give the greatest service possible to the teachers within the state." Founded 108 years ago, the association has developed concurrently with the general educational picture. Two years ago, a special committee was set up to study the structure of the present association. Committee members have worked diligently and as a result of their findings will present constructive recommendations for improvement, to the executive board of the NYSTA in Albany during the current month. Official action will be delayed until the annual meeting of the NYSTA House of Delegates in the fall of 1953.

Centralization Movement

The movement for school centralizations coupled with the accompanying dispersement of the population has created new problems, Mr. Seeber pointed out the members having remained static since the formation of the original ten zones within the state in 1923, is considering vast zone changes. The new plan will provide greater territorial unity and more effective legislative representation in the NYSTA.

"Streamlining the state association," remarked Mr. Seeber," with the local association as the basic unit of representation makes direct communication from NYSTA headquarters in Albany possible. He urges continued exploring of educational needs and the recognition of every community as a vital part of the entire state organization.

Delving into the historical background of the NYSTA, Kenneth Myers, state president, lauded the noteworthy achievements of the association since its organization in 1845.

First Purpose

The first purpose of the state association is the promotion of general interest in public education, Mr. Myers continued. Throughout the decades, the association has supported every worthy educational movement, the granting of free education to all children, the compulsory education law, the rural school law, and increased state aid for educational purposes.

"Teachers and educators should talk about what they are doing," Mr. Myers advised. Many loyal, patriotic citizens are teaching within our public schools. As the public attacks increase upon the schools, the teaching profession should take a stand on the 'offensive' rather than the 'defensive.' It is the attitude of the teacher not the label of the course that is important." he said. A teacher affects eternally; one can never tell where her influence stops.

Handbag manufacturers also were determined not to be caught napping and turned out spring designs heavily encrusted with royal insignia.

Concluding his talk, Mr. Myers cautioned all teachers to become a vital port of the community by entering into school, church, and community life. Intimate contacts while working closely together builds a sound public relations program and exerts an ever-widening influence upon public thinking.

Howard Goold, executive secretary of NYSTA, spoke of the strength of the teachers of New York state as a force for good.

Public Sentiment Important

Mr. Goold outlined the legislative program of the NYSTA for the current year. He noted the attainment of unusual legislative advances in education. The bill for increased state aid was unanimously endorsed at the Educational Conference meeting in June. The significant fact is, Mr. Goold emphasized, that all proposed legislative action has received the united support of the Educational Conference Board of New York state, the local Boards of Education, and the teachers within the public schools throughout the session. He commended the teachers for their support of the legislative program. He urged teachers and educators to keep the public informed of any critical situation. Public sentiment is a very influential force in attaining any educational legislation, Mr. Goold concluded.

The Mature Parent

We Have to Build Our Way Up To Big Humanitarian Gestures

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Six years ago, Mrs. D. had a son. After he was born, she was told she could have no more babies.

Promptly propaganda went to work on her. Scenting out defensiveness in Mrs. D., it told her that without other children in her home, Dickie might not turn out so well. It said, "He will grow up incapable of friendly 'give-and-take'."

So Mrs. D. went to an adoption agency, picked out a big brother for Dickie and brought him home for a month's visit.

The candidate for brotherhood did not inspire "friendly give-and-take." He inspired such jealousy in Dickie that he had to be returned to the agency.

"I am sick with anxiety," writes Mrs. D. "Have I the right to inflict this adjustment on my own boy?"

When I read this letter, I got angry. I am still pretty angry at the confidence-wreckers who first convinced Mrs. D. she could not be a competent mother to one child—and now seeks to make her ashamed of her dread of mothering another.

So I would rejoice if Mrs. D. could say to herself, "No, I am not ready to adopt a child. It would be a noble thing to do. But as the very idea makes me nervous, I see that I have growth to make first. Until I recover full trust for the love I give my own son, I better not try over-extending it elsewhere."

If this makes sense, let Mrs. D. call the adoption agency but quick —and release that young candidate for brotherhood from his torment of anxiety and suspense.

You and I have been undervalued and patronized so long that it's a marvel we can believe in ourselves at all. For years, our child "experts" talked down to us. For years, it's been the habit of politicians to refer to you and me as "the little people."

When these leaders have not been generously adjusting themselves to our retarded "8-year-old mentalities," they have been starry-eyed and aglow with exalted humanitarium ideals for us. It's all been very highfalutin' and catching. We can't really wonder that Mrs. D. is sick with self-reproach that she can't manage the sweeping humanitarium gesture.

We have to build up to those humanitarian gestures, Mrs. D. If we try to make them on someone else's say-so, instead of our own self-esteem, we just fall flat on our faces and knock ourselves out.

Bright Colors, Flowers Dominante

The newest hats for Spring blossom with flowers. We show here John Frederics powder blue milan straw (upper left) with brim of blue hairbraid edged in straw. Back trimming is a cluster of bright yellow flowers. Ripple picture hat (upper center) by Laddie Northridge is beige linen straw trimmed with wreath of cherry blossoms and red cherries. Forward-tilted peaked bonnet of rasberry strawcloth has accents of matching velvet (upper right). This is a Peg Fischer design. Walter Florell uses white marabou (lower left) in a wide band on pale blue straw, sprinkles it with rhinestones for glitter. Sally Victor's great big pink picture hat (lower center) is rough straw with large rose as trim. Tiny natural milan sailor by Chanda (lower right) is set on red plateau, trimmed with black-and-red striped ribbon band, has red carnation at one side. The field is divided rather evenly between large and small hats.

New York—(NEA)—Flowered hats will bloom atop pretty heads in vibrant colors this spring, reviving interest in trimmings that are more feminine and elaborate than in the past.

For color itself is deeper and more glowing this spring, thanks to the coming Coronation. Bold blues, pinks, yellows, greens and a rich garnet are seen singly or even in combinations. Replacing the pallid pinks and blues of seasons gone are aqua and coral, torrid greenish-blues, and eye-catching purples.

The emphasis on color and trimming this year stems naturally from the fact that spring ready-to-wear is essentially trimmed down, lacking in fuss or feathers This spare silhouette makes an ideal companion for accessories that are brighter and more elaborate.

Texture is developed, too, in interesting straws that are sometimes combined with an interweaving of shaggy yarn for an effect that's nearly angora. Or, there are the sheer lacy straws, pleated straw casuals, yarn embroideries, small shells used effectively on smooth toyo, shiny basket-weave straws studded with white or pastel-colored souffle or woolen beads.

Silhouette stresses the small, pretty hat with some subtle changes rung on the past—narrower, longer lines from back to front in sailors; crowns that are blousier, and back propeller tabs.

But there's also belief in the importance of the bigger hat for spring. This means wide, undulating brims, big bonnets and shallow, wide-brimmed sailors. In many of these big hats, black horsehair promotes a sheer, see-through look.

Veeck's Failure May Affect Braves' Hopes for Milwaukee Deal

Tampa, Fla., March 17 (AP)—One of the surest things in the history of baseball boomeranged into one of the biggest surprises in the game since the turn of the century when Bill Veeck was refused permission to transfer the St. Louis Browns to Baltimore.

For almost a week, unofficial polls of the owners indicated that mere formalities were involved in the proposed switch. But when they met here yesterday, they sent Veeck back to St. Louis for at least one more year with a 5-2 vote against the switch. It was reported only the Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox voted for the move.

As officials talked it over today, they were not so certain the Boston Braves would receive permission to transfer the National League franchise to Milwaukee. This move also had been thought to be all set except for the official voting in St. Petersburg tomorrow.

All the National League club owners must approve if the switch is to be made, and at least one—Walter O'Malley of the Brooklyn Dodgers—hinted he might not vote for the change.

It also was reported that Horace Stoneham of the New York Giants was against the move.

Psychological Factor

There's no doubt that the American League action will have at least a psychological effect on the National League meeting.

Another thing that may influence National League moguls is the attitude of Commissioner Ford Frick. He obviously was pleased that the Browns will be forced to remain in St. Louis.

"I'm in favor of transferring the franchise, but not at this late time," he said, referring to the Browns.

Veeck, who said he lost $400,000 in St. Louis last year said he has no intention of selling the club—at least not at the present.

Although Veeck complained the other owners wanted to see him leave the baseball picture, President Will Harridge of the American League said several factors led to the turndown. Among them he listed television commitments, schedules, ticket sales, possibility of law suits and the general uncertainty of leaving a city that has been in the league 50 years.

Veech Faulted

Some officials thought that Veeck—who has irritated his fellow owners many times in the past with his bizarre schemes to boost attendance—went about it the wrong way.

They pointed out he talked to the mayor of Baltimore before getting the okay of the International League, then put pressure on the Baltimore club and finally tried to persuade the majors to permit him to move.

As for the Braves, president Lou Perini is going through with his request to move to Milwaukee, and admittedly the situation in the National League is different. The most important point is that the Braves own Milwaukee.

Perini did not intend to make his move until next year, but he was placed in an untenable position when he blocked Veeck's original proposal to move the Browns to Milwaukee, thus depriving the city of a major league team. He then realized the fans would never support his team under such conditions.

Schedules Ready

President Warren Giles of the National League said that the new schedules have been drawn up and that if the change is approved Pittsburgh will be placed in the eastern section of the league and Milwaukee in the western to give it balance.

Perini was not worried over Veeck's failure.

"Our cases are not parallel," he commented.

Another factor was that at least three American Association clubs are known to be against the shift. They were Minneapolis, Louisville and Indianapolis. The National League could draft the territory if the association turns down the request, but it is considered unlikely that the major league would go to that extreme.

The association meets one hour before the National League (10 a. m. (EST) tomorrow.

15 Candidates Report For KHS Battery Drill

Telepas, Modica, Reis in Group

Only 15 battery candidates responded to the fist baseball call at Kingston High yesterday but Coach Willard Burke was not unduly disturbed because the turnout fell far below the normal number of 45 or 50.

Burke attributed the poor response to several factors, including a misunderstanding among the students with respect to the time and place of the trials.

A secondary call today is expected to swell the list of hopefuls to the usual level.

Big Three Returns

The three big guns for the 1953 pitching staff—southpaw George Telepas, Joe Modica and Frank Reis— reported along with two outstanding prospects from last year's Jayvees—Bruce Bechtold and Jack Houghtaling.

The Big Three faces a fight on its hands to stave off the challenge of the two newcomers. Bechtold and Houghtaling sparkled in the Fraternal Youth League after last year's high school season and acquired valuable poise and experience in inter-city competition.

Telepas was generally rated the No. 1 flinger in 1952 but Reis and Modica figure to challenge him for that distinction this season.

When the secondary call is issued later in the month Coach Burke expects to have a batch of veterans available. The Maroons fared not too well on the diamond last season but the all-round prospects for 1953 are considered excellent.

Veterans Return

Among the returnees who figure prominently in Coach Burke's DUSO pennant hopes are Bob Shelightner, John Godwin, John Armstrong, Paul Johnson, Paul Giannuzzi, Eddie Van Loan, Lou Perry, Skipper Brodhead, Bob Foy, Ronnie Crespino, Joe Hilton, Johnny Turck and Hank Osterhoudt.

Only a partical schedule has been arranged to date, with the DUSO campaign starting at Poughkeepsie on April 30. Arlington High has been booked for April 17.

The DUSO slate:

April 30—At Poughkeepsie.
May 4—Port Jervis, away.
May 7—Middletown, here.
May 11—Newburgh, away.
May 14—Beacon, home.
May 18—Poughkeepsie, here.
May 21—Port Jervis, here.
May 25—Middletown, away.
May 28—Newburgh, here.

Maury McDermott Confesses He Doesn't Know an Irish Tune

Sarasota, Fla., March 17 (AP)—On Paddy's Day, every good Irishman walks with head high, like all the kings of Ireland. Maury McDermott, night club singer and summertime pitcher for the Boston Red Sox, is no exception.

This should be the day for "Mother Machree" or "The Rose of Tralee" but this Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Irishman goes for the "pop" songs. He parlays the lingo of Tin Pan Alley and the ball yard with his own native wit.

"I give them songs like "Because You're Mine," he said. "I hate to admit it but I don't know any good Irish tunes. I guess I'll have to brush up on a few, if I'm going to sing in Boston."

McDermott hopes to capitalize on his name and singing ability to make a future for himself in the nightclubs and on television after he is through playing ball. In the meantime, he expects to take a beating from the enemy dugouts.

"The other day I saw Freddie Hutchinson (Detroit manager)," he said. "He told me he was going to wait until I got the bases full and then holler 'let's see you sing your way out of this one.'

Old Man at 24

"I'm an old man on this ball club at the age of 24, we're really having the youth movement. I'm an oldtimer, been here since '48.

"For years they have been saying I was going to make it big when I settled down. I feel this is my year. Last season was my best so far, 10-9. I always felt all I needed was to work steadier.

"I put on about 20 pounds since last year. That ought to help me. When I first came up I weighed only 149. Now I'm about 190. I can use a few extra pounds. They tell me Blackwell has put on weight, too. I think it isn't good for a pitcher to be too skinny."

McDermott, a married man with a 3½-month old daughter, may have settled down. But not too much. When he took off his cap, he uncovered a stubby crew cut.

"Mel Parnell gave me the business at the barbar shop. He told the barber to give me the works. My wife gave me the devil," added the 6-foot-3-inch lefthander.

Angels Rout Millbrook

Powered by Big Bill East's 31-point splurge, Harry's Angels soared over the century mark to crush the Millbrook Five, 101-75, last night in a special game on the Y boards.

With Holstein and Carpouzis also hitting frequently, the Angels ran up a 35-21 lead at the quarter and widened the gap to 56-36 at halftime.

East rimmed 14 fields and three singletons, while Holstein bucketed 19 and Carpouzis had 18 points. Also in double figures were George Telepas with 10 and Ward Dunham with 12.

Caribbee Favored In Yacht Classic

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 17—Caribbee, which won the 1952 St. Petersburg to Havana yacht race with the help of a handicap, stands a good chance to lead the fleet in today in this year's race.

The 57 foot yawl sailed by Carleton Mitchell of Nassau was 15 miles in front of her closest competitor, Doris III, at the Coast Guard's final check Monday night.

With a favorable northeast wind replacing the slow southeast breeze that held the fleet up Sunday and Monday, Caribbee was only 93 miles short of her goal and in a good spot to dash right on in.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

The Yellow Jackets turned back the clock Saturday night at Cuneo's. Twenty-seven years to be exact.

The Olympians of modern independent football history came from far and near. Balding, heavier but not greatly changed from their pristine period of 1926 on.

They assembled in huge numbers and marvelous spirit. It was a rewarding experience for the fabulous gridders of legendary fame. Theirs was the finest reward that amateur athletics can offer. They relived moments of glory, bantered about human frailties of yesteryear; happy that they had lived them; proud that sports history has placed an indelible stamp of approval on their heroics. These were men cut of a classic mould.

They were there: Chairman Bill Scully, who rates the biggest bow for conceiving and promoting the idea. He was as nervous as a new bride. Tall, distinguished, greying Ross "Punk" Vogt, the greatest of them all, making a brilliant speech in behalf of the team. The passing years have been generous with him and he looks like a guy you might find in a Forstmann ad or in some embassy. It was Ross who dropkicked 35 yards and passed 35 more to Joe Hoffman on their historic September day in 1926 when the legend was launched with a 10-7 triumph over the West Point Artillery.

Joe Hoffman, who collaborated with Vogt on the ancient "Statue of Liberty" play. The maneuver was dropped, so they said, when the Baron of Harwich street started running in the wrong direction too often. Herb Simmonetty, scholarly-looking, heavy set, the man who never sweat, hardly ever talked to his teammates, but who always had a hole ready for the backs. "Mahoney" they called him.

Big Earl McLane, the Gentle Annie of the squad, remembered by the gridiron titans as the greatest lineman in local history. Earl wasn't rough, just enthusiastic. Paul Howard of the Howard and Knight combine, the refrigeration expert who cooled off many an opposing lineman. Harry Scheffel and Vince Rice, the inimitable duo, of dancing fame. Detective Frank Sammons, former No. 5 school pitching ace, a powerful lineman; Len O'Reilly, who once lay on the turf blithely munching blades of grass while a broken leg dangled on the ground. Stan Colvin, the greyhound, a superb all-round athlete.

Missing for various reasons were other originals. Fred Ehnes, Lee Hasbrouck, Jack Niner, Carl Preston, Manager Ed Redhead, who rewarded faithful attendance at practice drills by taking the gang to Keeney's theatre.

There was a moment of silent prayer for departed heroes—of football and wars—like Ray Nadel, George S. Brooks, John Cirone, Kenneth Menzel, Emil Nocc, Donald Pleugh, Mort Thibideau.

Big Don Beany, friend and foe of the Yellow Jackets, the man with the booming voice, laughing raucously when the toastmaster recalled he didn't pick up the Yellow Jackets until they were slipping and losing to clubs like the West Point Artillery. Beany had a guest with him, Sgt. Terry Clancy of the Cleveland Browns. The former sponsors took a bow—Lou Kantrowitz, Bill Singer, Harris Brown, Frank Reis, Ray Garraghan.

Col. Al Milliken, who came the longest distance, spoke briefly. He flew in from Iceland. Swapped stories with the TM who was stranded in Labrador in 1943-44-45 at the request of "friends and neighbors." "Zip" Zaccheo, of the fabulous 1933 KHS machine (Sgt. Jase Cullum, Eddie Burgevin, Tony "Man Mountain" Debrosky) busier than the proverbial one-armed paper hanger.

Joe Kelly, Bud Culloton, Johnny Law, the former Notre Dame captain and one of Knute Rockne's last great stars, had warm praise for the Yellow Jackets. The TM said the city had four great sports cycles, Kingston Colonials, Yellow Jackets, "Pop" Morgenweck's basketball and Kingston Recreations. Kelly was quick to add National Guard boxing and he was correct. Joe Vozdik, of Saugerties, one of the heroes of the day, was in the audience.

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, G. Warren Kias, Dick McCarthy and N. LeVan Haver sent regrets, having to cancel out because of last minute developments. James "Moose" Tiano telephoned from the state of Delaware. The audience reeked with distinguished non-players and the setting was brilliant and inspiring.

As Bud Culloton put it, the reunion was rewarding in that it bridged the past and the present and recaptured a moment of glory for all. And the top man was Bill Scully. Without him it wouldn't have happened.

And to the Yellow Jackets, this interloper of their declining years, says congratulations. It was a tremendous thrill to see those great heroes in the flesh. How the City of Kingston could use a team like yours in these days when we live in the sports past and do nothing for the present.

Grocers Capture Junior Playoffs

Rally to Defeat Waterboys, 50-32

Shaw's Grocery staged a determined second half rally to trounce the Waterboys, 50-32, and wrap up the Recreation League Junior Shaughnessy playoffs, last night at the MJM gym.

The Grocers trailed 12-6 at the quarter mark, but Rudy Hohenberger and Dick Richards sparked a second period drive that erased the deficit and sent Grocers ahead 22-14 at the intermission.

The win was the second straight in the three-game set for the Grocers, who had eliminated the regular season champions, Esposito's Cleaners to reach the finals. Waterboys had whipped St. Peter's in the semi-finals.

Once Hohenberger and Richards started finding the range, the Shaw's hit with steady quarter totals of 16-13-15.

Turpin Points For Quick Kayo

London, March 17 (AP)—Randy Turpin, the guy the British think should be the world middleweight champion, tussles with New York's Walt Cartier over 10 rounds at Earls Court Arena tonight in his first bout with an American in 18 months. (Fight time 4 p. m., EST).

British sports writers have pinned a "glass jaw" label on Cartier, who has been knocked out six times, and agree that Randy, one of the heaviest punchers for his weight, should be able to settle the argument effectively round about the halfway stage.

He will have to if he wants to cut through the tangle of contenders for the world crown relinquished by Sugar Ray Robinson last year. Cartier isn't ranked in the first ten on U. S. lists.

Irked by America's involved program of eliminators for the vacant middleweight title, Promoter Jack Solomons is hatching plans to match Turpin with either Charles Humez of France or Carl "Bobo" Olson of San Francisco in a championship fight in London this coronation summer.

A victory for Cartier would upset these plans and end Turpin's hopes of regaining the title he held for two brief months after defeating Sugar Ray in 1951.

Testing Water

Buffalo, March 17 (AP)—Samples of water from Lake Erie and the Niagara river were being tested today in an effort to find out what was killing thousands of fish washed up along a 40-mile stretch of shore. Complaints of a bad taste in drinking water came from the Buffalo suburbs, but officials said it could be consumed safely. The city's own water supply, drawn from farther out in the lake, apparently was not affected.

Army Rejects Willie Mays Bid For Discharge

By BEN OLAN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

It still was Private Willie Mays today and that's not good news for the New York Giants.

The 21-yearlold Negro outfielders application for discharge from the Army on dependency grounds was turned down yesterday. Mays said he was the sole support of his mother, step-father, three brothers and six sisters.

The Giants had been hoping to have Mays back in time for the opening of the National League season next month. His availability in centerfield would have assured the switching of Bobby Thomson to third base.

Manager Leo Durocher is currently playing Hank Thompson in center but the shift-conscious skipper is expected to make further experiments before deciding who will open the season in that spot. Thomson played centerfield after Mays went into service last year.

A spokesman at the Second Army Headquarters, Fort Meade, Md., which reviewed Willie's case, said "dependency did not exist to a degree to warrant a discharge."

Thomson Sidelined

To add to the day's misfortunes, the Giants learned that Thomson would be sideline for two weeks as a result of a blow he received on the right wrist Sunday when struck by one of Mike Garcia's pitches.

Also on the debit side, the Giants dropped a 4-3 exhibition decision to the Chicago White Sox at Los Angeles. A couple of errors gave the Sox three unearned runs in the fourth inning off southpaw Max Lanier. Don Mueller and Monte Irvin hit home runs for New York.

Another injury, at first thought to be a damaging one, cropped up as the Chicago Cubs defeated Los Angeles, 6-3, at Fullerton, Calif. Hank Sauer, the National League's most valuable player in 1952, jammed his right index finger while sliding back to first base. Trainer Al Scheuneman said last night the injury was not serious and that there was only a little swelling.

In other games, Dave Philley's single with the bases loaded and two out gave the Philadelphia Athletics a 2-1 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers. Bobby Shantz started for Philadelphia and allowed only one hit in the five innings he worked.

The Cincinnati Reds pounded out 17 hits, including Gus Bell's home run, as they trounced the New York Yankees, 11-2. Roy McMillian led the Redleg attack with three singles and a triple.

At Bradenton, Fla., the Boston Red Sox scored three runs in the ninth inning to whip the Boston Braves, 8-6.

Butte, Mont. — Carl (Bobo) Olson, 165½, San Francisco, outpointed Garth Panter, 165, Dayton, Ida., 10.

Veeck's Failure May Affect Braves' Hopes for Milwaukee Deal

Tampa, Fla., March 17 (AP)—One of the surest things in the history of baseball boomeranged into one of the biggest surprises in the game since the turn of the century when Bill Veeck was refused permission to transfer the St. Louis Browns to Baltimore.

For almost a week, unofficial polls of the owners indicated that mere formalities were involved in the proposed switch. But when they met here yesterday, they sent Veeck back to St. Louis for at least one more year with a 5-2 vote against the switch. It was reported only the Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox voted for the move.

As officials talked it over today, they were not so certain the Boston Braves would receive permission to transfer the National League franchise to Milwaukee. This move also had been thought to be all set except for the official voting in St. Petersburg tomorrow.

All the National League club owners must approve if the switch is to be made, and at least one—Walter O'Malley of the Brooklyn Dodgers—hinted he might not vote for the change.

It also was reported that Horace Stoneham of the New York Giants was against the move.

Psychological Factor

There's no doubt that the American League action will have at least a psychological effect on the National League meeting.

Another thing that may influence National League moguls is the attitude of Commissioner Ford Frick. He obviously was pleased that the Browns will be forced to remain in St. Louis.

"I'm in favor of transferring the franchise, but not at this late time," he said, referring to the Browns.

Veeck, who said he lost $400,000 in St. Louis last year said he has no intention of selling the club—at least not at the present.

Although Veeck complained the other owners wanted to see him leave the baseball picture, President Will Harridge of the American League said several factors led to the turndown. Among them he listed television commitments, schedules, ticket sales, possibility of law suits and the general uncertainty of leaving a city that has been in the league 50 years.

Veeck Faulted

Some officials thought that Veeck—who has irritated his fellow owners many times in the past with his bizarre schemes to boost attendance—went about it the wrong way.

They pointed out he talked to the mayor of Baltimore before getting the okay of the International League, then put pressure on the Baltimore club and finally tried to persuade the majors to permit him to move.

As for the Braves, president Lou Perini is going through with his request to move to Milwaukee, and admittedly the situation in the National League is different. The most important point is that the Braves own Milwaukee.

Perini did not intend to make his move until next year, but he was placed in an untenable position when he blocked Veeck's original proposal to move the Browns to Milwaukee, thus depriving the city of a major league team. He then realized the fans would never support his team under such conditions.

Schedules Ready

President Warren Giles of the National League said that the new schedules have been drawn up and that if the change is approved Pittsburgh will be placed in the eastern section of the league and Milwaukee in the western to give it balance.

Perini was not worried over Veeck's failure.

"Our cases are not parallel," he commented.

Another factor was that at least three American Association clubs are known to be against the shift. They were Minneapolis, Louisville and Indianapolis. The National League could draft the territory if the association turns down the request, but it is considered unlikely that the major league would go to that extreme.

The association meets one hour before the National League (10 a. m. (EST) tomorrow.

How the Jackets Looked 27 Years Later

15 Candidates Report For KHS Battery Drill

Only 15 battery candidates responded to the fist baseball call at Kingston High yesterday but Coach Willard Burke was not unduly disturbed because the turnout fell far below the normal number of 45 or 50.

Burke attributed the poor response to several factors, including a misunderstanding among the students with respect to the time and place of the trials.

A secondary call today is expected to swell the list of hopefuls to the usual level.

A general call for infield and outfield candidates is planned in two weeks.

Big Three Returns

The three big guns for the 1953 pitching staff—southpaw George Telepas, Joe Modica and Frank Reis— reported along with two outstanding prospects from last year's Jayvees—Bruce Bechtold and Jack Houghtaling.

The Big Three faces a fight on its hands to stave off the challenge of the two newcomers. Bechtold and Houghtaling sparkled in the Fraternal Youth League after last year's high school season and acquired valuable poise and experience in inter-city competition.

Telepas was generally rated the No. 1 flinger in 1952 but Reis and Modica figure to challenge him for that distinction this season.

When the secondary call is issued later in the month Coach Burke expects to have a batch of veterans available. The Maroons fared not too well on the diamond last season but the all-round prospects for 1953 are considered excellent.

Veterans Return

Only a partical schedule has been arranged to date, with the DUSO campaign starting at Poughkeepsie on April 30. Arlington High has been booked for April 17.

The DUSO slate:
April 30—At Poughkeepsie.
May 4—Port Jervis, away.
May 7—Middletown, here.
May 11—Newburgh, away.
May 14—Beacon, home.
May 18—Poughkeepsie, here.
May 21—Port Jervis, here.
May 25—Middletown, away.
May 28—Newburgh, here.

Maury McDermott Confesses He Doesn't Know an Irish Tune

Sarasota, Fla., March 17 (AP)—On Paddy's Day, every good Irishman walks with head high, like all the kings of Ireland. Maury McDermott, night club singer and summertime pitcher for the Boston Red Sox, is no exception.

This should be the day for "Mother Machree" or "The Rose of Tralee" but this Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Irishman goes for the "pop" songs. He parlays the lingo of Tin Pan Alley and the ball yard with his own native wit.

"I give them songs like "Because You're Mine," he said. "I hate to admit it but I don't know any good Irish tunes. I guess I'll have to brush up on a few, if I'm going to sing in Boston."

McDermott hopes to capitalize on his name and singing ability to make a future for himself in the nightclubs and on television after he is through playing ball. In the meantime, he expects to take a beating from the enemy dugouts.

"The other day I saw Freddie Hutchinson (Detroit manager)," he said. "He told me he was going to wait until I got the bases full and then holler 'let's see you sing your way out of this one.'

Old Man at 24

"I'm an old man on this ball club at the age of 24, we're really having the youth movement. I'm an oldtimer, been here since '48.

"For years they have been saying I was going to make it big when I settled down. I feel this is my year. Last season was my best so far, 10-9. I always felt all I needed was to work steadier.

"I put on about 20 pounds since last year. That ought to help me. When I first came up I weighed only 149. Now I'm about 190. I can use a few extra pounds. They tell me Blackwell has put on weight, too. I think it isn't good for a pitcher to be too skinny."

McDermott, a married man with a 3½-month old daughter, may have settled down. But not too much. When he took off his cap, he uncovered a stubby crew cut.

"Mel Parnell gave me the business at the barbar shop. He told the barber to give me the works. My wife gave me the devil," added the 6-foot-3-inch lefthander.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

The Yellow Jackets turned back the clock Saturday night at Cuneo's. Twenty-seven years to be exact.

The Olympians of modern independent football history came from far and near. Balding, heavier but not greatly changed from their pristine period of 1926 on.

They assembled in huge numbers and marvelous spirit. It was a rewarding experience for the fabulous gridders of legendary fame. Theirs was the finest reward that amateur athletics can offer. They relived moments of glory, bantered about human frailties of yesteryear; happy that they had lived them; proud that sports history has placed an indelible stamp of approval on their heroics. These were men cut of a classic mould.

They were there: Chairman Bill Scully, who rates the biggest bow for conceiving and promoting the idea. He was as nervous as a new bride. Tall, distinguished, greying Ross "Punk" Vogt, the greatest of them all, making a brilliant speech in behalf of the team. The passing years have been generous with him and he looks like a guy you might find in a Forstmann ad or in some embassy. It was Ross who dropkicked 35 yards and passed 35 more to Joe Hoffman on their historic September day in 1926 when the legend was launched with a 10-7 triumph over the West Point Artillery.

Joe Hoffman, who collaborated with Vogt on the ancient "Statue of Liberty" play. The maneuver was dropped, so they said, when the Baron of Harwich street started running in the wrong direction too often. Herb Simmonetty, scholarly-looking, heavy set, the man who never sweat, hardly ever talked to his teammates, but who always had a hole ready for the backs. "Mahoney" they called him.

Big Earl McLane, the Gentle Annie of the squad, remembered by the gridiron titans as the greatest lineman in local history. Earl wasn't rough, just enthusiastic. Paul Howard of the Howard and Knight combine, the refrigeration expert who cooled off many an opposing lineman. Harry Scheffel and Vince Rice, the inimitable duo, of dancing fame. Detective Frank Sammons, former No. 5 school pitching ace, a powerful lineman; Len O'Reilly, who once lay on the turf blithely munching blades of grass while a broken leg dangled on the ground. Stan Colvin, the greyhound, a superb all-round athlete.

Missing for various reasons were other originals. Fred Ehnes, Lee Hasbrouck, Jack Niner, Carl Preston, Manager Ed Redhead, who rewarded faithful attendance at practice drills by taking the gang to Keeney's theatre.

There was a moment of silent prayer for departed heroes—of football and wars—like Ray Nadel, George S. Brooks, John Cirone, Kenneth Menzel, Emil Noce, Donald Pleugh, Mort Thibideau.

Big Don Beany, friend and foe of the Yellow Jackets, the man with the booming voice, laughing raucously when the toastmaster recalled he didn't pick up the Yellow Jackets until they were slipping and losing to clubs like the West Point Artillery. Beany had a guest with him, Sgt. Terry Clancy of the Cleveland Browns. The former sponsors took a bow—Lou Kantrowitz, Bill Singer, Harris Brown, Frank Reis, Ray Garraghan.

Col. Al Milliken, who came the longest distance, spoke briefly. He flew in from Iceland. Swapped stories with the TM who was stranded in Labrador in 1943-44-45 at the request of "friends and neighbors." "Zip" Zaccheo, of the fabulous 1933 KHS machine (Sgt. Jase Cullum, Eddie Burgevin, Tony "Man Mountain" Debrosky) busier than the proverbial one-armed paper hanger.

Joe Kelly, Bud Culloton, Johnny Law, the former Notre Dame captain and one of Knute Rockne's last great stars, had warm praise for the Yellow Jackets. The TM said the city had four great sports cycles, Kingston Colonials, Yellow Jackets, "Pop" Morgenweck's basketball and Kingston Recreations. Kelly was quick to add National Guard boxing and he was correct. Joe Vozdik, of Saugerties, one of the heroes of the day, was in the audience.

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, G. Warren Kias, Dick McCarthy and N. LeVan Haver sent regrets, having to cancel out because of last minute developments. James "Moose" Tiano telephoned from the state of Delaware. The audience reeked with distinguished non-players and the setting was brilliant and inspiring.

As Bud Culloton put it, the reunion was rewarding in that it bridged the past and the present and recaptured a moment of glory for all. And the top man was Bill Scully. Without him it wouldn't have happened.

And to the Yellow Jackets, this interloper of their declining years, says congratulations. It was a tremendous thrill to see those great heroes in the flesh. How the City of Kingston could use a team like yours in these days when we live in the sports past and do nothing for the present.

Grocers Capture Junior Playoffs

Rally to Defeat Waterboys, 50-32

Shaw's Grocery staged a determined second half rally to trounce the Waterboys, 50-32, and wrap up the Recreation League Junior Shaughnessy playoffs, last night at the MJM gym.

The Grocers trailed 12-6 at the quarter mark, but Rudy Hohenberger and Dick Richards sparked a second period drive that erased the deficit and sent Grocers ahead 22-14 at the intermission.

The win was the second straight in the three-game set for the Grocers, who had eliminated the regular season champions, Esposito's Cleaners to reach the finals. Waterboys had whipped St. Peter's in the semi-finals.

Angels Rout Millbrook

Powered by Big Bill East's 31-point splurge, Harry's Angels soared over the century mark to crush the Millbrook Five, 101-75, last night in a special game on the Y boards.

With Holstein and Carpouzis also hitting frequently, the Angels ran up a 35-21 lead at the quarter and widened the gap to 56-36 at halftime.

East rimmed 14 fields and three singletons, while Holstein bucketed 19 and Carpouzis had 18 points. Also in double figures were George Telepas with 10 and Ward Dunham with 12.

Gene Whelan, Millbrook's high scoring center, dropped 27 markers for the visitors, whose forwards—Mulally and Fernandez shared 24.

Caribbee Favored In Yacht Classic

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 17 —Caribbee, which won the 1952 St. Petersburg to Havana yacht race with the help of a handicap, stands a good chance to lead the fleet in today in this year's race.

The 57 foot yawl sailed by Carleton Mitchell of Nassau was 15 miles in front of her closest competitor, Doris III, at the Coast Guard's final check Monday night.

With a favorable northeast wind replacing the slow southeast breeze that held the fleet up Sunday and Monday, Caribbee was only 93 miles short of her goal and in a good spot to dash right on in.

Marine Miscellany and Mistake

By AL McCLANE
Fishing Editor

If you read enough sportsmen's contest entry blanks, you'll find suddenly that the average angler isn't too red hot on the business of identification.

As a result, a surprising number of smallmouth bass turn out to be largemouths; walleyed pike are confused with northern pike but the big migraine is the "world's record" channel bass that always turns out to be a black drum. Aside from the fact that the black drum is a real heavyweight and a dead ringer for his cousin, the channel bass, blacks are musicians.

Most folks suppose that fish are universally silent, which isn't true at all, and in this case, the fish can be heard above the water. The drums have band-like muscles which they vibrate against their air bladders, producing a plaintive sound that has probably been the origin of many Gulf Coast Indian legends concerning supernatural music.

Nobody knows why the fish "drum" but it's supposed that they are calling the opposite sex, or else just expressing their contentment. If these big clam eaters would get off the hook, our contest judges would be mighty pleased.

Tennessee game and fish commission recently released its major 1953 fishing regulations. They were all on one sheet—and the blank spaces were conspicuous. Tennessee is one of the several states which have simplified their laws to a point where the tourist-angler can digest them in short order. Most anglers will welcome this trend toward having only those regulations for which there is a demonstrated need.

Minnesota announces that its creel and possession limit on trout will be reduced from 15 to 10. This is based on the fact that a large nercentage of trout fishing success is dependent on the stocking of yearling trout.

A number of states are gradually reducing the trout limit. There is an excellent reason for doing so. A single limit catch of hatchery-reared trout costs more than the departments receive for an annual fishing license. In a number of states the trout fishing has been maintained partly by using funds received from licenses issued to warm-water fishermen. Reductions in the creel limit of trout are necessary because of the high cost of maintaining this sport.

Harvey Keyes Co-Captains 3rd AF Gridders

H. Sleight's 601 Highest Series For Male Pinmen

Herbie Sleight's 601 triple (161-147-193) was the top male effort in local bowling last night. The big blast occurred in the Junior Major League.

Ralph Halbert spanked the maples for 595 via 182-193-220 in the Independent League, while Jim Amendola led the City Minor wheel with 168-203-214 for 585.

In the same league, Mike Celuch of East Kingston launched his third game with an 8-timer, then broke in the ninth and spared in the tenth for a rousing 255.

By winning two games, Mannie's Barber Shop took over first place from Johnny's Drive-In. The sponsor was reported passing out cigars last night after the matches.

Esposito Has 572

Runnerup Eddie Esposito fashioned 205-572 and Warren Wood posted 561 in the Junior Major. Paul Trodler 222-551, George Magley 206-541; A. Pettinato 529; Ernie Bartroff 528; Hans Maylahn 527 and Bill Dougherty 525 were other top shooters. Tony Canzoneri fired second best single of 237.

Team results:

Five-in-One 3, Donnaruma & Augustine 0; Shults Paint 2, Haber's 1; Al's Sea Food 2, Esposito's 1; American Legion 2, Ertel's 1.

Mike Celuch's 255 in the third set enabled him to aggregate 582 for runnerup honors in the Minor. Frank Deuire rapped 225-579; Leo Bechtold 247-575; Ed Smedes 203-558; Harry Dart Jr. 555; Otto Schaller Jr. 202-554; Bob Schneider 218-551; Joe Maurer 548; Millie Berardi 203-544, Bob Geisler 543, Bill Murray 210-539; Pete Nagy 203-532, Ken Radel 524 and Bob Mericle 521.

Team results:

Crystal Gardens 3, Cities Service 0; Joe Epstein's 2, Broadway Chop House 0; D-D's Drive-In 2, Donato Bros. 1; Tommy's Tavern 2, Kingston Knitting Mills 1; Veterans Barbers 2, Johnny's Drive-In 1; Mannie's Barber Shop 2, Mauro's Grill 1; Stone Ridge Firemen 2, Hutton Brick 1.

Beichert Slams 585

Knute Beichert's 585 slam with high solo of 221 was second best in the Independent League. Don Vogel shot 218-578; Barney Rosinski 568; Frank Bruno 206-202-558; Ward DuBois 556; Tom Welch 215-550; J. Rensing 213-544; W. Thomas 544; Harry Wilber 544; Art Shelightner 539; Roland Post 528 and J. Reis 527.

Team results:

Vogel's Dairy 3, Stone Ridge Fire 0; Callanan's Road 3, Martin's Market 0; Beichert Studies 1, Welch Grocery 2; Sicklers Delivery 2, Jump's Market 1.

T. Jordan was top scorer in the Ferraro Mixed League Sunday, racking up a 617 series on solos of 217, 213 and 187.

John Bechtold was the only other kegler in the "500" circle, hitting 526. Barney Rosinski fashioned 495; C. Diffley 485; and George Shufeldt 480.

Team results:

Lillian's Beauty Shop 3, Central Lunch 0; Howard's Refrigeration 2, Let-Us-Inn 0; Mt. Marion Inn 2, Spatz Bottling Works 1; Team No. 5 (2), Boulevard Gulf 1; Greco Motors 2, Jo-Al's 1.

Lillian Fromer shot 454 for the top BYA League series and Gen Whitmore trailed with 436. Others in the top five were Betty Douglas 388, P. Huton 383 and Betty Lindhurst 347.

Maurer Raps 275, Houghtaling 269 In HVBL Matches

Substitute Joe Maurer fired a 275 solo and 643 series.

The Rapp's Express keglers outpinned Fogg-Nash of Poughkeepsie by 106 pins. But you know what happened? Fogg-Nash won two.

The difference in pinnage was created in the third set when the Rapp's rolled up a commanding 1041-888 pin edge. But in middle game the FNs sneaked through 992 to 990. The Express total was 2944 to 2838 for the Bridge City keglers.

Besides Maurer's 643, Rapp's got a lift from George Shufeldt's 207-225-202 for 634 and Chris Gallo's 229-604 anchor series. Emil Garbarino shot 216-213-600 for FN and Blanco had 224-590.

Elstons Win Four

Elston's Sport Shop protected its first division standing with a four-out-of-six performance against Channel Masters of Ellenville and Saugerties Recs.

Larry Petersen, Jr., whomped a 684 triple (269-194-221) to lead the 2993 barrage against Ellenville. Tom Carlino peeled off 203-213-231 and Big Jack Houghtaling toppled 244-629.

Dick Howard virtually eliminated himself from a possible shot at high average honors by slumping to 550 against Ellenville and 469 against Saugerties.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Courage Is Aid In Bridge Tourney

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

The approach of the Eastern State's Championships, which begin this weekend, brings back a host of memories to most bridge players in the East. The tournament, one of the oldest in the history of Contract Bridge, has always attracted a strong field from all sections of the country as well as from the Eastern states.

I remember the hand shown today very clearly, because it cost me first place in the Eastern Championships of 1932. Charlie Lochridge, sitting East, opened with a psychic bid of one club, and his partner, Johnny Rau, made an out-of-turn bid of two no-trump.

Johnny corrected his error by jumping to three no-trump, and this strange contract arrived at in so fantastic a manner, could not be defeated.

Elephants have short memories compared to bridge experts. After 21 years I still remember every card in the hand, and I could still cheerfully murder my good friends Lochridge and Rau whenever I think of the hand.

At many other tables, the hand was played at a normal contract of four spades. South won the opening diamond lead, cashed his remaining high diamonds, and led a low trump towards dummy's jack.

At some tables, West timidly put up the queen of spades. West could still save the day by laying down the ace of clubs and continuing that suit, but this defense was never actually found. The West player usually took the queen of spades and shifted to hearts.

Strangely enough, at those tables where the West player was courageous enough to play low on the first round of trumps, the game contract was easily defeated even though West lost his queen of spades.

At these tables, dummy was able to win the first round of trumps with the jack. If a diamond was immediately returned from dummy, East still had a trump and could ruff. South did not have to lose a trump trick, but he could not use dummy's diamonds and therefore had to lose three hearts and a club eventually.

'B' Playoffs Set at YMCA

Blue Devils and Village Rest meet in the opener of a best-of-three YMCA "B" League playoff series tonight on the Y boards. The contest is scheduled at 7:30 o'clock.

In the 8:30 game, Three Bros. Farms take on the 50 Club in a regular "A" League clash.

Saturday's bracket of games has Lincoln Park Inn meeting Economy Construction at 7:30 p. m., and Harry's Angels taking on Wiltwyck Motors at 8:30. ....

Ready for Parade

New York, March 17 (AP)—Fifth avenue will be transformed into a river of green today for the traditional St. Patrick's Day parade. An estimated 80,000 to 100,000 marchers will start parading up the avenue at noon from 44th street to 96th street. The participants will be guided by a freshly-painted emerald strip up the center of the street. The Weather Bureau gave a green light for the parade, predicting fair skies and temperatures in the 50s.

Bees to Light Queen

Raleigh (AP)—American beeswax will throw light on the coronation of Britain's Queen Elizabeth June 2, according to W. A. Stephen, beekeeper for the State College Extension Service. A royal commission of the British government has ordered 2,300 specially designed beeswax candles. Forty-two of the candles will weigh from 15 to 18 pounds each. Some will be sprayed with gold. The coronation order will cost about $15,000.

Hoosiers, Huskies NCAA Tourney Picks

Kansas City, March 17 (AP)—Fast-breaking Indiana rules a seven-point favorite over Louisiana State University and sky-scraper Washington is a three-point choice over defending champion Kansas tonight in the semi-finals of the NCAA basketball tournament.

The Hoosiers, top-ranked nationally in the Associated Press poll, and LSU's Southeastern Conference kings, No. 7, clash in the opening game at 8:45 p. m. (EST).

The second game will start two hours later. Washington is No. 2 in the ratings and Kansas is No. 5.

Still Need No License

Albany, March 17 (AP)—Members of the armed forces continue to be permitted to hunt and fish without a license in New York state until July 1, 1954 under bill signed yesterday by Gov. Dewey.

The whirlwind speed of its growth
Proves Knickerbocker has finer flavor than any other beer today!

EXTRA LIGHT! . . FROSTY-DRY! . .
LESS "FILLING", TOO!
Best-tasting glass of beer in town!

The secret behind Knickerbocker's amazing growth is a simple one: It's the most delicious beer you ever tasted! Knickerbocker contains a full measure of all the choicest ingredients that are needed to brew a full-bodied, truly satisfying beer. But Knickerbocker is brewed LIGHT . . . by its own exclusive brewing process. The full flavor remains, but the bulk is gone. So, sparkling-clear Knickerbocker is extra light . . . frosty-dry . . . a modern, low-calory beer that's far less "filling" than beers of the past. Enjoy it today . . . enjoy it often.

Marine Miscellany and Mistake

By AL McCLANE
Fishing Editor

If you read enough sportsmen's contest entry blanks, you'll find suddenly that the average angler isn't too red hot on the business of identification.

As a result, a surprising number of smallmouth bass turn out to be largemouths; walleyed pike are confused with northern pike but the big migraine is the "world's record" channel bass that always turns out to be a black drum. Aside from the fact that the black drum is a real heavyweight and a dead ringer for his cousin, the channel bass, blacks are musicians.

Most folks suppose that fish are universally silent, which isn't true at all, and in this case, the fish can be heard above the water. The drums have band-like muscles which they vibrate against their air bladders, producing a plaintive sound that has probably been the origin of many Gulf Coast Indian legends concerning supernatural music.

Nobody knows why the fish "drum" but it's supposed that they are calling the opposite sex, or else just expressing their contentment. If these big clam eaters would get off the hook, our contest judges would be mighty pleased.

Tennessee game and fish commission recently released its major 1953 fishing regulations. They were all on one sheet—and the blank spaces were conspicuous. Tennessee is one of the several states which have simplified their laws to a point where the tourist-angler can digest them in short order. Most anglers will welcome this trend toward having only those regulations for which there is a demonstrated need.

Minnesota announces that its creel and possession limit on trout will be reduced from 15 to 10. This is based on the fact that a large nercentage of trout fishing success is dependent on the stocking of yearling trout.

A number of states are gradually reducing the trout limit. There is an excellent reason for doing so. A single limit catch of hatchery-reared trout costs more than the departments receive for an annual fishing license. In a number of states the trout fishing has been maintained partly by using funds received from licenses issued to warm-water fishermen. Reductions in the creel limit of trout are necessary because of the high cost of maintaining this sport.

H. Sleight's 601 Highest Series For Male Pinmen

Herbie Sleight's 601 triple (161-147-193) was the top male effort in local bowling last night. The big blast occurred in the Junior Major League.

Ralph Halbert spanked the maples for 595 via 182-193-220 in the Independent League, while Jim Amendola led the City Minor wheel with 168-203-214 for 585.

In the same league, Mike Celuch of East Kingston launched his third game with an 8-timer, then broke in the ninth and spared in the tenth for a rousing 255.

By winning two games, Mannie's Barber Shop took over first place from Johnny's Drive-In. The sponsor was reported passing out cigars last night after the matches.

Esposito Has 572

Runnerup Eddie Esposito fashioned 205-572 and Warren Wood posted 561 in the Junior Major. Paul Trodler 222-551, George Magley 206-541; A. Pettinato 529; Ernie Bartroff 528; Hans Maylahn 527 and Bill Dougherty 525 were other top shooters. Tony Canzoneri fired second best single of 237.

Team results:

Five-in-One 3, Donnaruma & Augustine 0; Shults Paint 2, Haber's 1; Al's Sea Food 2, Esposito's 1; American Legion 2, Ertel's 1.

Mike Celuch's 255 in the third set enabled him to aggregate 582 for runnerup honors in the Minor. Frank Deuire rapped 225-579; Leo Bechtold 247-575; Ed Smedes 203-558; Harry Dart Jr. 555; Otto Schaller Jr. 202-554; Bob Schneider 218-551; Joe Maurer 548; Millie Berardi 203-544, Bob Geisler 543, Bill Murray 210-539; Pete Nagy 203-532, Ken Radel 524 and Bob Mericle 521.

Team results:

Crystal Gardens 3, Cities Service 0; Joe Epstein's 2, Broadway Chop House 0; D-D's Drive-In 2, Donato Bros. 1; Tommy's Tavern 2, Kingston Knitting Mills 1; Veterans Barbers 2, Johnny's Drive-In 1; Mannie's Barber Shop 2, Mauro's Grill 1; Stone Ridge Firemen 2, Hutton Brick 1.

Beichert Slams 585

Knute Beichert's 585 slam with high solo of 221 was second best in the Independent League. Don Vogel shot 218-578; Barney Rosinski 568; Frank Bruno 206-202-558; Ward DuBois 556; Tom Welch 215-550; J. Rensing 213-544; W. Thomas 544; Harry Wilber 544; Art Shelightner 539; Roland Post 528 and J. Reis 527.

Team results:

Vogel's Dairy 3, Stone Ridge Fire 0; Callanan's Road 3, Martin's Market 0; Beichert Studies 1, Welch Grocery 2; Sicklers Delivery 2, Jump's Market 1.

T. Jordan was top scorer in the Ferraro Mixed League Sunday, racking up a 617 series on solos of 217, 213 and 187.

John Bechtold was the only other kegler in the "500" circle, hitting 526. Barney Rosinski fashioned 495; C. Diffley 485; and George Shufeldt 480.

Team results:

Lillian's Beauty Shop 3, Central Lunch 0; Howard's Refrigeration 2, Let-Us-Inn 0; Mt. Marion Inn 2, Spatz Bottling Works 1; Team No. 5 (2), Boulevard Gulf 1; Greco Motors 2, Jo-Al's 1.

Lillian Fromer shot 454 for the top BYA League series and Gen Whitmore trailed with 436. Others in the top five were Betty Douglas 388, P. Huton 383 and Betty Lindhurst 347.

Maurer Raps 275, Houghtaling 269 In HVBL Matches

Substitute Joe Maurer fired a 275 solo and 643 series.

The Rapp's Express keglers outpinned Fogg-Nash of Poughkeepsie by 106 pins. But you know what happened? Fogg-Nash won two.

The difference in pinnage was created in the third set when the Rapp's rolled up a commanding 1041-888 pin edge. But in middle game the FNs sneaked through 992 to 990. The Express total was 2944 to 2838 for the Bridge City keglers.

Besides Maurer's 643, Rapp's got a lift from George Shufeldt's 207-225-202 for 634 and Chris Gallo's 229-604 anchor series. Emil Garbarino shot 216-213-600 for FN and Blanco had 224-590.

Elstons Win Four

Elston's Sport Shop protected its first division standing with a four-out-of-six performance against Channel Masters of Ellenville and Saugerties Recs.

Larry Petersen, Jr., whomped a 684 triple (269-194-221) to lead the 2993 barrage against Ellenville. Tom Carlino reeled off 203-213-231 and Big Jack Houghtaling toppled 244-629.

Dick Howard virtually eliminated himself from a possible shot at high average honors by slumping to 550 against Ellenville and 469 against Saugerties.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Courage Is Aid In Bridge Tourney

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

The approach of the Eastern State's Championships, which begin this weekend, brings back a host of memories to most bridge players in the East. The tournament, one of the oldest in the history of Contract Bridge, has always attracted a strong field from all sections of the country as well as from the Eastern states.

I remember the hand shown today very clearly, because it cost me first place in the Eastern Championships of 1932. Charlie Lochridge, sitting East, opened with a psychic bid of one club, and his partner, Johnny Rau, made an out-of-turn bid of two no-trump.

Johnny corrected his error by jumping to three no-trump, and this strange contract arrived at in so fantastic a manner, could not be defeated.

Elephants have short memories compared to bridge experts. After 21 years I still remember every card in the hand, and I could still cheerfully murder my good friends Lochridge and Rau whenever I think of the hand.

At many other tables, the hand was played at a normal contract of four spades. South won the opening diamond lead, cashed his remaining high diamonds, and led a low trump towards dummy's jack.

At some tables, West timidly put up the queen of spades. West could still save the day by laying down the ace of clubs and continuing that suit, but this defense was never actually found. The West player usually took the queen of spades and shifted to hearts.

Now South could take the king of hearts, get to dummy with the jack of spades, and get two discards on dummy's diamonds to make sure of his game.

Strangely enough, at those tables where the West player was courageous enough to play low on the first round of trumps, the game contract was easily defeated even though West lost his queen of spades.

At these tables, dummy was able to win the first round of trumps with the jack. If a diamond was immediately returned from dummy, East still had a trump and could ruff. South did not have to lose a trump trick, but he could not use dummy's diamonds and therefore had to lose three hearts and a club eventually.

Ready for Parade

New York, March 17 (AP)—Fifth avenue will be transformed into a river of green today for the traditional St. Patrick's Day parade. An estimated 80,000 to 100,000 marchers will start parading up the avenue at noon from 44th street to 96th street. The participants will be guided by a freshly-painted emerald strip up the center of the street. The Weather Bureau gave a green light for the parade, predicting fair skies and temperatures in the 50s.

Bees to Light Queen

Raleigh (AP)—American beeswax will throw light on the coronation of Britain's Queen Elizabeth June 2, according to W. A. Stephen, beekeeper for the State College Extension Service. A royal commission of the British government has ordered 2,300 specially designed beeswax candles. Forty-two of the candles will weigh from 15 to 18 pounds each. Some will be sprayed with gold. The coronation order will cost about $15,000.

The whirlwind speed of its growth

EXTRA LIGHT! . . FROSTY-DRY! . . LESS "FILLING", TOO!

Best-tasting glass of beer in town!

The secret behind Knickerbocker's amazing growth is a simple one: It's the most delicious beer you ever tasted! Knickerbocker contains a full measure of all the choicest ingredients that are needed to brew a full-bodied, truly satisfying beer. But Knickerbocker is brewed LIGHT . . . by its own exclusive brewing process. The full flavor remains, but the bulk is gone. So, sparkling-clear Knickerbocker is extra light . . . frosty-dry . . . a modern, low-calory beer that's far less "filling" than beers of the past. Enjoy it today . . . enjoy it often.

No Opposition To TV Station

A public hearing on the request for a business zone designation of a tract along the Boulevard that would be used for a television station ended without opposition last night in the Common Council chamber, city hall.

Application for the change was made by Anna E. Bower, 335 Boulevard, who listed Anna Boyer, of West Hempstead, and Rose Simmons, of Hempstead, as co-owners of the six-acre tract. It takes in 143-155 Boulevard and 182-216 Marius street.

The applicant's letter to the council asking for the changes said the owners had granted an option to a representative of the Kingston Broadcasting Corp., for purchase of the land to build a broadcasting station, business offices and a transmitter.

The owners also had been informed, they said, that the property was to be used in conjunction with another company for television broadcasts.

Robert M. Peebles, general manager of the Kingston Broadcasting Corp., said that buildings would conform to the surroundings and would not be a detriment to the neighborhood. He indicated that both radio and television facilities may be housed there.

Alderman Abram D. Relyea, 11th ward, chairman of the council's laws and rules committee, presided. The council is scheduled to meet in a recessed session at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Van Fleet, Collins

one idea of what "the present scale" should be—but that the field commander has another.

An apt illustration of just such a case was the refusal by Gen. George Patton in World War Two to accept the definition of "defense" as it unquestionably was meant by his commanding general — now President — Dwight D. Eisenhower.

After Patton's bold rush across France, he was told to go on the defensive. Gasoline, ammunition and other supplies were diverted to Britain's General Montgomery.

So Patton adopted what he called "an aggresive defensive." Which meant he just kept on attacking, as he explained, to defend himself.

There would appear to be some of the Patton in "Big Jim" Van Fleet who semingly wasn't satisfied to interpret his role in Korea as the Pentagon was doing.

Never Have Enough

Van Fleet's testimony that he didn't have enough ammunition was not so unusual in itself—because it has become a truism in the army that no field commander "ever has enough." The man doing the fighting always wants more of everything—more men, more guns, more ammunition, more transport, and more of this and that.

Senators are well aware of this, but they aren't brushing off Van Fleet's insistent complaints of an ammunition shortage as just another case of a commander wanting too much.

Chairman Saltonstall (R.-Mass.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee, a man not addicted to impulsive statements, has said: "There is no question that our troops in Korea were limited on ammunition. There unquestionably were shortages. They are now less than they were."

In any investigation of ammunition shortages, a congressional committee will face the question: "What is a shortage?" That's another way of asking: "How much ammunition should an army shoot in attacking the enemy and defending itself?"

An obvious answer is: "Enough to do the job." But enough for the job apparently means one thing to Gen. Van Fleet and quite another thing to Gen. Collins from their different points of perspective.

That's why Congress will have a tough time finding all the answers.

Has Railroad Bill

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Rep. Gross (R-Iowa) said today perhaps 800 persons will die in railroad crossing accidents this year because of inability of see moving trains at night. Gross is author of a bill which would require that unlighted railroad cars, both passenger and freight, be marked with reflective or luminous material which would reflect light from auto headlights.

Churchill Rejects

London, March 17 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill rejected today a Communist proposal to barter a British businessman in a Hungarian prison for a Communist girl guerrilla held by the British in Malaya.

Report on Aircraft

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Air force officials said last night that appearances of unidentified aircraft over Alaska have been "less than intermittent and might more accurately be called scattered." The officials were commenting upon published reports that the Russians have been making periodic survey flights over North America. Officials said unidentified craft have made some flights over Alaska and northern Canada. They said none of possible Russian origin had been seen and none had been intercepted by U. S. craft. One official said there was considerable evidence some Russian flights had been made, although not on a discernible pattern. And he said there had been no recent increase in direct spottings. The distance separating Russian and U. S. territory over the Bering Strait is about 60 miles.

Pushes Leibowitz

New York, March 17 (AP)—Sen. Charles W. Tobey (R-N.H.) plugged Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz of Brooklyn last night for mayor of New York. "What a mayor of New York Sam Leibowitz would make!" the senator exclaimed at a televised dinner. Tobey presented the Democratic Kings county judge with the scroll of honor of Cimena Lodge, B'nai B'rith, Jewish fraternal group. After cheers from the audience, Tobey said: "What a worthy successor he'd make to that great American without guile, Fiorello H. LaGuardia," the late Republican-Fusion mayor.

Arrested by Husband

Agnes Lovelid, 28, of 28 Ann street, was arrested by her husband, Clifford last night on a third degree assault charge. City Judge Raymond J. Mino today dismissed the charge when the complainant failed to appear. The information charged the defendant with kicking her husband in the legs and hitting him on the head and face. Officers George Dougherty and Raymond Wells answered the call for police to the house.

Financial and Commercial

Gains ran to around a point at the outside, principally in the most active sections, while losses were small.

The railroads were out in front yesterday and continued that leadership today. Within a short time, the steels and motors joined the rails in the advance as the rest of the market brightened up. No major section of the market held to the downside.

Grappling Continued

State police and sheriff's department men today continued to grapple in the Wallkill river near New Paltz for the body of Charles Deyo, 72, of the Springtown road, who they fear slipped into the river from his boat on Wednesday, March 11. Deyo, reported missing from his home since that day, was last seen as he was launching a boat he had made himself. The boat was found upset the following morning.

Clinics Are Announced

A child health conference will be held at the health center, Accord, from 1 to 3 p. m. Wednesday, March 25, under the auspices of the Ulster County Health Department. Dr. Dudley W. Hargrave, county commissioner of health, announced that a dental clinic for Town of Esopus preschool children would be held at the health center, Port Ewen, April 6, 7 and 8.

Industrial Group

the fund which was spent to secure land for expansion of a business which had been in Keene for some time. The Keene development corporation is also working on housing development and giving assistance to expansion programs of present industry.

Kingston Ripe Now

Kingston is ready in a like manner for the Thruway, the Kingston-Rhinebeck bridge and the Broadway crossing already eliminated, Kingston is now ripe for industrial growth. He said he believed it was the "turning point for Kingston" and the enthusiasm being shown in the Kingston Industrial Development Corporation pointed to success of the program.

The meeting Monday evening was called for the purpose of electing directors to serve in place of the temporary directors who had been named to initiate the corporation.

The temporary directors submitted their resignation prior to the election of 11 directors last evening. Those who served under the temporary set up were: Chester A. Baltz, Jr., Pratt Boice, Clarence Buddenhagen, DeWeese DeWitt, Bev C. Anderson, Howard C. St. John and Lawrence J. MacAvery.

Vote On 19 Names

A slate of 19 names was submitted and Peebles asked for further nominations from the floor. The only name added was that of Larry Bogart.

On the slate submitted by the committee was Bev C. Anderson, Emil G. Boesneck, Louis G. Bruhn, Robert G. Cline, James A. Dwyer, Harry duBois Frey, Harry Gold, Ernest Grafe, John H. Haulenbeek, Richard M. Kalish, Oscar B. London, Lawrence J. MacAvery, Robert H. Matthews, William O'Reilly, Robert M. Peebles, Lawrence A. Quilty, Edward H. Remmert, James L. Rowe, Clyde E. Wonderly, Jr.

Amos Newcombe, N. J. Fowler, Irving L. Eyles, Stanley London and Dorothy Narel were named tellers.

Directors Elected

On the vote Bev C. Anderson, Louis G. Bruhn, James A. Dwyer, John H. Haulenbeek, Lawrence J. MacAvery, Robert H. Matthews, William O'Reilly, Robert M. Peebles, Lawrence A. Quilty, James L. Rowe and Clyde E. Wonderly, were elected directors.

It was announced the new directors would meet very shortly and complete organization, discuss the by-laws and at a later meeting the adoption of the by-laws would come before the subscribers.

There were 86 voters present and a total of 111 votes were cast. In addition to the votes represented either by individual votes or by proxy at the meeting there are 34 other subscribers, making a total of 120 persons who have subscribed to at least one share of stock in the corporation. Par value of the stock is $50 a share.

Peebles announced that the stock would remain open and anyone may subscribe to stock and become a voting member of the corporation.

Prior to adjournment several additional shares of stock were pledged.

Bird House Bulletin

A bulletin dealing with the construction of various types of bird houses and feeding shelters has been prepared by the Ulster County 4-H office. Copies may be obtained by calling at the office or by mail.

Report Series Of 'Interferences'

Television owners in the uptown area of Kingston have been experiencing a most unusual series of "interferences" over the past couple of weeks. The area affected is that generally in the Joys Lane, Emerson street section and bounded on the east by Wall street and extending down to Elizabeth street. One television owner in that area, stated today that the interference had made its appearance about two weeks ago and apparently was from a defective motor or diathermy machine which comes on for periods of upwards of a half hour.

During the time the machine operates television is practically dead if tuned in on a New York station. The interference, it was stated, has been in progress about two weeks and apparently is from a new installation made in that period or from a machine which has developed trouble lately. "Correction of this difficulty would give great pleasure to many people of the area", the spokesman said.

The difficulty developed at 10:30 last evening and continued for about a half hour.

Kosloff Party

Alexis Kosloff will be the host at a birthday party at the Governor Clinton Hotel Wednesday with his dance pupils as guests. Cake and ice cream will be served and a dance program presented.

Shandaken Blood Bank Is Organized

The first meeting of the Shandaken Blood Bank was held in the town hall recently under the sponsorship of the Shandaken Nursing Committee.

Miss Mary K. Wiseman, RN, of the Kingston Laboratory Blood Bank, described the requirements for donors and the importance of such a service to the town. Dr. Charles Quinn of Phoenicia stressed the importance of a blood bank for the area.

The following committee chairmen were appointed:

Highmount, Mrs. Gordon Kent, RN; Big Indian-Oliverea, Mrs. Frances Leyman; Pine Hill, Charles Griffen; Bushnelsville-Shandaken, Mrs. Harry Hogstrom; Allaben, Mrs. Eva Storey; Phoenicia-Chichester, Mrs. Philip Gordon; Woodland Valley, Mrs. Alice Miller, and Mt. Tremper-Mt. Pleasant, Mrs. Bert Winnie.

The first blood donation will be held at 7 p. m. Wednesday, April 22, in the Phoenicia Parish Hall. Refreshments will be served.

Area chairmen and their committees will canvass their respective areas for donors. It was suggested that if a person felt he could not donate blood he might assist in transporting a donor or furnishing cake or refreshments. Anyone interested in donating blood or providing transportation is requested to contact his area chairman or telephone Rae Gregg at Phoenicia 3653.

The blood bank is pledged to a minimum of 20 pints and a maximum of 40, it was said.

Fingernails grow on an average of about one-eighth of an inch per month.

No Opposition To TV Station

A public hearing on the request for a business zone designation of a tract along the Boulevard that would be used for a television station ended without opposition last night in the Common Council chamber, city hall.

Application for the change was made by Anna E. Bower, 335 Boulevard, who listed Anna Boyer, of West Hempstead, and Rose Simmons, of Hempstead, as coowners of the six-acre tract. It takes in 143-155 Boulevard and 182-216 Marius street.

The applicant's letter to the council asking for the changes said the owners had granted an option to a representative of the Kingston Broadcasting Corp., for purchase of the land to build a broadcasting station, business offices and a transmitter.

The owners also had been informed, they said, that the property was to be used in conjunction with another company for television broadcasts.

Robert M. Peebles, general manager of the Kingston Broadcasting Corp., said that buildings would conform to the surroundings and would not be a detriment to the neighborhood. He indicated that both radio and television facilities may be housed there.

Alderman Abram D. Relyea, 11th ward, chairman of the council's laws and rules committee, presided. The council is scheduled to meet in a recessed session at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Van Fleet, Collins

one idea of what "the present scale" should be—but that the field commander has another.

An apt illustration of just such a case was the refusal by Gen. George Patton in World War Two to accept the definition of "defense" as it unquestionably was meant by his commanding general — now President — Dwight D. Eisenhower.

After Patton's bold rush across France, he was told to go on the defensive. Gasoline, ammunition and other supplies were diverted to Britain's General Montgomery.

So Patton adopted what he called "an aggresive defensive." Which meant he just kept on attacking, as he explained, to defend himself.

There would appear to be some of the Patton in "Big Jim" Van Fleet who semingly wasn't satisfied to interpret his role in Korea as the Pentagon was doing.

Never Have Enough

Van Fleet's testimony that he didn't have enough ammunition was not so unusual in itself—because it has become a truism in the army that no field commander "ever has enough." The man doing the fighting always wants more of everything—more men, more guns, more ammunition, more transport, and more of this and that.

Senators are well aware of this, but they aren't brushing off Van Fleet's insistent complaints of an ammunition shortage as just another case of a commander wanting too much.

Chairman Saltonstall (R.-Mass.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee, a man not addicted to impulsive statements, has said: "There is no question that our troops in Korea were limited on ammunition. There unquestionably were shortages. They are now less than they were."

In any investigation of ammunition shortages, a congressional committee will face the question: "What is a shortage?" That's another way of asking: "How much ammunition should an army shoot in attacking the enemy and defending itself?"

An obvious answer is: "Enough to do the job." But enough for the job apparently means one thing to Gen. Van Fleet and quite another thing to Gen. Collins from their different points of perspective.

That's why Congress will have a tough time finding all the answers.

Has Railroad Bill

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Rep. Gross (R-Iowa) said today perhaps 800 persons will die in railroad crossing accidents this year because of inability of see moving trains at night. Gross is author of a bill which would require that unlighted railroad cars, both passenger and freight, be marked with reflective or luminous material which would reflect light from auto headlights.

Churchill Rejects

London, March 17 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill rejected today a Communist proposal to barter a British businessman in a Hungarian prison for a Communist girl guerrilla held by the British in Malaya.

Report on Aircraft

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Air force officials said last night that appearances of unidentified aircraft over Alaska have been "less than intermittent and might more accurately be called scattered." The officials were commenting upon published reports that the Russians have been making periodic survey flights over North America. Officials said unidentified craft have made some flights over Alaska and northern Canada. They said none of possible Russian origin had been seen and none had been intercepted by U. S. craft. One official said there was considerable evidence some Russian flights had been made, although not on a discernible pattern. And he said there had been no recent increase in direct spottings. The distance separating Russian and U. S. territory over the Bering Strait is about 60 miles.

Pushes Leibowitz

New York, March 17 (AP)—Sen. Charles W. Tobey (R-N.H.) plugged Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz of Brooklyn last night for mayor of New York. "What a mayor of New York Sam Leibowitz would make!" the senator exclaimed at a televised dinner. Tobey presented the Democratic Kings county judge with the scroll of honor of Cimena Lodge, B'nai B'rith, Jewish fraternal group. After cheers from the audience, Tobey said: "What a worthy successor he'd make to that great American without guile, Fiorello H. LaGuardia," the late Republican-Fusion mayor.

Arrested by Husband

Agnes Lovelid, 28, of 28 Ann street, was arrested by her husband, Clifford last night on a third degree assault charge. City Judge Raymond J. Mino today dismissed the charge when the complainant failed to appear. The information charged the defendant with kicking her husband in the legs and hitting him on the head and face. Officers George Dougherty and Raymond Wells answered the call for police to the house.

Financial and Commercial

New York, March 17 (AP)—Under strong leadership of rails, steels, and motors, the stock market advanced moderately today.

Gains ran to around a point at the outside, principally in the most active sections, while losses were small.

The railroads were out in front yesterday and continued that leadership today. Within a short time, the steels and motors joined the rails in the advance as the rest of the market brightened up. No major section of the market held to the downside.

Grappling Continued

State police and sheriff's department men today continued to grapple in the Wallkill river near New Paltz for the body of Charles Deyo, 72, of the Springtown road, who they fear slipped into the river from his boat on Wednesday, March 11. Deyo, reported missing from his home since that day, was last seen as he was launching a boat he had made himself. The boat was found upset the following morning.

Clinics Are Announced

A child health conference will be held at the health center, Accord, from 1 to 3 p. m. Wednesday, March 25, under the auspices of the Ulster County Health Department. Dr. Dudley W. Hargrave, county commissioner of health, announced that a dental clinic for Town of Esopus preschool children would be held at the health center, Port Ewen, April 6, 7 and 8.

Industrial Group

the fund which was spent to secure land for expansion of a business which had been in Keene for some time. The Keene development corporation is also working on housing development and giving assistance to expansion programs of present industry.

Kingston Ripe Now

Kingston is ready in a like manner for the Thruway, the Kingston-Rhinebeck bridge and the Broadway crossing already eliminated, Kingston is now ripe for industrial growth. He said he believed it was the "turning point for Kingston" and the enthusiasm being shown in the Kingston Industrial Development Corporation pointed to success of the program.

The meeting Monday evening was called for the purpose of electing directors to serve in place of the temporary directors who had been named to initiate the corporation.

The temporary directors submitted their resignation prior to the election of 11 directors last evening. Those who served under the temporary set up were: Chester A. Baltz, Jr., Pratt Boice, Clarence Buddenhagen, DeWeese DeWitt, Bev C. Anderson, Howard C. St. John and Lawrence J. MacAvery.

Vote On 19 Names

A slate of 19 names was submitted and Peebles asked for further nominations from the floor. The only name added was that of Larry Bogart.

On the slate submitted by the committee was Bev C. Anderson, Emil G. Boesneck, Louis G. Bruhn, Robert G. Cline, James A. Dwyer, Harry duBois Frey, Harry Gold, Ernest Grafe, John H. Haulenbeck, Richard M. Kalish, Oscar B. London, Lawrence J. MacAvery, Robert H. Matthews, William O'Reilly, Robert M. Peebles, Lawrence A. Quilty, Edward H. Remmert, James L. Rowe, Clyde E. Wonderly, Jr.

Amos Newcombe, N. J. Fowler, Irving L. Eyles, Stanley London and Dorothy Narel were named tellers.

Directors Elected

On the vote Bev C. Anderson, Louis G. Bruhn, James A. Dwyer, John H. Haulenbeek, Lawrence J. MacAvery, Robert H. Matthews, William O'Reilly, Robert M. Peebles, Lawrence A. Quilty, James L. Rowe and Clyde E. Wonderly, were elected directors.

It was announced the new directors would meet very shortly and complete organization, discuss the by-laws and at a later meeting the adoption of the by-laws would come before the subscribers.

There were 86 voters present and a total of 111 votes were cast. In addition to the votes represented either by individual votes or by proxy at the meeting there are 34 other subscribers, making a total of 120 persons who have subscribed to at least one share of stock in the corporation. Par value of the stock is $50 a share.

Peebles announced that the stock would remain open and anyone may subscribe to stock and become a voting member of the corporation.

Prior to adjournment several additional shares of stock were pledged.

Report Series Of 'Interferences'

Television owners in the uptown area of Kingston have been experiencing a most unusual series of "interferences" over the past couple of weeks. The area affected is that generally in the Joys Lane, Emerson street section and bounded on the east by Wall street and extending down to Elizabeth street. One television owner in that area, stated today that the interference had made its appearance about two weeks ago and apparently was from a defective motor or diathermy machine which comes on for periods of upwards of a half hour.

During the time the machine operates television is practically dead if tuned in on a New York station. The interference, it was stated, has been in progress about two weeks and apparently is from a new installation made in that period or from a machine which has developed trouble lately. "Correction of this difficulty would give great pleasure to many people of the area", the spokesman said.

The difficulty developed at 10:30 last evening and continued for about a half hour.

Shandaken Blood Bank Is Organized

The first meeting of the Shandaken Blood Bank was held in the town hall recently under the sponsorship of the Shandaken Nursing Committee.

Miss Mary K. Wiseman, RN, of the Kingston Laboratory Blood Bank, described the requirements for donors and the importance of such a service to the town. Dr. Charles Quinn of Phoenicia stressed the importance of a blood bank for the area.

The following committee chairmen were appointed:

Highmount, Mrs. Gordon Kent, RN; Big Indian-Oliverea, Mrs. Frances Leyman; Pine Hill, Charles Griffen; Bushnelsville-Shandaken, Mrs. Harry Hogstrom; Allaben, Mrs. Eva Storey; Phoenicia-Chichester, Mrs. Philip Gordon; Woodland Valley, Mrs. Alice Miller, and Mt. Tremper-Mt. Pleasant, Mrs. Bert Winnie.

The first blood donation will be held at 7 p. m. Wednesday, April 22, in the Phoenicia Parish Hall. Refreshments will be served.

Area chairmen and their committees will canvass their respective areas for donors. It was suggested that if a person felt he could not donate blood he might assist in transporting a donor or furnishing cake or refreshments. Anyone interested in donating blood or providing transportation is requested to contact his area chairman or telephone Rae Gregg at Phoenicia 3653.

The blood bank is pledged to a minimum of 20 pints and a maximum of 40, it was said.

From the Cabinet Shelf

Rep. Clare E. Hoffman (left) chats with Federal Security Administrator Oveta Culp Hobby and Budget Director Joseph M. Dodge (right). Dodge and Mrs. Hobby are the first witnesses before the House and Senate Operations Committee which is taking testimony on President Eisenhower's reorganization-of-government plan. Under the plan, FSA would be a cabinet post, making Mrs. Hobby the second woman cabinet member. (NEA Telephoto).

Dewey's Rent . . .

trol one and two-family houses and owner-occupied accommodations as they became vacant after April 1; and permit local governments to lift controls in their areas, after a public hearing.

Other Developments

Other major legislative developments:

1. The Senate Finance Committee approved Dewey's proposal for a commission study of the state judicial system, thereby guaranteeing a floor vote on the plan, probably tomorrow. The governor's measure, which had appeared headed for defeat, stemmed from testimony before the State Crime Commission of political bartering of judgeships, especially in New York city.

2. The Assembly approved, over stiff Democratic opposition, a resolution calling for final adjournment to the Senate Finance Committee, where it probably will be amended when the GOP leaders decide how soon they will be able to clear the calendars.

3. The administration introduced its four-point legislative program to help New York city balance its money-short budget. The action provoked a threat by the state CIO that its members would strike against city employers who tried to deduct from their wages any payroll tax. Such a tax is one of Dewey's fiscal proposals.

4. The Legislature's minority leaders, Sen. Francis J. Mahoney and Assemblyman Eugene F. Bannigan, assailed an administration proposal for sweeping changes in the state's welfare-aid program for localities. They said they "most vehemently object to this practice of one-man government and increasingly callous disregard for the rights and prerogatives of the legislature."

5. Lt. Gov. Frank C. Moore's committee on tax and debt limits recommended that the Legislature postpone necessary second approval of a proposed constitutional amendment to make school systems fiscally independent in Albany, Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse and Yonkers.

Moore said his group had decided the plan needed additional study.

Firm Has New Building

A building specially designed for the firm's operations has been erected by James P. Byrne Monuments on the Onteora Trail just outside the Kingston city limits.

Designed by Byrne himself and erected by him and the firm, the building was completed exactly a year after the first ground was broken.

Construction was done at intervals when employes could spare the time from the regular business of making and erecting monuments.

Fnished with bluestone exterior, the 60 by 25-foot building also has a bluestone interior in its showroom. The building contains an office and plant in which the lettering and related work may be done. Employes today were erecting an overhead crane for handling stone. Other equipment includes skylights in the roof and dust arresting devices.

In Business 28 Years

Byrne, who was with Byrne Brothers in the location at Broadway and Henry street for 28 years, also designed the sign and cut it from marine plywood.

He explained today that the erection of the building by monument workers was not as unusual as it might appear, since a part of their training deals with the erection of mausoleums. Byrne's own studies included basic architecture as well as design.

In addition to his plant and showroom on the Onteora Trail, Byrne also operates branch displays at Ellenville, Liberty and Rhinebeck.

Dr. Meng to Address Burroughs Society

Dr. Heinz K. Meng will address the John Burroughs Natural History Society at Kingston High School Friday, March 27, on the subject of Hawks.

The lecture, to which the public is invited, will be illustrated, it was said.

Last Saturday the following members of the Society participated in a field trip to the Lomontville and Ashokan Reservoir areas during which 31 species of birds were observed: Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Cragen and Mrs. Samuel Hayes of Kingston, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hough of Kripplebush, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dunbar and Mrs. Heber Smith of Lomontville and Dr. Meng and Miss Elizabeth Metz of New Paltz. Several high school freshmen also attended.

Crime Increases

Washington, March 17 (AP)—FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover reported today more than two million major crimes were committed in the United States in 1952. It was the first time such a total has been reached since accurate statistics have been kept, he said. Reports submitted to the bureau by law enforcement agencies throughout the country put the total at 2,036,510. This is 154,350 above the 1951 figure. Hoover said every category of major crime showed an increase.

Technicians Meeting

Members of the Ulster Electronic Technicians Association will hold a regular meeting on Wednesday evening, March 18, at 8 o'clock at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Home, Delaware avenue. All members are urged to attend this session as it is a very important meeting. Dues for 1953 are now payable.

Slump Talk May

number of jobs may contract—hence the drive for shorter hours to spread the work.

Management's Reasons

Whether wishful thinking or not, here are the reasons management advances for predicting smaller wage boosts and fewer big strikes this year; previous wage hikes have put weekly earnings fairly high and erased old grievances; the cost of living is beginning to slip; both management and labor fear a slump and don't want to rock the boat now.

The Foremen's Institute adds another: "Workers can't afford to stay out on strikes during good times."

It explains this view (which is contrary to most thinking) this way: "Good times stimulate the kind of debt commitments that necessitate a steady income."

Buying on the cuff is now at an all-time high. Billions of dollars are owed for homes, furniture, cars, television sets.

The Institute suspects that much of this is owed by workers who have had fattened pay checks in the last two years and felt free to take on installment debt on big-ticket appliances. Collectors insist on prompt payments—and that means week-in, week-out income.

Whether wage demands may or may not be pushed so hard this year, the fringe parade continues. There are such goals as winter vacations, maternity leaves, hospitalization pay, and a holiday on your birthday.

The Institute notes still another, "the roving holiday." This is a demand that the employe be allowed to select any day in the year as his own personal paid holiday.

Gaise to Hold Lenten Service on Wednesday

The mid-week Lenten vesper service will be conducted at 7:45 p. m. Wednesday at the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Wurts and Rogers streets, by the Rev. David C. Gaise, pastor. He will continue the series of meditations on the general Lenten theme, Who Is This Saviour?, using as his subject, Christ, Heir to a Throne.

The lesson for the evening will be the traditional fifth portion of the history of Christ's passion which relates to His humiliation. The congregation will join in the historic Lenten hymns and a bidding prayer based on the seven words from the Cross. Mrs. Lester Decker at the organ will play two Chorale Preludes by Peeters, Abide O Dearest Jesus and O Dearest Jesus, What Law Hast Thou Broken and as a postlude Elevation by Guilmant. The senior choir under the direction of Leonard Stine will sing the anthem, Incline Thine Ear by Himmel. The choir will rehearse immediately after the services. Guests are welcomed by the congregation at these services.

St. Paul's to Hold Fifth Lenten Service

The fifth in the series of Lenten vespers will be held in St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church, 355 Hasbrouck avenue, on Wednesday at 7:45 p. m. The meditation by the pastor, the Rev. Lars H. Lillestolen, will be on Ye Are My Witnesses! The musical program is prepared by the organist, Thomas Crosby and the choir director, Herman LaTour. Prelude: Vision, by Rheinberger, and the postlude: Toccata, by DuBois. The Altar Guild will meet at 7:15 p. m. Wednesday, and the choir will rehearse immediately following the Lenten service. On Saturday the Lydian Guild will sponsor a food-sale to be held at Montgomery Ward. The sale will open at 10 a. m.

A BEAUTIFUL MODERN HOME WITH THAT Fresh "Natural" Look
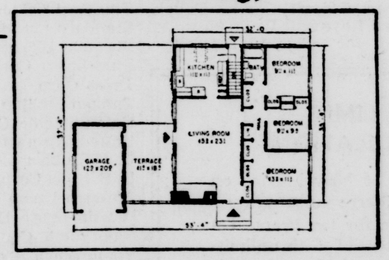
A CHARMING TERRACE


THIS home is smart, modern, and inviting. Plank and beam construction lends distinction—with a fresh, natural atmosphere in the best of taste. It also offers welcome economies in construction.
The delightful terrace, screened from the street by the crisp, white trellis, will be a popular spot for summer relaxation.
As you study the floor plan, note how professional planning gives luxury features that are conservative in cost . . . the spacious living room with its walls of distinctive Driftwood Panelling and the massive Roman brick fireplace with raised hearth . . . three roomy bedrooms with excellent storage facilities . . . the efficient kitchen with dinette area.
There are scores of other modern homes in our 4-Square Home Building Service—all architect-designed and Weyerhaeuser-engineered to give you the best in home values. Ask to see them all.
The style of home you want . . . the size you want . . . is right here in our 4-Square Home Building Service. Blueprints are available for all designs.
